THE VOLUME I.

LONDON :

MITCHELL AND HUGHES, PRINTERS,

WARDOUR STREET, W.

The Journal of Genealogy has been so ably developed and by the numerous rapid progress of the Society's progress, and and by the continued success of its publication.

I trust that future progress will meet the kind response which has been accorded to those already published, and that the interest by public opinion, I may be enabled to resume from oblivion the history and genealogy of many houses of our old nobility.

GEORGE W. M. JONES.

PREFACE.

IN bringing to a close the first volume of THE GENEALOGIST, it is my pleasant duty to offer my warmest thanks to the numerous contributors, subscribers, and friends, to whose encouragement and support it owes its existence.

Despite the prophecies which hailed its birth,—that it was not wanted,—that it would interfere with other publications of a similar character,—that nobody would read it,—that it would prove a pecuniary failure,—THE GENEALOGIST has struggled into being, and is I trust now firmly established as a literary warehouse, for many valuable articles on Heraldry, Genealogy, and kindred subjects.

The need of such a publication has been amply demonstrated by the numerous useful papers I have been enabled to publish, and by the continued increase of its circulation.

I trust that future numbers will merit the kind support which has been accorded to those already published, and that encouraged by public opinion, I may be enabled to rescue from oblivion the history and genealogy of many houses of our old noblesse.

WIXFORD, WARWICKSHIRE.

BY THOMAS P. WADLEY, M.A.,

Rector of Naunton Beauchamp, co. Worc.

WIXFORD, which was anciently written Witlaxford, Wicklesford, Wiggesford, etc., is a chapelry united with the parish of Exhall, near the town of Alcester. Its church exhibits several styles of architecture, as Norman, Early English, and Perpendicular.

The estate of Moor Hall, on which there was formerly a mansion, is situate within the parish of Wixford, and was held by John de Morehall in the reign of Richard II. It afterwards descended to the Clopton family, a branch of which was seated in the parish of Quinton, co. Gloucester. At the beginning of the fifteenth century, Thomas de Crewe, Esq., was of Moor Hall, having married Julian, mother of Sir William Clopton, K^t, and widow, as it would appear from Dugdale, of John de Clopton. Thomas de Crewe was attorney to Margaret Beauchamp, Countess of Warwick, and may have been identical with Thomas Crewe, who was Sheriff of Warwickshire 1 Henry V. On the south side of Wixford church there is chapel which was erected by Thomas de Crewe, and which contains a handsome raised tomb with brass effigies in memory of Thomas and Julian his wife. The inscription, in black letter, is preceded by a cross flory between two human left feet, a foot being also placed between each word. It may be remarked in passing, that a pear occurs between the words of the inscription on the Clopton brass in Quinton church, the Cloptons bearing pears in one of their coats. The inscription (in Wixford chapel) runs thus,—“Hic iacent Thomas de Cruwe Armiger qui istam Capellam fecit fieri Qui obiit—die mensis—Anno dominni Mill'imo cccc—Et Juliana vxor eius Que obiit Vicesimo die mensis Decembr' Anno d'ni Millesmo cccc° Vndecimo Quor' Animabz p'picietur deus Am'e AMEN." On this monument there are five shields: I., quarterly, 1 and 4, a fess between six crosses crosslet; 2 and 3, chequy, a chevron ermine. II., a lion rampant, impaling quarterly per fess indented, in first quarter something resembling a lion passant crowned. III., a lion rampant. IV., a cross. The fourth shield is a recent insertion, the original having been destroyed. V., two bars fretty.¹

The east window of the chapel contains several shields in stained glass; I., quarterly, 1 and 4, chequy, a chevron ermine; 2 and 3, a fess between six crosses crosslet, — Beauchamp. II., the same quarterings, impaling gules, a chevron between ten crosses patée, six in chief and four in base, argent, — Berkeley. III., gules seven mascles conjoined, three, three, and one, or, — Ferrers. The name Ferice occurs once in the parish registers of Exhall with Wixford, viz., August, 1614, buried Winifride Ferice, da. of Ferdine'do Ferice. Other shields existed in this window at the time when Dugdale wrote.

A few years ago I was favoured with the loan of a document written in the reign of Elizabeth, and giving an account of a commission, appointed 8 Eliz., to make inquiry relative to lands which Thomas de Crewe left for the maintenance of a chantry priest at Wixford. The commissioners were Sir John Conway, K', Miles Sandys, Esq., John Somerfield, Esq., Roger Lytleton, Esq., John Sparrey, gent., and Henry Felde, gent. Among the witnesses examined were Thomas Walsingham, of Cofton, co. Worcester, gent., aged about 60; William Page, of Wixford, aged 70; William Ingelles, of Wixford, aged 56; Richard Elliotts, clerk, the last of the Wixford chantry priests, aged 70; Thomas Foxe, of Dunnington (a neighbouring hamlet), aged 55; and Thomas Gowre, of Alcester, aged 60, formerly a scholar with Sir Thomas Taverner, one of the chantry priests, which Sir Thomas died at Alcester, in a cottage near the Bull Ring. It appeared from the depositions that the priests were sometimes called "chantry priests of Wicklesford," and sometimes "priests of the Moorhall"; that in the time of Sir John Lyngham, or Lingen, K^t, whose wife appears to have been one of the grand-daughters of Sir William Clopton, a dispute arose as to the patronage of the chantry chapel, the said Sir John having sent a priest with the view of expelling Sir Roger Byrde; and that Richard Mytton, Esq., who, it would seem, was a descendant of the Cloptons, was patron of the chapel at the period of the Reformation, and allowed Sir Richard Elliotts an annuity of eight marks. The immediate predecessor of Elliotts was Roger Byrde, who succeeded Thomas Taverner, who succeeded William Skynner. Thomas Foxe, of Dunnington, deposed that yearly upon the Feast of All Saints, at night, the inhabitants of Wixford did usually come to the chapel wherein the founder lieth in a tomb, and thither did yearly bring, the said night, certain meats and drinks, and did set the same upon the said tomb, and the ancient men of the said town, there being and eating their said victuals, would oftentimes commend the good deed of the said founder.

On the floor of the chapel, south-west of de Crewe's tomb, there is a stone the surface of which is very much worn, but which appears to have been in memory of Francis Bickerton who died May . . 16 . . The parish registers of Exhall with Wixford state that Francis Bickerton was buried May 14, 1678. It will be seen in the Visitation of Leicestershire, A.D. 1619,¹ that the Wixford Bickertons were a branch of the ancient family seated at Beeby, co. Leic., and bore for arms argent, on a chevron sable three pheons of the field. In the Exhall with Wixford registers are these entries:—37 Hen. VIII., Thomas Copland married Ann Bickerton. 1 Edw. VI., June 4, bapt. Jacobus filius Anthonij Bickerton. 4 Edw. VI., Oct 5, bapt. Thomas s. of Anthony Bickerton. 3 Elizab. sepult. 1609, July 12, bapt. Francis s. of Thomas Bickerson. 1612, Jan. 15, bapt. Geffery, s. of Thomas Bickersonne. 1619, May 3, bapt. Thomas, s. of Thomas and Alisee (sic) Bickerson. 1622, Dec. 16, bapt. Richard s. of Thomas Bickardson. The name Bickerton also occurs in the earlier registers at Evesham.

There is a small brass suspended against the west wall of this chapel thus inscribed :—"Here lyeth the bodie of Rise Griffyn, Fovrth so'n of Rise Griffyn of Brome in y^e Covntie of Warwike Esquier, he Deceased y^e vjth daye of Ianvary And being in his Infancye being bvt three quarters olde, Anno D'ni. 1597." The brass is embellished with a shield containing twelve quarterings,—1, a griffin segreant, in chief a crescent for difference,—Griffin; 2, a bend within a bordure charged with roundles,—Favell; 3, a cross flory, in chief a crescent for difference,—Latimer; 4, seven mascles conjoined, three, three, and one,—Braybrooke; 5, a fess dancettée between six crosses crosslet,—Ledet; 6, barry nebulée of seven ermine and . . .,—Foliot; 7, a fess dancettée between six garbs,—Raincourt; 8, semée of crosses crosslet fitchée, a lion rampant—De la Warr; 9, three bendlets enhanced,—Greilly; 10, lozengy, . . and vair,—De Burgh; 11, two bars gamelles, in chief a lion passant guardant,—Tregoz; 12, a fess between three estoiles,—Ewyas. I have to thank my esteemed and learned friend Grazebrook, author of the "Heraldry of Smith," etc., for calling my attention to the quarterings of Lord Howard de Walden, as given in a plate in "Edmondson's Baronagium," some of which are the coats here quartered by Griffin, though the order in which they are placed is not the same.

On the floor of the chapel is a stone with this inscription :—

Edward eldest sonn to Nicholas Griffin of Bickmarsh in y^e cou : war. esq^r by Anne his wife y^e eldest dau : of Edward Lingin of Sto [ke] yeedith in y^e cou : Hereford esq. lieth Heere interred decemb. y^e . . 1643 aged . . yeares, .

Arms.—A griffin segreant.

A flat stone adjoining this has the inscription :—

Heare lye the bodyes of Nicholas Griffin the Son and of Anne Griffin the Eldest Daughter of Edward Griffin of Bickmarsh Esq,
Which Ann died in the twefeth yeare of her AGe 1674.

Another flat stone commemorates John and Mary Griffyn, son and da. of Edward Griffyn of Bickmarsh, Esq., but gives no ages or dates. By the side of this is a stone inscribed to the memory of Edward Griffin, who departed this life 15 April, 1688, and Anne, who died 7 Feb. 1710. Mary Griffin departed this life Decem. 8, 1724. In Memoriâ Aeternâ erit justus, - Psal. 112th, v. 6th. Arms,—Griffin, impaling three lions rampant, two and one, intended apparently for Vaughan. North of de Crewe's tomb lies a stone, the surface of which has crumbled away; but it has a shield on which may be traced the coat of Griffin, impaling two pales . . a bend, by which was probably meant paly of six or (or argent?) and gules, a bend ermine,—Draycot. From Thomas's ed. of "Dugdale's Warwickshire" it appears that the inscription on this stone was in Latin, and recorded the death of Edward Griffin of Bickmarsh, Esq., 1659, and of Elizabeth his wife, one of the daughters of Philip Draycot, of Draycot, co. Stafford, Esq.; died 1658. On a tablet against the west wall of the chapel are the arms sable, a griffin segreant argent,—Griffin, impaling sable, a fess chequy argent and azure between three bezants,—Pitt. Under the shield are the words,—

Miseremini mei miseremini mei saltem Vos Amici mei
Iob 19th v. 21st

Near to this place lie the Body's of

Wife of Ioseph Griffin Esq^r

 She was the Daughter

The following entries occur in the registers of Exhall with Wixford:—1609, Jan. 15, Richard s. of Francis Griffin was baptized. 1686, May 28, Marie Griffin was bapt. 1688, May 28, Mary Griffin was bapt. 1689, March 3, Katherine Griffin was born and bapt. 1709-10, Feb. 11, M^{rs} Griffin of Bickmarsh was buried at Wicksford Chappel. 1724, Dec. 18, Mary the Wife of Joseph Griffin, Esq. of Bickmarsh bur^d at Wiggessford. 1728, July 11, Joseph Griffin, Esq. of Bickmarsh bur^d at Wiggessford. Affid. for Him y^e Same Day. The marriage register of All Saints', Evesham, records the publication of banns between M^r George Sheldon of Broadway, gent. and M^{rs} Anne Griffin of Bickmarsh, co. Warwick, spinster, Feb. 1656. It may also be mentioned that there are, or were, inscriptions at Stoke-Edith, in memory of Nicholas Griffin, eldest son of Edw. Griffin of Bickmarsh, died 26 Feb. 1644, and Anne his wife, da. of Edward Lingen of Stoke-Edith, died 16 Sept. 1660. Also that Elizabeth, only da. of Thomas Blount of Orleton, co. Hereford, married Richard Griffin of Bickmarsh, and died April, 1724.

The pedigree of Griffin, Harl. MS. 1100 shews the near connection of this family with that of Throckmorton of Coughton. Yet there would appear to have been a lack of concord between the two families, Rice Griffin resorting to legal proceedings against Thomas Throckmorton, Esq., and others, to support his title to lands and tenements some time the inheritance of George Skinner, but purchased by plaintiff of Thomas Throckmorton, by the name of lands, tenements, and hereditaments lying in the towns, fields, parishes, and hamlets of Exhall, Wixford, Burnell, Broom, and Bidford.—‘Proceedings in Chancery,’ temp. Elizab.

Westward of the de Crewe monument is a flat stone in memory of Elizabeth, wife of William Waters of the Vpper Lodge, died 27 May, 1720, ætat. 37. From the parish registers we learn that John Waters was buried in Jan. 1670; James Waters was buried Nov. 1686; and in 1746, May 20, was buried "at Wigglesford in S^r Roberts Chapel Agnis Waters."

According to Dr. Thomas, there was another monumental inscription in Wixford Chapel:—"Here lyeth the body of Phillip Lewys, gent. who departed this life the 31 Day of October Anno Domⁱ 1706." Perhaps it is now concealed by a pew.¹

There is a mural tablet at the entrance to the chancel of the church, in memory of John Dixon, who died 17 April, 1797, aged 79; Elizabeth his wife, 22 March, 1795, aged 81; and Joseph, their son, who died in the year 1776, aged 28.

In the nave of the church towards the west end of the floor, there is a brass plate having thereon the following inscription, in black letter:—

Here lieth the bodye of Jane Alline some time the wi fe of Iohn Alline which did bequeathe her selfe to be buried in Wixforde Churche and this said Jane tenn children that is to saye Anne Margret Marge ry Anne Elizabeth Iohn Marye Alse Iohn Issabell this Iesus.

In Wixford churchyard, south-east part, is a grave-stone to the memory of Thomas Edkins, died 11 May, 1687; the register, however, states that he was buried 9 May, 1686. In the same part are stones in memory of Thomas Layton, who died 16 April, 1727, aged 55, and Elizabeth, his wife, 4 March, 1726, aged 63; and Michael Layton, who died at Guns, in the parish of Saintbury, 4 May, 1734, aged 62. On the south side of de Crewe's chapel is a gravestone to John Shaylor Sen^r, who died 26 Jan. 1699, aged 59. According to the register, John Shaylor, of y^e parish of Alcester, was buried at Wigglesford, 26 Jan. 1699. About two yards from the S.E. angle of the chancel there is a stone commemorating Mary, wife of John Bedman, and da. of Robert Allen, died 24 Nov. 1717.

1734, April 15. Steps are taken, and a memorandum made by Joshua Jennings, rector, John Hunt, Thomas Field, and Joseph Robbins, in order to prevent future encroachments being made by Sir Robert Throckmorton, or any agent of his, on the Liberties of the parish of Exhall and Wigglesford.

1736, May 14. Before William Somerville, Esq., Chairman, and others, at the Petty Sessions holden at Stratford on Avon; decision against Kemp Abell of Bidford, and Thomas Osborn, or Osbaston, of Broom, who are compelled to contribute towards paying the Exhall and Wixford hayward. Kemp was a favourite Christian name in the Abell family. The following extract from the parish registers of Harvington, Worcestershire, will shew how it came to be adopted:—1618, March 14, Kempe s. of William Abell was baptized; witnesses, Kempe Harwarde, Samuel Demetrius [i.e. Des Maistres, of Prior's Salford,] and — Hunte. To this may be added, from the Harvington register of marriages,—1594, July 22, Robert Harwarde and Magdalen Kempe were mar^d.

7 George III. An Act of Parliament for dividing and inclosing the Common within Wixford, Exhall, King's Broom, and Burnell's Broom. The Commissioners appointed under the Act for the inclosure were Edward Gibbs, of Stratford, Esq., John Newcombe, of Brinklow, gent., Joseph Crump, of Evesham, gent., Thomas Browne, of Salperton, co. Glouc', gent., and Lewis Bradley, of Henley in Arden, gent. The first meeting of the Commissioners took place on Tuesday, 7 April, 1767, at the the "White Lyon," Bidford, the house of Edward Hodges. It was set forth that Sir Francis Skipwith, Bart., was then lord of the manor of Bidford, and Sir Robert Throckmorton, Bart., lord of the manor of Oversley, which extends over Exhall and King's Broom; also that Charles Henry Talbot, Esq., Edward Wilkes, James Far, John Smith, Edward Ellins, clerk, and divers others, were proprietors of the said Common fields.

Dr. William Thomas, who made additions to 'Dugdale's Warwickshire,' was rector of Exhall with Wixford from 1698 to 1723, during which period he had issue, by his wife Elizabeth, Penelope, Elizabeth, William, and Thomas.

Among the parties who refused to take the oath of allegiance to George I. were Elizabeth Griffin whose estate at Bickmarsh, etc., was in the possession of Robert Russell and others. Joseph Griffin, of Welford, co. Gloucester. Thomas Layton, estate at Arrow. Francis Bartlam, estate at Wixford, in the possession of Thomas Collins. The figure of a woman carved upon a bench end at the bottom of the nave, and having two children on either side her feet, is said to represent Florence wife of John Wyndham, who was the year after her marriage, 1562, buried alive in St. Decuman's church, but the sexton hearing a noise in the coffin as he was closing the vault, she was taken up, and soon after gave birth to Sir John Wyndham. WILL OF EDWARD HALL THE CHRONICLER,

BY WHICH HE GIVES HIS CHRONICLE TO GRAFTON THE PRINTER.

IN dei no'i'e, amen. Where nothing is more surer than Deathe and nothing more vncertain than the tyme of his comyng I therefore Edward Hall of Grayes Inne a most wreched and myserable Synner knowing that I must dye But not when make this my last will and testament in the yere of our lorde god a thousaunde fyve hunderth xlvj. first I yelde and gif my soule to her maker and Redeemer by whose passion and not by my desertes I trust onely to be saved for he hath washed away my Synnes I doubt nott by his precyouse blode, and my body I will to be buried honestly in the churche of christe late called the grey fryers* on the northe syde y^t and some stone or some plate to be sett in the wall for a memory. Item. I giue to M^r morton my night gowne and the Skuchen of my Armes that hangith in my chamber. Item. I give to Henry my Serv^{nt} my russett gowne furred w^t foynes my tawney satten Doublet and my tawney damask Jaquet fyue poundes in money a blacke gowne and the presse and hanges in his chamber. Item. I bequeath to the p'sonne of saint Andrews for tithes forgotten tenne shillings. Item. I give to Richard Grafton prynter my Cronycle late made trusting that he will sett it forwarde, And I give to the said Richard my ryding cote and my playn Doublet of crymsen Satten. All my frensh Bookes and Englyssh bookes I will to my brother and all other my bookes not being of the lawe I will shal'be gyven to my freendes or sold according to the discrecon of myn executors, Saving that I will that my great

* Stowe (Edn. of 1633, p. 276) and Anthony Wood (Athenæ, Edn. of 1721, vol. i, p. 71) say that he was buried in St Bennet Sherehog, and that another person of the same name also of Gray's Inn, who died in 1470, was buried in the Grey Friars. His father and mother, and no doubt he himself, lived in the parish of St Bennet Sherehog, and his mother, as appears from Machyn's diary, was buried there. Wood who copied from Stowe the statement that Edw^d Hall was buried in St Bennet Sherehog, says that it was another person of the same name who was buried in the Grey Friars. Stowe probably had his authority for the Grey Friars' burial from the MS. now in the Cottonian Collection, Vitellius F. xii., (Collectanea Topographica et Genealogica, vol. v, p. 274). The omission of the figure 5 in this MS. no doubt led him into the error that it was a person other than the chronicler who was buried at Grey Friars. Edward Hall desires to be buried on the north side of the Grey Friars' Church, and amongst the monuments noted in the above MS. as those in alea Boreali inter murum borealem et columnas occurs the entry "Edward Hall gen^{osi} et socii.....nne, ob. 15 Apr^{is} 147^o" (Coll. Top. and Gen. vol. v, p. 393). His will was proved 25 May, 1517. The writer of the MS. appears to have written hurriedly and omitted the 5, which supplied, makes the entry read 15 Apr^{is} 1547^o just about the usual time we should expect the burial to have taken place after the date of his death, and before the time when the will would be proved. It is most probable that both Stowe and Wood did not perceive this evident omission in the MS., so that there were not two Edward Halls as stated, and Edward Hall the chronicler was, if this assumption be correct, buried in the Grey Friars pursuant to his testamentary injunction, and not at St Bennet Sherehog.

Cronica Cronieor' shalbe given to the chamber of London to lye in the counsell chamber. All my bookes concerning the law I give to henry Awen my clerk. My furre of Jenettes I bequeth to Thomas Stanley. Item. I giue to euery seruant in my mothers house an Aungell, and to Bennes wif my eupbourd cheires and tenne shillings. Item. I bequeth in Almes fourtie shillings. And where my mother haith of myn exijⁱⁱ I will that to be divided between her and my brother, and all my debtors I acquyet and discharge clerely. Item. I giue to Thomas Huntman my late s^tuaunt a black Gowne and fourtie shillings, my bookes of pedigrees I will my brother shall have, my litell cypres cofer I giue to m^{rs} norton [and ?] my ring w^t the red stone of hercules, and to M^r Birkes I giue my crynsen veluet purse w^t the tassells and thymage of the king in ytt. And my ring w^t the Saphire I give to my mother. p^r me Edwardum Hall. Executour of this testament I make Wil^m Hall my brother requiring him to giue diuerse of my Cartes to M^r Warren and such my other freends as sett by them. And ou^rseer of the same I make Katheryne Hall my mother,* relinquishing all other things to there discrecons. Laus deo. p^r me Edowardum Hall manu p^rpria. Proved 25 May, 1547. (Allen 36.)

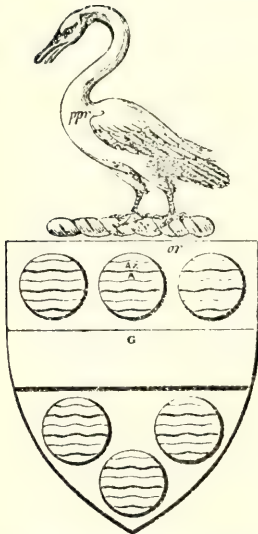

* Supposed to have been the Mrs. Hall who was imprisoned in Newgate for heresy, and to whom several letters of the Martyrs are addressed, Cooper's Athenae Cantabrigienses, i, 93, 337. Her will from which the following particulars are taken—dated 28 Feb. 1555, 2 and 3 Philip and Mary, was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury by Sir William Garratt, K^{nt} 18 Aug. 1557 (Wrastley 28). She was buried 19 (an error for 29, as the codicil to her will is dated 27) June 1557 at S^t Bennet Sherehog. See Diary of Henry Machyn; Camden Society, No. xlii, p. 139.

She describes herself as 'Katheryn Hall Wydowe of the parrysh of S^t Bennet Sherehoke in london late wif of John Hall citizen and grocer of london aforesaid deceased.' Mentions, her lease to mayor and commonalties of London of the monastery of Lutild which she had from the Abbot of Westminster, and also the following persons, 'my cossyn Cuthbert Warcope,' 'Margaret Rayman my kynswoman,' Johan daughter of Richard Sutch, Anne Hall dwelling in Kent, under age of 20. 'I bequeth vnto my lute husband Hall's kynne dwelling in Shropshire, namely vnto such as my Cossyn Mosyer dothe know 6th 13th 4th to be equally dyvyded amongst theym.' A like sum is given to her poor tenants in the counties of Northampton, Bucks, and Oxford. Twenty gownes at 7^s every yard to ten poor men and ten poor women. Mentions, Godson William Garrarde. Gives to 'my Lady Warren a ring of gold.' Appoints M^r William Garrarde, Alderman of London, executor, and Dame Johanne Warren widow supervisor. By a codicil dated 27 June 1557, she bequeaths amongst other legacies to 'Lady Warren one of my cypres chests,' and to 'William Mosier's wife my Tothe pyke of gold.'

The will of John Hall citizen and grocer of London, the husband of the above Katheryn Hall, is dated 18 Feb. 20 Henry VIII., and was proved by her in the prerogative Court of Canterbury, 13 March, 1528 (Jankyn 3rd). He directs his body to be buried in S^t Thomas of Acre, and bequeaths 'to the high awter of Saint Bennet Sherehogge for my tithes iij^s iij^d, the same sum to high alter of S^t Mildreds, to Margery Shotton of Stoke upon Tyerne in Shropshire and to Agnes Trystram of Kynnersley in the said county to each of them iij^s iij^d, to Katherine Wheteley at day of her marriage 45, to Julian Mosier a gilt pott. Mentions his wife Katherine, and sons Edward and William, his lands at Edelinton, and lease of his house in parish of S^t Benet Sherehog.

ADDITIONS TO LE NEVE'S PEDIGREES OF THE KNIGHTS
MADE BY KING CHARLES II. JAMES II. KING WILLIAM
III. AND QUEEN MARY AND QUEEN ANNE. PUB-LISHED BY THE HARLEIAN SOCIETY, VOL. VIII.

By GEORGE W. MARSHALL, Editor of Le Neve's Knights.

No. I.

IN this and the following numbers of additions to Le Neve's pedigrees it is proposed to add only such notes, references, and additions as have not been printed before. The pedigrees given by Le Neve are, in no single instance, what may be called complete. They are at best but rough notes of the descents of the persons knighted put down from the visitation books in the College of Arms, from hearsay, personal knowledge, or contemporary books and newspapers, for his professional use as a herald. Since the time of Le Neve genealogical literature has multiplied an hundred-fold, hence many important additions have been added to his brief notes, which it would be useless to reprint here, but to which references, carefully given under the name of the knight to whom they refer, will amply suffice to shew the genealogist of our own day the sources from which he may compile a complete pedigree. In cases where the bare reference to already printed genealogies does not sufficiently identify the knight, or in those in which original and inedited matter can be introduced in elucidation of his genealogy, such matter will be here printed in extenso. Following this plan, it is hoped that a very valuable addition may be made to Le Neve, and the descents of many worthy knights hitherto hidden in obscurity be fully and accurately compiled. Any communications in furtherance of this object will be thankfully received.

SIR CHRISTOPHER MYNNES, OR MINGS, K^{TED}, 1665.

(Le Neve, p. 196).

Sir Christopher Mynnes, Mings, or Mynns, as the name is indifferently spelt, was most probably the person of that name baptised at Blakeney, co. Norfolk, 8 March, 1585, as son of Nicholas and Elizabeth Mynns. Gough states that he was born at Cockthorpe in that county. (Gough's Camden, vol. ii., p. 195.) He is described as of Bintree, co. Norfolk, Add. MS. 14,299, fol. 55, 143. He died 4 June, 1666. His will in which he describes himself as of Goodman's Fields, in the Parish of Whitechapel, Marriner, is dated 29 May 1665, and was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, Nov. 1666. See Charnock's Biographia Navalis, vol. i, p. 82; Notes and Queries 2nd series, vol. vi, p. 480; Pepy's Diary, 4 June, 1666, etc. He was twice married, 1st, to Mary mentioned in her husband's will 1665, by whom he had issue, Mary, mentioned in her father's will 1665, died unmarried, and buried at Salthouse, co. Norfolk, with this inscription, "Here lieth interr'd the Body of Mary Myngs Daughter of the late Valiant and Renowned S^r Christopher Myngs. She departed this life the 17 day of Jannary, Anno Dom. 1698;" and 2nd, to Rebecca daughter of Stone, mentioned in will of her husband 1665. In her will dated 22 August 1678, she describes herself as of Hertford widow, mentions her late husband S^r Christopher Mings, Kt., and her son Christopher under age to whom she devises a farm at Standon. Administration granted to her brother William Stone and John Jenkins 5 May 1679, during the minority of her son Christopher Mings (C.P.C. King, 60). Besides this Christopher she had a daughter named Rebecca mentioned in her will as then under the age of 17, legatee of her "husband's picture set in gold."

Christopher Mynns, or Myngs the son, was Captain Superintendent at Portsmouth 1707-14. In his will dated 26 July 1724, and proved in C.P.C. He married Margaret daughter of S^r John Oglander, Bart., Berry's Herts., p. 132. Mentioned in her husband's will 1724, buried at Droxford co. Hants 6 Feb, 1764, and had issue:—

Edmundus Haselwood qui habuit = Jane filia et hæres. Le Neve was right in suspecting the old parchment deed mentioned by him to be a forgery. Jane was not née Billington, but the dau. of Wm. and Eliz. Chaunterell, since John C. clerk p'son of seynt peter's in Westchepe of Lond. says in his will (Bennett 34) "I bequeth to my sister-in-lawe Eliz. Chaunterell wife to my bro. Wm. Haselwoode whose soule God p'done, I p'don him x^s." Will dat. 18 July and prov. in Lond. 20 Jan. 1509-10. And as an additional proof that the pedigree ment^d by Le Neve was forged John Chauntrell clerke, parson of Lytleborough and Quynnton co. Northton. (nephew of former) mentions in his will (Allen 26) dat. and prov. in Lond. 1546 my bro. Robert C. of Faxton, co. Northampton Esq. and my cosyn (i.e. nephew) John Haselwoode of Maythwell.

And Jane in will (Allenger 32) dat. 10, pr. 26 July 1541, in Lond. describes herself thus, "of London, widlowe, late wife of Master Edmund Hasilwoode, Esq. sometime wanyerne of the King's Jale of the Flete in the subberbes of London. My body to be buried in ch. of St. Brides under the tombe where my husband lyethe." "I make oversears of my will my welbeloved bro. Robt. Chaunterell and my bro. John C. clark."

THE Dunsby Family of Green is descended from Stephen Grene of Milthorpe in the parish of Aslackby, co. Lincoln, gentleman, who lived in the reign of King James I. His son John Greene "the elder," of Dunsby Hall in the Aveland Hundred of the Kesteven division of the county, gentleman, possessed lands at Dunsby, Aslackby, Hacconby, Langtoft, Thorpe, Burgh in the Marsh, Gosberton and Surfleet, as appears by his will (which was proved at Lincoln 3 Aug. 1693) and by the marriage settlements on his daughter-in-law Mary Toller, dated 15 March 168 $\frac{1}{2}$. By Mary his wife, who died before him, he had issue two sons, John and Richard, and two daughters, Mary and Anne. Mary the eldest married at Dunsby 8 May 1679, John Lilly of Lincoln, gentleman, and had issue. Anne the younger daughter died unmarried and was buried at Dunsby 16 Sept. 1670.

* He was the eldest son and heir of Francis B., of Toletorpe, esq., by Margaret, dau. of Robert Matthew, of Bradden, Northants, esq., who d. 11 May, 33 Hen. VIII. He purchased, between the period of his father's death at Toletorpe, on the day of St. Martin-the-Bishop, in winter, in the 10 Hen. VIII. and the 14 of Hen. VIII., the manor of Casterton Parva, formerly belonging to the Lords Scrope of Bolton. At the time of his death, Anthony his son and heir was 26 years of age, and was Sheriff of Rutland, in the 37 Hen. VIII., the 5th of Mary, and 13th of Elizabeth. Fras. was Sheriff of Rutland in the 16th Hen. VIII., and on the 6th of July, 18 Hen. VIII., obtained letters patent from the Crown, exempting him from the duty of serving upon juries, and from serving the offices of Sheriff or Escheator, and authorizing him to appear with his head covered in the presence of the King, his heirs, and successors, and of all great men, Lords spiritual and temporal, and other persons whomsoever of the kingdom. It is said these privileges were granted to him for the good services performed by Christopher Browne, his father; but the letters patent, copied at length in Fuller, contain no intimation of any such services. Christopher (the father) came over with Hen. VII., and assisted him against Richard III. He served the office of Sheriff of Rutland in the 8th and 16th Hen. VII. and 1st Hen. VIII. He was dead in 1518-9. His first wife was Grace, dau. and coh. of John Pinchbeck (arg. on a bend sa. a bezant in chief) esq., of Lincolnshire, and his second was a dau. of Bedingfield, Norf.

Margery Mackworth, a younger sister of Lucy, bapt. 27 Mar. 1572, mar. 1 Dec. 1598, Geoffrey (or Jeffery) Colville, younger son of John Colville of Newton, in the Isle of Ely, esq., a fact which accounts for the baptism recorded above.

|| I am inclined to think she was a dau. of Boniface Pickering, of Tichmersh. Northants. Dorothy, eldest dau. of Fras. Browne, married Gilbert, eldest son of Boniface Pickering, of Tichmersh. Robert Browne, clerk, third son of Fras., was Rector of Achurch, Northants, and founder of the religious sect called after him, Brownists. He died in 1636, aged about 80, a prisoner in Northampton jail, to which he had been committed for assaulting a parish constable who came to demand a rate of him.

* Ann Pickering was probably another dau. of Boniface Pickering, alluded to above, but the name of the husband I do not find in the pedigree of the Belvills, in Camden's Visit of Hunts (Cam. Soc.) 1613.

† See 'East Anglian,' vol. iii., pp. 157. 172. 186.

‡ He mar. at Ridlington, 10 Sept. 1638, Elizabeth, dau. of Sir Edw. Harington, Bart. of that place, and Margaret (dau. and coh. of John Doyley of Merton, Oxon, esq.) his wife.

§ He became President, under the East India Company, at Bantam. He mar. Margaret, dau. of John Dobson of Ireland, and left issue two dau^s, Margaret, mar. in Ireland, and Mary, mar. Hanset of Norwich.

|| He settled at Stamford, and mar. a dau. of Hen. Hastings of Humberstone, co. Leicester, esq. In the family pedigree her name is not named, but from my notes from St. George's Stamford par. regs. I find that her name was Jane. She is said to have died s. p. in 1666. From the same source I find she had a family, was bur. at St George's, 19 Mar. 1649-50, and Francis, y^e wife of John Browne, gent., bur. THE FAMILY OF RYE, OF NORTH WALSHAM, NORFOLK.

BY WALTER RYE.

I. ROBERT RYE of Smallburgh, in the County of Norfolk, of whom I have given an account in the 'Herald and Genealogist' (vol. viii., p. 401), and whose will dated 20 Aug. 1535, is there printed, had two sons William and Thomas, both of whom seem to have removed to North Walsham.

II. WILLIAM, the elder son, was of that place in 1562,* when by his wife A . . . (Agnes?) he had a son,†

1. Robert Rye, bapt. 20 Mar. 1562 (more as to whom hereafter). I should imagine that his first wife died very shortly afterwards, for by 1564 he was married to Ma(rgaret),‡ whom I know from entries in the Court Rolls of N. Walsham and from his will to have been Margaret daur. of Robert Glanford and Alice his wife, who survived him, and by whom he had,

2. Catherine Rye, bapt. 2 Nov. and buried 28 Dec. 1564.

* I have little doubt that he was identical with the William Rye of St. Stephen's, Norwich, where by a wife whose Christian name is not given in the Register he had nine children born to him, viz.:—

1. Barnaby Rye, bapt. 4 Nov. 31. H. VIII. (1540).

2. Margaret Rye, bapt. 21 June 35. H. VIII. (1544).

3. Edward Rye, bapt. 25 June 1547. The first of the very many Ryes who have borne that Christian name which has ever since been the favourite one of the family, and which he probably derived from the popular infant King who had succeeded to the crown some six months previously. He is probably identical with the Edward Rye mentioned in his father's (?) will as owing money to William Rye of Cromer.

4. John Rye, bapt. 30 April 1550 (? buried 15 June in the same year).

5. Agnes Rye, bapt. 20 July 1553.

6. Margaret Rye, bapt. 17 March 1555 (? buried at N. Walsham in 1558).

7. Margaret Rye, bapt. (?) 9 Jan. 1556.

8. Richard Rye, bapt. 10 Feb. 1562 (? buried at N. Walsham 1576).

Some of the family seem to have remained in St. Stephen's parish, for Mrs. Rose Rye, the wife of Alderman William Rye, was buried in the church 31 Mar. 1660.

† And probably a dau. Elizabeth, who was bur. at North Walsham 23 April 1562. The baptisms, etc., in this paper are from the North Walsham registers.

‡ Despite the direction in his will that he should be buried at the chancel end of North Walsham churchyard, it is possible that he and his wife may be the William Rye and Margaret his wife to whom there was a brass at Trimmingham Church.

3. Margaret Rye, bapt. 20 Mar. 1565 and was living in 1589, being mentioned in her father's will of that date.

4. William Rye, bapt. 20 July 1577 and bur. 27 Feb. 1577-8.

5. Alice Rye, bur. 20 Feb. 1578.

6. Ellen Rye, who was living in 1589, when she is described in her father's will as being the wife of William Annison.

In 1583 William Rye seems to have taken some part in parish matters, for in the parish books of that year there is an entry that "there remains in the hands of S. Pull and W. Rye the Sanctus Bell."

By his will* dated 14 Dec. 1589 this William Rye, described as of North Walsham, husbandman, after giving 3s. 4d. to the reparation of the church, directed his body to be buried in the churchyard of N. Walsham at the chancel end, and ordered that fourteen dozens of bread should be given away to the poor on the day of his burial. To Margaret his wife he gave "my parlour that I now remayneth in wth the plauncher over the same and chamber adjoining thereto," and he also gave her yearly half-a-hundred of wood faggots and a hundred of fire faggots. He also left a messuage to the poor of Marshgate in North Walsham, and gives his wife an annuity of £5 and "two swine, six hennis, and a cocke," and mentions lands given to her by Robert Glamfor her father, and also refers to the widow Tungate his wife's sister. To his son Robert he gave his greatest brass pot etc., and various bequests to his son-in-law William Annynson and Ellen his daughter, to William Glamfor the son of John Glamfor and his two other children to his wife's sisters, and to the "too children" of William Rye of Cromer 10s. on condition that the latter should discharge Edward Rye of 30s. which he late had of him. There are also other bequests of 10s. to the children of Fulk Weston his brother-in-law, of 13s. 4d. to the children of — Burney his brother-in-law, to John Rante his servant, to Margaret his daughter his counter, and to Margaret Rye his niece 10s. and to the rest of her sisters 3s. 4d. He died in Nov. 1589, was buried 2 Dec. 1589 at N. Walsham. His son Robert who was his executor proved his will on the 17th April 1590.

III. ROBERT RYE of Marshgate in N. Walsham, who having as before mentioned been bapt. on the 20 Mar. 1562, was in his 28th year when his father died and left him the bulk of his property. He died (æt. 76) in the year 1638, having by his will, dated

* Archy. of Norfolk, 1588-91, 324. Liber 30.

7th Oct. 1628, and wherein he is described as ycoman, directed his body to be buried in the church or churchyard of North Walsham. By his wife Agnes, to whom he left all his moveable goods, he had two* sons, viz.:—

I. John Rye (the elder), bapt. 12 Feb. 1609, to whom his father left all his N. Walsham property held of the manors of Antingham. He was a worsted weaver as appears by his will dated 26 Aug. 1680 (proved 30 Sept. 1680), which will is witnessed by an Edward Rye, weaver. By his wife Margaret, who probably died before he made his will, which does not mention her, he had issue,

i. William Rye (not bapt. at N. Walsham), described by his father's will as his eldest son, and to whom he gave (i.e.) a piece of common ground, which may be that mentioned in the will of Wm. Rye 1589. I know nothing more of this Wm. Rye than that in 1696, his nephew Edmond bequeathed him an annuity.

ii. John Rye (the younger), bapt. at N. Walsham 14 Sept. 1643, was like his father a worsted weaver. His father left him his "Twistering mill and warpinge mill, and all my bobbins and spires and coggs to the said Twistering mill belonging, and my Traver and all my hornes for weavers' use, and two Trendles."

This John Rye by his will dated 1 Aug. 1702 (which is witnessed by one William Rye, and proved 29 April 1710), gave all his lands in Marshgate to his sister Mary Newman subject to an annuity to his sister Esther Pigge.

iii. Sarah Rye, bapt. 22 Sept. 1646, and buried 6 Nov. 1673.

iv. Edmund Rye, bapt. 20 March 1649, to whom his father gave all his lands held of the manor of Antingham Chamberlins. He was buried 18 Feb. 1687, having by his wife Emma had issue (a), John Rye, bapt. 26 Dec. 1672; (b) Edmund Rye, bapt. 24 Feb. 1674, also a worsted weaver, by his will (dated 4 Sept. 1696 and proved 5 Oct. 1696) after leaving legacies to his uncles William and John, and his aunts Esther and Sarah, gave his N. Walsham property to his aunt Mary Newman, his Felmingham property to his aunt Esther Pigg, and made his aunt Mary's husband John Newman his sole executor, and (c) Mary Rye, bur. 4 Oct. 1682.

* He possibly had another, as there was a Robert Rye of North Walsham the son of Robert Rye bapt. 10 Aug. 1606, who may however be the son of Robert Rye of Eastgate. A Robert Rye, probably he who was bapt. 1606, mar. Mary . . . and had two sons; John bapt. 24 Nov. 1642, and Samuel bapt. 13 July 1643.

v. Robert Rye, bapt. 3 Dec. 1651, and buried 2 Nov. 1661.

vi. Esther Rye, born 23 Feb. 1653, married John Pigge, and was living in 1702.

vii. Elizabeth Rye, born 17 July 1657.

viii. Mary Rye, bapt. 28 Aug. 1659, married John Newman, and was living in 1702.

ix. Margaret Rye, bur. 28 Jan. 1668.

2. Edward Rye, the elder (of whom hereafter).

IV. EDWARD RYE, the elder, to whom his father Robert gave all his Swaffield property, was a worsted weaver. By his will dated 20 June 1662 he gave (subject to his wife's life estate) all his Swaffield property to his son William, and his N. Walsham property among his sons and daughter, Edward, Robert, and Anne. He had issue by his wife Anne, who was living when he made his will in 1662, and probably died in 1689,

1. Margaret Rye, bapt. 19 July 1643 and bur. 6 Dec. 1659.

2. Agnes Rye, bapt. 14 Oct. 1645.

3. William Rye (of whom hereafter).

4. Edward Rye the younger, bapt. 20 Mar. 1649. His will is dated 5 Mar. 1669. He is there described as of Swaffield, gentleman, and gives thereby some meadow land in Swaffield to his sister Miriall, the wife of the Rev. Jas. Fenton, and the residue of his Swaffield property to his eldest brother William subject to an annuity of £10 to his sister Katherine Harmer. He also mentions his kinsman Charles Harmer. His will was proved in 1671.

5. Robert Rye, bapt. 22 Feb. 1652, was "of N. Walsham, gentleman," when he made his will on the 24th May 1676. By it (after a charitable bequest to the poor of N. Walsham) he left all his lands in N. Walsham, Edinthorpe, Paston, Backton, Mundisly, Trunch, Gyvingham, and Galdeston to his brother William Rye, gent., and among other legacies to his kinsfolk left £500 to his nephew Wm., the son of Wm. Rye who was then under 16.

6. Alice Rye, bapt. 16 Dec. 1654. Probably identical with

7. . . . Rye, the infant . . . of Edw. Rye sen. bur. 7 July 1657.

8. Sarah Rye, bapt. 5 May 1661 and living in 1662, when she is mentioned in her father's will.

9. Anne Rye, mar. John Coldman, gent., by whom she had two sons Francis and Richard (vide her brother Richard's will).

10. Miriall Rye, mar. the Rev. John Fenton (vide her brother Edward's will).

11. Katherine Rye, mar. . . . Harmer and had a son Richard (vide her brother Robert's will).

12. Mary Rye, mar. . . . Bates and had a son Richard (vide do).

V. WILLIAM RYE, the eldest son of Edward Rye the elder and Anne his wife, was bapt. 30 Mar. 1648, and was afterwards known as Wm. Rye the elder of N. Walsham, gent., by which style he was described in his will, which he made on the 11 Dec. 1682, when, after a bequest to the poor of Swaffield, he gave an annuity of £20 charged on his N. Walsham property to Dorothy his wife,* by whom he had,

1. John Rye, who took all his father's N. Walsham property (of whom hereafter).

2. William Rye, who was under 16 in 1676 (vide his uncle Robert's will), and who took under his father's will all his Edingthorpe, Paston, Bacton, Knapton and Gaweston property, charged with an annuity of £15 to the testator's wife Dorothy. These properties he took in satisfaction of the legacy of £500 bequeathed him by his uncle Robert.†

3. Elizth Rye, mar. . . . Woorts. Probably the Wm. Woorts mentioned in the will of John Rye of Scottow 1691.

* Her will, in which she is described as of Swaffield, widow, is dated 29 Nov. 1689, and mentions her two sons John and Wm., and her dau. Elizth Woorts.

† I cannot with certainty identify this Wm. Rye. At one time I thought he was the same as Wm. Rye of Trunch, cordweyner, whose will is dated 10 Nov. 1691; (this Wm. Rye of Trunch was no doubt of this branch. His ex'or was Mr. Woorts, who married Wm. Rye's sister. He had a son Robert Rye (who first mar. Susan, who d. 1606, and secondly Dorothy, who d. 1710), and a daughter Mary Rye, who was under age in 1691); but as the latter had a son Robert, who was old enough to be married and have his wife die in 1696, and the former was na. post 1660 (under 16 in 1676), I have abandoned this theory, and now consider he may have been Wm. Rye of N. Walsham and Stibton (the ancestor of the Ryes of Thelmetham and Hepworth), whose will is dated 1 Nov. 1703. If, as I suppose hereafter, that his elder brother John was identical with John Rye of Scottow, the latter's will (1721-2) affords two curious instances of coincidences with the will of Wm. Rye of N. Walsham and Stibton (1703).

John Rye of Scottow mentions Sarah Clarke, the dau. of Joseph Clarke of N. Walsham, his kinsman, while Wm. Rye's will refers to his dau. Mary, the wife of Joseph Clarke of Edenthorp. John Rye also refers to his old acquaintance Benjn. Ward of Norwich, and the Rev. Nathl. Rye (grandson of Wm. Rye) in his will, dated 1654, refers to his cousin Benjn. Ward of Norwich. Still the question is a very difficult one, and the balance of evidence is in favour of Wm. Rye of Stibton being the son of Wm. and Joan Rye.

VI. JOHN RYE,* who took all his father's N. Walsham property, married Mary (died 1710 ?) and by her had,

1. Elizth Rye, born 27 Dec. 1681 and bapt. 5 Jan. 1684.
2. John Rye, bapt. 23 Dec. 1688.
3. William Rye, bapt. 9 Nov. 1689. Probably the William Rye who married Mary English in 1716, and had issue,
 - i. Matthew Rye, bapt. 21 Oct. 1715.
 - ii. Mary Rye, bapt. 1721.
4. ? Mary Rye, bur. 20 Aug. 1691.
5. Joyce Rye, bapt. 20 June 1691, and mar. Robert Woodrow 26 Oct. 1724.
6. Rose Rye, bur. 21 Jan. 1693.
7. Thomas Rye, bapt. 19 Nov. 1694, and bur. 16 Feb. 1695.
8. Martha Rye, bapt. 15 Dec. 1695, and bur. 25 Dec. 1695.
9. Thomas Rye, bapt. 20 Dec. 1696, and bur. 1697.
10. Catherine Rye, bapt. 22 Dec. 1697, and bur. 1 Aug. 1697.

IIA. THOMAS RYE of N. Walsham, the second son of Robert Rye of Smallburgh, had seven or eight children, of whom three left issue, viz. William Rye (whose descendants were long settled at Cromer, and from whom is descended Walter Rye, the author of this account), Edward Rye, and Robert Rye.

IIIA. EDWARD RYE, the second son of Thomas Rye, was bapt. at N. Walsham on the 6th June 1563. He was generally known as Edward Rye the elder, and sold lands in Antingham, Felmingham and N. Walsham to John Howes, and other lands in the same places to Richard Harmer. By his will dated 18 Aug. 1627, he directed his body to be buried in the church or chancel of North Walsham, and gave to his wife Joan a life estate in his houses and lands at Swaffield in consideration of her releasing her dower in the lands

* The will of John Rye of Scottow, cordweyner, with whom I think he was identical, is dated 15 Jan. 1721-2. All his freehold and copyhold property is given to Joseph Brown of Scottow for ever. He mentions his old acquaintance Benj'n Ward of Norwich. To Joseph Raymers of Scottow, £5 on his attaining 21. To Sarah Clarke the daughter of Joseph Clarke of N. Walsham, yeoman, his kinsman, £5 on her attaining 21. To Thomas Rye, son of Thomas Rye of N. Walsham, his kinsman, £5 on his attaining 21. etc. The will was proved 12 Feb. 1725-6.

he had sold, and in certain lands in N. Walsham and Swaffield which he had lately given to his son Edward, and in the other property bequeathed to his said son as mentioned hereafter. He left a sum of money to buy a house for such of the poor of North Walsham as were lame and impotent, and directed his son to bestow £20 in charity on the day of his burial, and also left four marks to his daughter Alice to buy her a piece of plate, and a similar legacy to his other daughter Joan, the wife of William Rye, to whose issue he left £100. He must have died * shortly after making his will, which was proved 20th Oct. 1627, and was not long survived by his wife, who by her will dated 30 April 1628, directed her body to be buried in the church of Bradfield, and divided her property amongst her grandchildren Edward Rye the elder, Edward Rye the younger, Alice Rye, and John Gaye. She died the same year. Their issue were,

1. The Reverend Edward Rye, bapt. 8 May 1597, who took under his father's will lands in N. Walsham, Swaffield, Trunch, Knapton, Tottington and Felmingham. He was of Corpus Christi Coll. Cam., to which he was admitted in 1615. A.M. in 1622 (vide Master's Hist. of C. C. C., Appendix ii. p. 41). He was rector of Egmore, to which he was presented on the 27 July 1626, and which he resigned 5 Feb. 1632. He died 5 Dec. 1657, and was buried at N. Walsham. His wife Margaret predeceased him and was buried in Swaffield church, where there is, or recently was, a marble tombstone on the floor inscribed:—

“Here lieth the Body of Margarett Rie the wife of Edward Rie clark who departed in the faith of Christ full of good workes Auguste the 15th 1645. Here also lieth the body of Edward Rie gent. her son who departed March the 5th 1669 y^rterq^a beatam resurrectionem Prætolans.”

He had issue:—

- i. Katherine Rye, bapt. 1 July 1631.
- ii. William Rye, bapt. 22 Jan. 1632. He may possibly be the William Rye of N. Walsham and Stibton, whose will is dated 1703, who was the ancestor of the Ryes of Theltham and Hepworth.

* His death was presented by the homage of the Manor of N. Walsham.

III. Edward Rye, gentleman, obit. 5 Mar. 1669, and bur. at Swatfield.

2. Agnes Rye, bapt. 18 April 1595.

3. Alice Rye, living in 1627, by which time she had married William Gaye and had a son John.

4. Robert Rye, bapt. 14 April 1605.

5. Joan Rye, bapt. 8 March 1600, and married her cousin William Rye.

I cannot trace any descendants of this branch of the family, and expect their property went to Wm. Rye through his wife Joan.

IIIB. ROBERT RYE, the last of the three fruitful sons of Thomas Rye, was bapt. 14 Oct. 1575. He was of Eastgate in N. Walsham, and on the 19 Feb. 1598 married Anne Gogyll at N. Walsham, by whom he had issue,

1. William Rye (of whom hereafter).

2. Elizabeth Rye, bapt. 16 Nov. 1602.

3. Robert Rye, bapt. 10 Aug. 1606. He may however be the son of Robert Rye of Marshgate, but I think not. He is probably identical with the Robert Rye who married Mary . . . and had issue John bapt. 24 Nov. 1642, and Samuel bapt. 12 July 1643.

He died before 1629 as is mentioned in a surrender of his son's in 1664, at which date his widow Anne was living.

IVB. WILLIAM RYE, bapt. 2 Nov. 1600, was "of Norwich, gentleman," and no doubt a merchant there. He may be identical with William Rye, sheriff of Norwich in 1645, who I fear was the person who acted as one of the committee to view and demolish pictures and crucifixes in Norwich (vide Bl. No. 2, p. 273).*

Joan his wife (who was also his cousin, daur. of Edward Rye), predeceased him and was bur. 29 Aug. 1650, at N. Walsham. Shortly after he seems to have moved to Trunch (where his brother-in-law the Rev. Edward Rye had property), as there is an entry in the

* After all it may turn out that this name was Pye and not Rye, vide Bl. N. 2, p. 279.

N. Walsham register of the burial at Trunch on the 20 Mar. 1658 of "— Bane a maydservant of Will'm Rye gen'." He seems to have married again, for "Margaret the wife of Mr. William Rye" was buried at N. Walsham 5 Oct. 1658. "Mrs. Rose Rye late the wife of Alderman William Rye" was buried "under the same stone that her first husband William Heath lyeth, on the 31 March 1660," at St. Stephen's, Norwich,* by which it would seem he must have married once again, if there were not two Wm. Ryes of Norwich living at the same time in a good position. St. Stephen's, it will be remembered, was the parish in which Wm. Rye was settled in 1542, and it is possible that like many well-to-do merchants of this period the Ryes may have carried on business at Norwich, and had a country house at N. Walsham. In 1622 there was a Geremy Rye, one of the chief of the Company of Combers of Norwich, who is referred to in a letter of Charles Cornwallice to John Kettle, died 3 Dec. 1622. (Norw. City Records.)

To return to William Rye,† it appears by the N. Walsham Court Rolls that in 1664 William Rye, gentleman, surrendered all his messuages and tenements held of that manor which were then in the use or occupation of Anne Rye, widow, and Richard Bloome, situate in N. Walsham and Paston, which the said Wm. Rye with Joanna his late wife had after the decease of Robert Rye his father, at a Court held 11 Mar. 4 Chas. I. (1629) etc., to the intent that the same might be re-granted to the said William Rye, and to Edward Rye of Felmingham, worsted weaver, and Anne his wife, viz., to Wm. Rye for life, remainder to Edward Rye and the heirs of his

* Mackarell.

† On the 8 Sept. 1665, Wm. Payne and Cecilia his wife released to Wm. Rye, then of Stibton in Suffolk, but late of N. Walsham, all their right in certain premises they had surrendered to him in 1658,* and at the same court Edward Rye of N. Walsham, grocer, released to Wm. Rye, gent., all his right on the premises in the occupation of Anne Rye, widow, and Richard Bloome. This Wm. Rye of Stibton, Suff., was no doubt identical with the Wm. Rye jun. gent., of Leddon, Suffolk, to whom Wm. Rye sen. gent., on 9 Oct. 1665 surrendered a piece of land at N. Walsham.

There can be little doubt he was Wm. Rye the elder's eldest son by his first wife Joan, and that he took his mother's property, and the fact of his being so provided would account for his not being mentioned in the Wm. Rye elder's will dated 1674.

* This proves he was then of age, or born before 1637.

body, remainder to the right heirs of William Rye,* subject to an annuity of £12 to Anne Rye.

William Rye senior, gent., on the 6 Dec. 1665, surrendered to the use of his will, which is dated at N. Walsham 25 May 1674. In it he gave £4 to the poor of N. Walsham, and 20s. to the poor of Binham to be distributed by his daughter Alice, the wife of Timothy Mann of Binham. He gave all the premises in N. Walsham and Paston, which were of his father Robert Rye, to his eldest† son Edward Rye of N. Walsham and his heirs, remainder to his youngest son Edward Rye for life, remainder to his grandchild Wm. Rye the son of his (the testator's) youngest son Edward and his heirs, remainder to his grandchild Thomas Rye and his heirs, remainder to his grandchild Edward Rye his heirs and assigns for ever. He gave all his Swaffield property to his grandchild Alice absolutely, subject to an annuity of £4 to Alice Mann. All his residue he left to his grandchild Alice Rye, whom he made his sole executrix. His will was witnessed by John Rye and Richard Lubbocke. I do not know when he died, or where he was buried. He had issue (besides Wm. Rye of Stibton, whom I take to have been his son by his first wife, and of whom and whose descendants I will speak hereafter) the following :—

I. Edward Rye the elder,‡ who seems to have had issue three daughters only, viz.:—

1. Alice Rye, the residuary legatee and executrix under her grandfather's will, who by her own will, which she made on the 19 March 1680, gave all her lands in N. Walsham and Swaffield to her two sisters Elizth and Mary, and all the residue of her estate to her father.

She was buried 28 March 1681, and her will was proved on the 14 April 1681.

II. Elizabeth Rye. { Her sisters just named. The
III. Mary Rye. { last named may be the Mary Rye bur. 4 Dec. 1709.

* This proves that Edward Rye of Felmingham was not Wm. Rye's eldest son, or such a limitation would have been unnecessary.

† If this were meant in its present sense, then of course Wm. Rye of Stibton could not have been Wm. the elder's eldest son. But I think it means elder in contradistinction to younger, he having two sons named Edward.

‡ He is not of course the Edward, son of Wm. Rye gent., and Mary his wife, bapt. 27 Dec., as that would make him 18 only at the date of his father's will, when his younger brother had grandchildren.

2. Edward Rye the younger (of whom hereafter).
3. Alice Rye, married Timothy Mann of Binham.

VB. EDWARD RYE the younger, grocer, was buried 30 June 1693. He married Mary, dau. of Joyce the widow of Joseph Wilgress, from whom she took certain copyhold property in N. Walsham, to which she was admitted in 1664. His widow survived him till 1710, when there is an entry in the N. Walsham register, "1710, 17 Nov., Mrs. Mary Rye in Linning." By her will she left her messuage, etc., at N. Walsham in the occupation of John Greene, to her son Edward upon condition that he should pay her debts. Her house in the occupation of Thomas Swann and Thos. Benington, she left to Thos. Swann and (her daughter) Ann his wife for their lives, remainder to her son Edward Rye for life, remainder to her grandson William Rye and his heirs. Her will was proved 12 Dec. 1710.

Her issue were :—

1. William Rye, mentioned in his grandfather's will 1674.
2. Thomas Rye (of whom hereafter), bapt. 20 Nov. 1650.
3. Joyce Rye, born 24 Dec. 1651, bapt. 25 Jan. 1652.
4. Joseph Rye, bapt. 11 Jan. 1654. Possibly the Joseph Rye who by his wife Mary had a son Samuel, bapt. 1709.
5. Ayles Rye, born 11 Jan. 1656.
6. Margaret Rye, buried 6 Dec. 1659.
7. Edward Rye,* bapt. 21 June 1661. By his will dated 1711, he gave his lands to his sister Ann Swann, in trust to sell. He mentions his kinsman Edward Rye.
8. Mary Rye, born 24 June, and bapt. 28 Aug. 1659, and bur. 23 June 1665.
9. Mary Rye, bapt. 23 May 1667.
10. Elizabeth Rye, bapt. 19 August 1664. By her will dated 27 Nov. 1701, and proved 6 Jan. 1702, she gave to

* Cotemporary with him was another Edward Rye, who married Mary Gardener, and by her had :—

1. Edward Rye, bapt. 19 Feb. 1704, and buried 19 April 1705.
2. Mary Rye, bapt. 4 Jan. 1706.
3. Edward Rye, bapt. 1708, and buried 17 July 1708.
4. Alice Rye, bapt. 16 Feb. 1710, and buried 30 January 1712.
5. James Rye, 1712.
6. Edward Rye, bapt. 19 Aug. 1715.
7. John Rye, bapt. 23 April 1720.

{ This James Rye was probably the James Rye of Felbrigg, who by will dated 24 Mar. 1765 bequeathed £130 each to his two brothers Edward Rye and John Rye.

He secondly married Sarah and had issue,

8. Lydia Rye, bapt. 14 June 1723.

her mother Mary a meadow at Swaffield, and a close at Marshgate, N. Walsham, for life, and left bequests to Wm. Rye, the son of her late brother Thomas, to her brother-in-law John Harmer, to Alice Rye a daughter of her said brother Thomas, etc., and mentions her mother's lands at Walcot, her sister Anne Swan, the wife of Thomas Swan of N. Walsham, and her sister (-in-law?) Mrs. Rose Rye, widow.

11. Anne Rye, who married Thos. Swann, and was alive in 1701.

12. . . . Rye, who married John Harmer.

VIB. THOMAS RYE, who was bapt. 20 Nov., 1650, may be the Thomas Rye who was admitted to the freedom of the city of Norwich 7 Dec. 1683. He was dead by the date of the birth of his youngest son Wm., who was a posthumous son, bapt. 14 Nov. 1699.

He seems to have married thrice. By his first wife, Mary, he had—

1. Thomas Rye, bapt. 22 Dec. 1688 (of whom hereafter).

2. Catherine (?) Rye, bur. 19 Feb. 1684.

By his second wife, Alice, who was bur. 25 Oct. 1692, he apparently had one daughter only—

3. Alice Rye, bapt. 15 Nov. 1691.

By his third wife, Rose, four children, viz.—

4. Edward Rye, bapt. 11 July, 1694, and who is probably the Edward Rye who married Catherine . . . and had issue—

i. Anne Rye, bapt. 12 Sept. 1718.

ii. Catherine Rye, bapt. 27 Nov. 1719.

His wife Catherine may be the Catherine Rye buried in the churchyard 12 June, 1723-4.

5. Mary Rye, bapt. 7 July, 1696.

6. Elizabeth Rye, bapt. 25 April, 1698.

7. William Rye, bapt. 14 Nov. 1699.

VIIb. THOMAS RYE, bapt. 22 Dec. 1688, was of North Walsham, hosier. By his first wife, Hannah, he had issue—

1. Hannah Rye, bapt. 15 Sept. 1700,* and married Matthew Read.

2. Thomas Rye, bapt. 30 July, 1702. Probably died an infant, as his father afterwards had another son Thomas, and

* I can only account for a man bapt. in 1688 having a child in 1700 by presuming he was not baptized till he attained a comparatively mature age.

the fashion of having two sons of the same Christian name was then dying out.

By his second wife, Anne, he had—

3. Thomas Rye, bapt. 26 July, 1706 (of whom hereafter).

His will is dated 5 April, 1731, and by it he gave to Anne his beloved wife all his premises and lands in N. Walsham for life, with remainder to his son Thomas and his heirs for ever, charged with the payment to testator's daughter Hannah, the wife of Matthew Read, of £20, and to Ann Read, his god-daughter, of £5. He was buried 8 May, 1732.

VIII.B. THOMAS RYE, who was bapt. 26 July, 1706, was of N. Walsham, wool-comber. He is called a kinsman in the will of John Rye of Scottow, dated 1721-2, but I cannot succeed in tracing the relationship. His will is dated 11 Dec. 1769, and by it he gave, after the decease of his wife Mary, certain cottages in Hall Lane, N. Walsham, to his son-in-law Richard Robinson, and also after his wife's death the house then in his own occupation to his son Thomas, subject to the payment of £180 owing to his son-in-law Richard Robinson. He died 23 Feb. 1771, and lies buried in North Walsham churchyard, where there is a stone inscribed—

Here resteth in hopes of a Joyfull resurrection the Body of Thomas Rye, who died February 23rd, 1771, aged 64 years.

Besides a daughter, who married Richard Robinson,* he had a son—

IX.B. THOMAS RYE, born 1734, died 4 August, 1797, was also a wool-comber of N. Walsham. He married Susanna Yallop born 1736, and died 1812.

By his will, dated 8 April 1796, he bequeathed all his N. Walsham property to his son Thomas, subject to the enjoyment by his wife Susanna of the kitchen chamber† and an annuity of £20, and to a legacy of £60 to his son Rowland and of £100 to his son William. He lies buried in N. Walsham churchyard with his wife, to whom there are the following inscriptions—

Sacred to the memory of Thomas Rye, who departed this life the 4th of August 1797, aged 61 years.

And,

Sacred to the memory of Susanna Rye, who departed this life Oct. 11, 1812, aged 86.

1. Thomas Rye (of whom hereafter).
2. Rowland Rye, vix. 1796; said to have died young. There was a Rowland Rye born in Erpingham hundred as recently as 1843, so he may have left descendants.
3. William Rye, born 1767. A linendraper and merchant of Norwich, of which town he was sheriff. He married Alice, but died without issue on 1 Dec. 1834. There is a tablet to his memory in the church of St. Peter Mancroft, inscribed as follows :—

In a vault beneath are deposited the remains of William Rye, esquire, upwards of 40 years an inhabitant of this parish, who died Dec. 1st 1834, aged 67 years. Also the remains of Alice Rye, his wife, who died February 29, 1852, aged 88 years. Christ is all in all.

XB. THOMAS RYE, a farmer of N. Walsham, voted in 1802 for Wodehouse, for a freehold there. He had issue—

1. Thomas Rye (of whom hereafter).
 2. William Rye.
 3. Richard Rye.
 4. Susanna Rye.
 5. Mary Rye.

SHANK OF CASTLERIG.

IN the second volume of Nisbet's "Heraldry" are given genealogical accounts of a number of Scottish families, "which neither Mr. Nisbet nor the publisher are any ways answerable for; they must stand upon the faith of those who gave them, and the vouchers they adduce for their support." So says the editor in his Preface, and certainly he was wise thus to disclaim responsibility, as a critical examination would without difficulty shew that for many of the statements made no vouchers could be produced.

The account of the family whose name heads this article is one of those most open to criticism, both in its original form and in the more developed state in which it reappeared in Burke's "Landed Gentry" 1847, and in the subsequent editions. It is not given in Douglas' "Baronage" 1798; nor in Burke's "Commoners" 1833-1838.

"Shank of that Ilk was a very ancient family in Mid-Lothian, where to this day it gives name to a plentiful fortune." This is rather unintelligible. The lands of Shank, which lie in the parishes of Cockpen and of Borthwick, belonged, long before the earliest portion of Nisbet's "Heraldry" appeared, to the Dundases of Arniston, and are still in the possession of that family, who, however, have never taken their designation from them. The name does not occur at all in the Great Seal Register down to 1424, nor in the Index of Missing Charters; there is no service of a Shank of Shank, and the name is not to be found in the Chartularies of Newbotle, St. Giles, Holyrood, the collegiate churches of Mid-Lothian, or the Acts of the Scottish Parliament. The only persons of the name of whom I have found traces are resident in Leith and its vicinity, and seem to have been in a very mediocre station.

I. Murdoch, a younger son of this family, is said to have settled in Kinghorn in Fife in the reign of Robert Bruce, and got lands there Anno 1319. This statement is improved upon in the "Landed Gentry," as Murdoch Shank "is said to have been the person who discovered and took charge of the body of Alexander III., King of Scotland, who met his death while hunting in 1286, and for this service the lands of Castlerig were presented to him by Robert Bruce." This tradition had already appeared along with an engraving of the late Mr. Henry Shank's arms in Burke's "Heraldic Illustrations." The lineage goes on to say that these lands of Castlerig are mentioned in a charter of confirmation of the mortification of a chapel and hospital in Kinghorn, A.D. 1360. This is not the case. The charter quoted, I know not from what chartulary, and no reference is given, in Nisbet's "Heraldry," merely describes the lands conveyed as bounded by terras Roberti Shank ex parte occidentali et boreali.

Spottiswoode, in his "List of Religious Houses in Scotland," does not give an hospital at Kinghorn, and I have been unable to find evidence of the existence of such an establishment.

These lands are said "to have remained in the possession of the family a period of nearly six hundred years," Supposing the date of acquisition correctly given, it might have been as well to have said above five hundred years, the precise term being five hundred and twenty-eight, but this is mere matter of detail.

The pedigree follows.

II. Robert Shank married Isabel Irvine. In the "Landed Gentry" she is called Mabel, and the family name is, till the thirteenth generation, spelt Schank.

III. John married — Kirkaldy.

IV. Henry married Christian, daughter of Melville of Raith; was infest in 1442. This marriage is not given in the lineage of the Melville family, and it would require strong proof to overcome the presumption against it.

V. Martin married Alison, daughter of Boswell of Glasmont in 1482. In the "Landed Gentry" her father is styled Glassmount Boswell of Balmuto.

Glassmount is not a Christian name, but the name of an estate long held by the Balmuto family, and from which they frequently took their designation.

There is in Douglas's "Baronage" rather a carefully compiled account of the Boswells, giving the names of daughters and their husbands, with dates of contracts of marriage, but the alliance with Martin Shank does not appear.

VI. Martin married Bessie Lochore, and was infest 1520.

VII. Henry, 1565, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Balfour of Ballo.

VIII. Henry married in 1609 Janet, daughter of Robert Cunningham of Woodfield. In 1678 Robert Cunningham of Woodfield is a witness to the baptism of one of the children of Henry Shank. As I have to express disbelief in the pretensions of the family, I am glad to be able to contribute two facts omitted by them. In 1631 Henric Schanks is one of the Fellows of the Society for Fisheries incorporated by Royal Charter; and in 1643 Henry Shank, doubtless the same person, sat in Parliament for the burgh of Kinghorn; and in 1497 Ninian Shank was Provincial Prior in Scotland of the Dominicans.

IX. Martin married Christian, daughter of John Reddie, shipmaster in Burntisland 1640; the modern pedigree calls him John Reddie of Burnt Island. This is an existing family of whom some notices occur in the "Gleanings from the Records of Dysart," and elsewhere from 1600 onwards. They were traders and owners of houses and small pieces of land. John Reddy was bailie of Dysart soon after the middle of the seventeenth century, and his representative is John Griffith Reddie of Redhouse, in the parish of Auchterderran. No arms have ever been allowed to the family of Reddie.

X. Henry married in 1669 Agnes daughter of Alexander Balfour in Belgawie, called in the "Landed Gentry" Balfour of Balgowie, and had:—

Alexander.

The register of marriages, Kinghorn, only commences in 1683, but there are recorded the baptisms of the children of this Henry and Agnes: Martin, 1670; Henry, 1672; Christian, 1674; Elizabeth, 1676; Alexander, 1678;

Mary, 1681; and Elizabeth, 1683. The father was a baillie of Kinghorn 1670, and is sometimes designed "late Baillie," but never "of Castlerig." He appears, however, in the Valuation Roll of Fife 1695 as owner of land in the parish of Kinghorn worth £48 Scots of yearly rent, i.e., £4 sterling.

XI. Martin married Margaret daughter of Thomas Downie, merchant in Edinburgh. The Downies were a family of respectable merchant burgesses and ship-masters, and held for three generations the small property of Binend near Burntisland, but had never a right to bear arms.

It is not stated in "Nisbet," but the "Landed Gentry" supplies the fact that Martin Schank was minister of the parish of Banchory-Ternan in Kincardineshire. I find from the "Fasti Ecclesiæ Scoticanæ" that he graduated at St. Andrew's 1690, and was minister of Auchtertool 1694, Newhills 1696, previous to his settlement at Banchory-Ternan in 1699. He died 18th April 1747, leaving an only son.

XII. Alexander Shank of Castlerig, representative of the family at the time of the publication of Nisbet's "Heraldry." He is there said to have married Mary daughter of Mr. John Burnet, minister of Monymusk in Aberdeenshire, of the family of Burnet of Leys. The modern account calls Mrs. Schank's father Sir Alexander Burnet, Baronet, of Leys, which is a mistake. It is possible that he may have been a cadet of the family, but the careful researches of the present Lyon King of Arms into the history of the family of Burnett have not discovered his descent. Mr. Shank left a legacy of £100 to the poor of his father's parish, and charitable bequests by others of the family are specified in the "Fasti." They had one son Alexander who predeceased his father, who was served heir-general to him 27 January 1747, so on the death of that gentleman Castlerig and Gleniston passed under a Deed of Entail executed by him 13 March 1769 to his kinsman the Rev. Alexander Schank or Shank, minister of St. Cyrus, Kincardine, descended from,

XI.^A Alexander, younger son of Henry and Agnes Balfour. He was settled as minister of Drumoak in Aberdeenshire 1703. The "Fasti" inform us that he married 4 December 1705 Elizabeth Burnett of the parish of Banchory-Ternan, and died 6 March 1749, in the 73rd year of his age, having had seven children, of whom William, minister of Brechin, died in 1744, in his 29th year.

XII.^A Alexander Schank, minister of Arbuthnott, married Jane daughter of Bailie Gordon, and died 3 January 1780, in his 72nd year. He had issue,

1. Alexander.

2. William, minister of Fetteresso, co. Kincardine, died unmarried in his 29th year 2 July 1763.—"Fasti."

3. John, minister of Arbuthnott, co. Kincardine, 1780, died unmarried 10 December 1818, in his 70th year.—"Fasti." This gentleman originally studied law, and afterwards theology, residing in his father's house, but never attending a divinity hall. This caused opposition to his obtaining his license as a preacher, and his case, after passing through all the Church Courts, was decided in his favour by the General Assembly in 1780, the minority protesting.

4. Henry.

1. Jean married Kenneth Mackenzie, merchant in Aberdeen, s.p.

XIII. Reverend Alexander Shank of St. Cyrus succeeded to Castlerig, and died, not in 1815 as stated in the "Landed Gentry," but 5 January 1814. He married Diana, daughter of Robert Scott of Duninald, and was father of,

XIV. Henry Shank of Castlerig and Gleniston, co. Fife, and The Villa, Laurencekirk, co. Forfar, whose name heads the earliest article on the family in the "Landed Gentry." He married a sister of Sir James Rivett Carnac, Baronet, Governor of Bombay and Chairman of the East India Company, and his daughter is wife of her kinsman, Sir Sibbald D. Scott, Baronet. Mr. Shank, who was a civil servant of the East India Company, died 4 January 1860, aged 81, and was succeeded by his eldest son, father of the present Henry Alexander Schank of Castlerig, who according to the latest edition of the "Landed Gentry" has again altered the spelling of the name.

The genealogy in Nisbet's "Heraldry" states in conclusion that Mr. Shank bore the same arms given by Sir David Lindsay in his manuscript for Shank of that Ilk,—Gules, on a fess between a cinquefoil in chief, and a falcon's leg or shank, jessed and belled in base argent, a hawk's lure of the first. There is no such coat in that collection, nor any coat for the name of Shank. However, the arms as above described are to be found in Workman's illuminated Manuscript, compiled during the reign of Mary. The name written above the shield is not altogether legible, having been partly obliterated and written over, but it might have been Sawke of yt Ilk; in a more modern hand and paler ink follows: "or Shanks." The coat and name are not in the manuscript of Sir James Balfour, which is very full as to the families of Fifeshire, the county where his property lay; but in Pont's manuscript, later in date, these arms are given for the name of Sauchy and other authorities confirm the correctness of this. They were, however, allowed in 1732 to Alexander Shank of Castlerig by the Lord Lyon at a time when the administration of the office was more lax than it had been under Sir Charles Erskine. Nothing is said of the grantee's descent.

It seems pretty evident that the Shanks were a respectable burgess family of Kinghorn, and acquired a small property in the neighbourhood, probably in the commencement of last century. There is not a single special service of any of the family, and no general service till 1747. The name does not occur once in the chartularies of Dunfermline, St. Andrew's, Lindores, or Bahnerino. Henry Shank, who represented the burgh of Kinghorn in Parliament in 1643, was probably the true founder of the family.

From 1623 to 1645, the baptism of no child of the name is registered at Kinghorn. The statistical accounts of that parish only furnish two facts, that Mr. Shank of Castlerig is owner of some acres of land, and that £100 were bequeathed for the benefit of the poor of Kinghorn by the Reverend Mr. Shank.

Some families of no great antiquity seem to be admitted to a place in works on family history because they are great landowners. This qualification is wanting in the present instance, as the old family property of Castlerig in the parish of Kinghorn, in the printed Valuation Roll of the county of Fife 1867-68, is rated only at a rental of £45, being thirteen acres in extent; and Gleniston, which is in the parish of Auchterderran, and a later acquisition, at £242 10s., being 267 acres.

The "Landed Gentry," editions 1863 and 1871, includes, besides a somewhat abridged reprint of the lineage of the Castlerig family, Schank of Barton House, Devon. It had previously been stated that XII., Alexander Schank of Castlerig, died without surviving issue by his wife Mary Burnet, which is confirmed by his being served heir-general to his only son Alexander. We are now told that they left a son John Schank of Barton House aforesaid, Admiral of the Blue, stated in biographical notices of him to have been born at Castlerig 1740 (Anderson's "Scottish Nation"), or 1746 (Conolly's "Eminent Men of Fife").

I have searched the register of Kinghorn parish, 1737—1750, without finding John Schank's baptism recorded.

Admiral Schank, which rank he attained 9 November 1805, is mentioned in the "Book of Dignities" as a meritorious officer. He built at Quebec and commanded the "Inflexible," 18 guns, and fought her against the revolted colonies on Lake Champlain October 1776, many of her upper timbers having been growing in the forests only ten days before. He seems to have been an authority on naval engineering, and was author of works on that subject.

Admiral Schank died in February 1823, and his only daughter, wife of Admiral John Wight, was mother of John Mackellar Skeene Grieve Wight of Barton House, who 13 June 1843 had permission by Royal license to assume the "surname and arms of Schank in lieu of his patronymic Wight;" his elder brother had died the same year.

Mr. Conolly in his biography of Admiral Schank, not content with carrying his ancestry back to the 13th century, adds that "the Schanks or Shanks are supposed to have been originally Norwegians, who having landed on some predatory expedition on the north-eastern coast, settled there. This we believe frequently to have occurred in respect to all the maritime parts of the island bordering on the Deucalionian sea, and the curious reader has only to turn to Buchanan in order to learn the fluctuating nature of the population of Scotland during the middle ages." Here I leave the question as it has passed from the regions open to genealogical investigation into those of vague speculation.

NOTES ON THE FAMILY OF BOX.

THIS apparently plebeian name was once borne by persons of consideration. 1284 Martin Box was Sheriff of London, and in 1295 Henry Boxe, probably the Sir Henry de Box Knt. who is mentioned in the Roll of Arms temp. Ed. II. published in Palgrave's Parliamentary Writs, amongst the Knights of Sussex and Surrey, as bearing Or, a bend arg. between 6 lioncels gules. Sir Wm. Box was Lord Mayor of London temp. Eliz., and a pedigree of the family is in 'Visitation of London,' 1568. The family would seem to derive its name from the manor of Box or Boxbury in Stevenage co. Herts, where Wm. de Boxe A.D. 1166 held two and a quarter knight's fees of Robert de Valoigns. (Clutterbuck's Herts, ii. 295.) From the printed Catalogue of MSS. in the University Library at Cambridge it appears that in 1247 there was a Wm. Box of Natindon in Kent, and Wm. son of Alan Box gives land at Natindon to the Priory of St. Gregory's, Canterbury, as does also Robert de Valoigns. In 12 Hen. VI. (1433) Wm. Boxe was party to a deed of lands in Goudhurst (Harleian Charters, Brit. Mus. 77 G. 47). Richard Boxe was tenant of the manor of Uckfield co. Sussex temp. Eliz. The name seems to have been somewhat rare, as the following is nearly all that can be gleaned of the persons bearing it in the counties of Kent and Sussex.

Will of William Boxe* of Barkham [Barcombe near Lewes], yeo., dated 16 May; proved 16 Aug. 1620 at Lewes. To Margaret his wife £100, being a Bond of George Beard and Jeremy Beard his brothers-in-law to Robert Carew and Robert Whitpayne. To Anne his eldest d. £28. Richard Fawkner of Laughton yeo., and Richard and George Beard of Rottingdean, yeom. Thomas Beard of Rottingdean and Wm. Hollingdale of Lewes [who mar. Margaret . . .], overseers. Witnesses Wm. Hollingdale and Geo. Chandler. The testator mar. 2ndly, June 9, 1606, at Rottingdean, Susannah d. of John Beard of R., yeo., who was bapt. there 27 May 1582, and bur. at B. June 8, 1617. After the death of the said Testator the names of his issue disappear from the Register, and it is quite possible if not probable that his eldest son Wm. was the Wm. Box of Southboro' in Tunbridge who is rated to the Hearth Tax of 1673.

Richard Boxe of Barcombe yeo. in his will dated 4 Jan. 1554 mentions Jane his wife tunc grvida. Robert Boxe his brother and his son Richard Boxe. Maryan, John and Robert Boxe, and his (testator's) son Richard a minor, and his daurs. Alice, Margery and Mary. Lands at Newick. Proved at Lewes, 23 May 1555.

John Boxe of Barcombe mar. Mary d. of Geo. Boord of Boord Hill, whose father Stephen died 1566. Eleanor Boxe wife of John Webb of Moulscombe ob. 1576.*

Wm. Box of Barcombe made his will 1 Feb. 1631, pr. 22 Feb. at Lewes. He mentions his five children minors, his wife, and Wm. Gatford, br.-in-law. Tho. Burges, Nicholas Gallup, Wm. Gatford, witn.

§ This name or its synonyms Heasman, Hosemer and Hoasmer (= Osmund and Esmond) is met with in the Barcombe Register from 1606; 1638 Wm. Hosmer and Eliz. Several members of a family from Pembury had previously migrated to Lewes, three miles from Barcombe.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE HISTORY OF CHESHIRE. By GEORGE ORMEROD, Esq., LL.D.
New and Enlarged Edition, corrected throughout, etc., by THOMAS HELSEBY, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn. London: Routledge and Sons, 1875, folio. Part I.

It is now more than half a century since Dr. Ormerod, whose loss the antiquarian public have so lately had to deplore, published his "History of Cheshire," a work which takes rank among the best and most exhaustive of our county histories. The scarcity of the book, owing to the limited number of copies printed, and the high prices which they realize when they happen to come into the market, would, were any needed, form the best apology for a new edition.

Cheshire men, and all taking an interest in the antiquities of their county, may be congratulated on the appearance of a new edition, under the editorship of Mr. Thomas Helsby, a gentleman well known as an able, learned, and scrupulously accurate antiquary, well versed in the topography and genealogy of their ancient county Palatine, and in every way competent to re-write its history. The value of Mr. Helsby's labours will be best exemplified by comparing his new edition with Dr. Ormerod's original work. Part I., now before us, consists of Leycester's Prolegomena, followed by Ormerod's Lists of County Officers, Bishopric of Chester, Diocese of Chester, and Appendix to the Prolegomena, containing those parts of King's Vale Royal which will not admit of incorporation with the corresponding parts of this work. To all of these Mr. Helsby has made considerable and valuable additions, amounting in the whole to twenty-seven pages of type. The size and type of the original edition having been followed as near as may be, it will be seen that the 117 pages of it here reproduced have, under his editorship, increased to 144, no mean addition, when we consider that this portion of the work admits from its nature of less additional information than we may expect to find in its subsequent pages.

The original text of the work is printed in its entirety, as such a work ought to be, thus reserving to its author all the credit due to him for his labours. The new matter, where not under new and distinct headings, will be found comprised within brackets in the text, in some cases half bracketed, and in all cases initialled in the foot-notes, thus shewing how much we are indebted to the editor for his valuable additions to the book. No wiser plan could possibly have been followed; had this been made a rule in reproducing new editions of some others of our county histories, we should not, as we now have, cause to lament that they were ever reproduced at all.

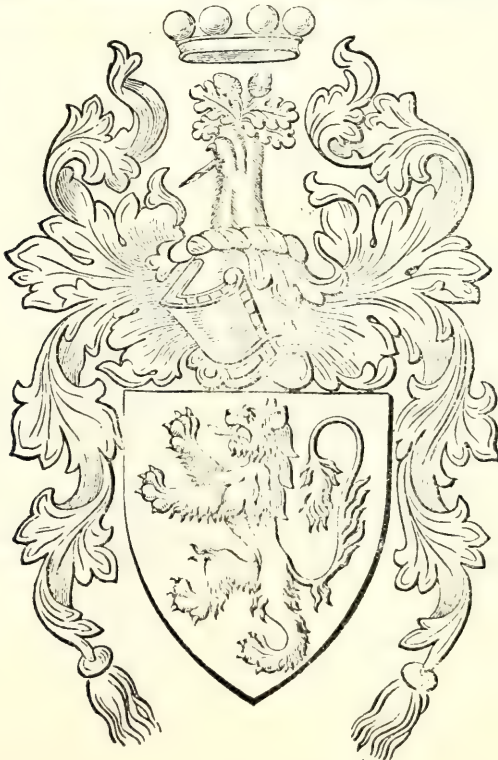

Among the additions made by Mr. Helsby, the most important are those to the pedigree of the Saxon and Norman Earls of Chester, p. 48, those of the Earls, Bishops, etc., of Cheshire to the present time, and lists of county officers, omitted both by Leycester and Ormerod, one of the best features in the book, which is remarkable for even the absence of clerical errors. So few of these occur that we note those which we have seen. Page 50, note, line 3, for sec. read Hon. Treasurer. Page 76, after the name of Sir C. W. Shackerley, for esq. read Bart. Page 82, for William John Leigh of Lyne, read Legh. To the list of Prothonotaries, p. 83, should be added, "John Lloyd, Gent., succeeded Samuel Humphreys, and was the last who held this office." One of the most interesting notes added by Mr. Helsby, is that relating to the legitimacy of Amicia, p. 30.

The illustration of a work of this kind forms no unimportant feature, and will to many persons be one of its chief attractions; we learn therefore with pleasure that this has not been overlooked by the present publishers. The original copper-plates and woodcuts, together with some of Buck's illustrations of ancient buildings and ruins, and some new steel engravings will be given, and no doubt tend much to popularize the book. The poor heraldic engravings of the first edition have been discarded for new ones, from drawings of a facsimile character, and it will be seen from the specimens which, through the kindness of the editor and publishers, we are able to reproduce here, that they are well worthy of the book they are designed to illustrate. That on the opposite page is a fine example of the seal of Edward, the eleventh Palatine of Chester, and the other at the foot of this notice represents the arms of the Barons of Montalt, Azure, a lion rampant argent.

To enter fully into the details of Mr. Helsby's excellent additions is beyond our power in the limited space we are able to allot to notices of books, it must suffice to say that this is the best reprint of a county history we have seen, and we congratulate Mr. Helsby's subscribers on having the good fortune to have him for an editor, and wish him every success in the completion of his useful and arduous undertaking.

THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER.
No. CXV. Boston : July, 1875.

The July number of this excellent publication is unequalled in interest by any of its predecessors. The New England Historic Genealogical Society, under whose direction it is published, are doing good service to the history and genealogy of America, and to that of England also, by rendering permanent the records of our countrymen who first colonized New England. The work is one of international interest, and ought to find a place in the library of every British antiquary.

WALPOLE OF WHAPLODE, CO. LINCOLN. Compiled by the Rev. A. JESSOPP, D.D. and EVERARD GREEN, F.S.A., 1874. Privately printed.

This genealogy comprises a full account of three generations of the descendants of Thomas Walpole of Houghton next Harpley, co. Norfolk, who died 24 January 1512, and in the third generation gives a minute account of five members of the Society of Jesus, four of whom were brothers, and children of Christopher Walpole of Docking, by Margery, daughter of Richard Beekham of Narford. Of these, Henry Walpole the eldest son is called "The Martyr," having been hanged, disembowelled and quartered on the 17 April 1595, at York. Richard Walpole, fourth son, was rector of the Colleges of Valladolid and Seville, and was accused by Edward Squier of inciting him to poison Queen Elizabeth's saddle. The editors do not tell us whether or not this charge was proved. Christopher the sixth son died at Valladolid in 1606, "cum dolore omnium et detrimento patriæ." Michael the seventh son died in Seville in 1620. Of the other issue of Christopher and Margery Walpole nothing noteworthy is stated.

NOTICES OF THE ELLISES. By WILLIAM SMITH ELLIS, Esq., of the Middle Temple. THIRD SUPPLEMENT. London : J. R. Smith, 1875, 8vo.

Mr. Ellis has added another part to his very useful collections relative to the surname of Ellis, and promises still further additions, for which notes should be addressed to him,—Hydecroft, Lowfield Heath, near Crawley. The present part comprises a paper on the "Origin of the name of Ellis;" a list of Wills at the Probate Court, Norwich; copies of Records of the Society of Friends; notices of many Yorkshire Ellises, and much information from Parish Registers, Wills, Fines, etc. The most useful supplement Mr. Ellis could now produce would be an index to the mass of information he has collected with so much diligence during the last eighteen years. An index giving the names only of persons other than Ellis would much add to the interest of his work, and render it as valuable an aid to genealogists in general as it now is to those who take an interest in the widespread name of Ellis.

NOTES ON THE FAMILY OF WOLLEY.

THE following notes are an exact copy of a paper endorsed "A Note of the Births marriages and burialls of sev'all of my relations on my Mothers side taken out of my Grandmother Woolleys bible and given me by Aunt Dakeyne in Sept. 1706," now in the possession of Mr. James Coleman, Bookseller, of 22 High Street Bloomsbury, to whom I am indebted for permission to print it here. It appears to me to be worthy of a place in the pages of the "Genealogist" as an example of the assistance in compiling a pedigree to be derived from entries in family Bibles, a class of evidence perhaps too much underrated.

As an example of the amount of genealogical information to be gained from them I have given that portion of the Wolley pedigree to which they relate, with a few additions from other sources.

The writer of this copy of the entries, extending it should be observed, over a period of one hundred and fifty-eight years, in "my Grandmother Woolleys bible," appears from the mention he makes at the end of them of his mother's sisters Elizabeth Buxton and Frances Dakeyne, to be Joshua, son of Mary Wolley and Samuel Blackwell. It will be seen that every entry, with only two exceptions, those relating to Henry Columbello, and Mary Marshall, is incorporated in the pedigree.

PEDIGREE OF WOLLEY, FROM THE FOREGOING NOTES.

THE FAMILY OF RYE.

I. WILLIAM RYE* of N. Walsham in the county of Norfolk, and Stibton, Suffolk, by his will, dated 1st Nov. 1703, mentions therein his wife Susan† and his son and daughter.

1. Samuel Rye (of whom hereafter).

2. Mary Rye, to whom he gave all his houses and lands in N. Walsham. She married Joseph Clarke‡ of Edenthorp, and by him had a son, William C. of Edenthorp, to whom his grandfather William Rye gave all his Worstead property, and who in 1754 is mentioned in the will of his cousin, the Rev. Nathaniel Rye.

II. The Rev. SAMUEL RYE, whom his father appointed Executor of his will, and to whom he gave all his lands in Laxfield (Suffolk) and a legacy of £100. He was of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and took the degree of B.A. in 1687. He was afterwards curate of Thelnetham in 1698, and rector of the same place from 1699 to 1723, when he was succeeded by the Rev. John Bridge, whose vicar he remained till his death. He was also rector (? curate) of Hepworth, to which living his son Nathaniel was afterwards presented. In 1722 he was appointed to the rectory of Egmere by Sir Edmund Bacon, Bart. He was buried at Thelnetham 9 Dec. 1744, having by his wife Eliza, who was buried with him in the chancel of Thelnetham Church on the 27 April 1721, had several children, viz. :—

1. The Rev. Nathaniel Rye (mentioned in his grandfather's will in 1703) of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, where he took the degree of B.A. in 1716. He was rector of Hepworth, being presented thereto by R. Browne, Esq., on the death of the Rev. Nathaniel Vincent, D.D. He married Penelope, daughter of George Brooke, Esq., of Allington

* Whoever this Wm. Rye was must ever remain considerably doubtful. There were about this period the following Wm. Ryes of N. Walsham—No. 1. Wm. Rye, the son of Jno. Rye the elder son of Robert Rye (III.); No. 2. Wm. Rye, the son of Wm. Rye (V.); No. 3. Wm. Rye, son of the Rev. Edward Rye, son of Edward Rye (IIIA); and No. 4. Wm. Rye, son of Edward Rye the y'r (VB).

† She seems to have been a connection of the Bacon family. Matthew Bacon was her trustee.

‡ Sarah Clarke, daughter of Joseph Clarke of N. Walsham, is mentioned as a kinsman in will of Jno. Rye of Scottow, as is Thos., the son of Thos. Rye.

(descended from the Brookes, Lords Cobham), by Mary his wife, daughter of George Green, Esq., of Brundish. He bought property in Tavenham, Burston, and Gissing in 1752, and died 19 Oct. 1760, having in his will,* which is dated 20 April 1754 (codicil 28 July 1760, proved Norwich 27 Dec. 1762), mentioned his brothers Samuel, John, and Richard Rye, his cousin Benjamin Ward of Norwich and Mary his wife, and others of his relations, and directed an inscription to be erected to his memory in Watchfield Church (of which he was also rector), though his body was to be buried at Hcpworth. His wife died in 1741, and is buried in Allington Churchyard. I do not believe he ever had any issue.

2. William Rye, mentioned as the son of Samuel in his grandfather's will in 1703, under which he is a legatee, and who was buried in the chancel of Thelnetham Church 5 April, 1735.

3. Samuel Rye of Halesworth, a doctor (?), who married Alice, daughter of John Clarke, Esq. of Mellis (probably some relation of his aunt's husband), and died 9 Sep. 1769, æt. 66, having had issue by his wife, who had died on the 18 Sep. 1754, æt. 52.

i. Samuel Rye, d. 5 April 1775 (?), an infant, æt. 14.

v. Dorothea Rye (na. 1748), married firstly her cousin John Hawes, and secondly John Pierson (who died 28 Jan. 1811, æt. 61), whom she survived little over a month, dying the 2nd March following.

4. John Rye of Hopton (of whom hereafter).

5. Richard Rye, of London in 1754, and Highgate in 1774. He may have been the Richard Rye of London, grocer, who voted in 1768 in respect of property at Norwich.‡

6. Elizabeth Rye,§ who married Dr. John Hawes of Botesdale (who died 13 Oct. 1759, æt. 64), and by him had—

* Which is witnessed by Sarah Rye, possibly his sister.

† Her grandson was the late Rev. Dr. Jermyn, whose antiquarian collections for Suffolk are now in the Bury Museum.

‡ A Richard Rye who died April 1st 1835, aged 91, and was buried at Bunhill F. 14s. may have been his son. His wife Sarah, who died 4 Jan. 1814, æt. 73, and their daughter Mary, who died 1 Aug. 1820, æt. 17, are buried with him.

§ Both she and her husband are buried at Halesworth, where there is a monument with their arms—A fess between three talbots passant, impaling gu. on a chief arg. three rye stalks and ears sa.

I. John Hawes, who married his cousin Dorothea Rye. "Finding" (says Dr. Jermy in his note-book) "the marriage rites inconvenient and the bride troublesome, he put an end to his wife's importunities with a razor. Bertie, and was employed in the expedition to Holland and at the capture of the Dutch fleet in the Helder. For the next twelve years he was constantly on active service, and in 1809 he was appointed First Lieutenant of the "Cadmus," and next year, when stationed in Quiberon Bay, he captured at different times nine laden chassemarees and sloops under heavy cross fires from the enemies' batteries; and also on the night of 4 May 1810, he, in company with the boats of the "Armide" frigate, burnt and destroyed seventeen out of twenty-seven merchantmen under the batteries of the Isle de Rhé. Suffering from fever, he left the service, and on 3rd November 1823, received an appointment as chief officer in command of the coastguard of St. Ives, and while there captured the French slave corvette "La Pearle" and slaves on board. He was then appointed Chief Officer in the Preventive Service, and when stationed at Cromer shot a man in a smuggling affray to the west of the town. He died at St. Austell 5 Aug. 1854. In the church of Exhall, which within the last few years has undergone a "restoration," only one monumental inscription is now to be seen. It is in black letter, and commemorates John Walsingham, late of Exhall, Esq., who died Jan. 20, 1566; and Eleanor his wife, one of the daughters of Humphrey Ashfield, late of Heythrop in the county of Oxford Esq., but the date of her death is not mentioned. The inscription is illustrated by two effigies in brass, and two shields, I. quarterly, first (now destroyed) and fourth, paly of six, over all a fess, second and third, a cross chequy between sixteen roundels,—Walsingham; II. A trefoil slipped between three mullets,—Ashfield.

The Visitations of Oxfordshire, temp. Eliz., published by the Harleian Society,* shew that Eleanor wife of John Walsingham was a granddaughter of Edward Conway of Arrow, near Exhall, and that John Ashfield, her grandfather, married Eleanor, dau. of Humphry Seymour.

FUNERAL PROCESSIONS IN SCOTLAND, WITH NOTES ON THOSE OF THE FAMILY OF KERR.

THE nobility and gentry of Scotland were for a long time in the habit of spending sums of money quite out of proportion to their means on ostentatious funerals. The passage in The Bride of Lammermoor is probably familiar to many of my readers in which Lord Ravenswood is described as having been buried with a pomp of attendance to which in his latter days he had been a stranger; banners of arms, trumpets draped with crape, the gentry of the county and an immense train of mourners of lower rank made up a procession of such length that the van reached the chapel where the body was to be deposited before the rear had issued from the castle gate. The cost of the ceremony which ended with a feast and carouse, was hardly defrayed by two years' rental of the estate.

This is no exaggerated description.

To moderate extravagance in such matters Parliament passed various acts. One in 1621 "Anent Banqueting and apparell" forbids more than twenty-four duilweiddis (i.e. mourning cloaks) to be made at the death of an Earl or Countess, sixteen at the death of a Lord of Parliament or his wife, and twelve at the death of any other privileged person, viz. Prelates, His Majesty's Councillors, Lords of Session, Barons of quality, having a free income of eighty chalders of victual or six thousand silver merks, Provosts or former Provosts of the principal burghs; Provosts present or former, Bailies, Deans of Guild, or Treasurers of Edinburgh, and Rectors of Universities.

Only the persons above-named were to have honours carried at their funerals, and these according to their quality; no mourning cloaks to be given to heralds, trumpeters, or saullies, except by Earls, Lords and their wives, and the number of the saullies not to exceed the number of the suits of mourning specified. All under penalty of £1000 Scots.

At burials no person of whatever rank is to use any feasting or offer other meats except bread and drink, no eating or drinking to be allowed at night wakings, or lyik wakings.

It would seem that extravagance at funerals was then a new thing, as an Act 29th Nov. 1581 against superfluous banquetting and the inordinate use of "confectovris" and droggis and spices brought from parts beyond sea, mentions such banquets as taking place at marriages and baptisms and says nothing of burials. On the 13th September 1681 Parliament passed an "Act restraining the exorbitant expense of Marriages, Baptisms and Burials" the preamble to which states that "great hurt and prejudice arise to this kingdom by the superfluous expense bestowed."

The following rules are laid down; that not more than a hundred noblemen and gentlemen are to be invited to the funeral of a nobleman or bishop or their wives; the number of mourners not to exceed thirty; to the burial of a Baron of quality sixty persons may be invited, but to that of any other landed gentleman not above thirty. Twenty-four mourners might walk at the interment of Privy Councillors, Lords of Session, Barons, Provosts of Burghs, and their wives, but not more than twelve at the burial of any other landed gentleman or citizen.

The Act next "prohibits and discharges the using or carrying of any pencils banners and other honours at burials, except only the eight branches to be upon the pale, or upon the coffin when there is no pale;" all under penalty of one fourth of his annual rental for a landowner, a fourth of their moveables for burgesses and others.

Mourning cloaks are prohibited "at burials or at any other time, under the pain of £100 Scots."

There is reason to believe that these, like so many other Acts of the Scottish Parliament were never strictly enforced. A month before had taken place "the funeral solemnities at the interment of the corps of the high and mighty Prince John Duke of Rothes Lord High Chancellor of Scotland," an account of which is printed with a large folding plate giving a representation of the procession.

His Grace died in July at his lodging at Holyrood and the body followed by a train of coaches was taken up to St. Giles' Church; on the 23rd August, the great ceremonial took place when the remains were removed to the Abbey Church at Holyrood, the procession including the nobility, Officers of State, Lords of Session, Gentlemen and Barons, the Clergy, Provost and Magistrates and Council of Edinburgh, and others too numerous to specify; the Guards, the Earl of Mar's regiment and other troops, and the whole heraldic establishment of Scotland six Heralds, six Pursuivants, and the Lyon King of Arms in person "in his coat bearing Defunct's Coat of Armes," with the assistance of Sir Robert Sinclair of Stevenston and Sir Charles Erskine of Alva, Baronets.

One little hitch occurred, namely a quarrel for precedence between the Surgeons and Apothecaries which caused the withdrawal of the former, the decision being against them.

A line of soldiers on each side kept off the crowd.

The body was next day taken to Leith, the hearse followed by a train of coaches, and across to the church of Burntisland. Its next and final stage was to the family burial place at Leslie, attended to the last by a procession, lessened in numbers but still large.

Father Hay in his "Genealogie of the Sainte Claires of Rosslyn" says, "Late Roslin my good father was the first (of that family) that was buried in a coffin against the sentiments of King James the Seventh who was then in Scotland and several other persons well versed in antiquity to whom my mother would not harken, thinking it beggarly to be buried after that manner. The great expences she was att in burieing her husband occasioned the sumptuarie Acts which were made in the following Parliaments."

The funeral of the Duke of Rothes is the last entered in the Lyon's Register, but there are in the library of the office many volumes of Funeral Escutcheons compiled by Heralds which are of great value as genealogical records, although their accuracy is not always perfect. After the abolition of feudal jurisdictions in 1746, these records become scantier and cease altogether in 1766 as a consecutive register, although there are notes of hatchments, a few of them with eight or sixteen quarters, down to the present day. In 1643 the general Assembly of the Church of Scotland passed an Act "against Burialls and hinging of honours &c. in Kirks" in which arms are somewhat contemptuously spoken of as "such like scandalous monuments." This seems to have been habitually disregarded, and it is expressly mentioned in the case of the Duke of Rothes that "the honours and branches which were caryed aloft after interment were hung up over the burial place."

Hatchments are now rarely displayed in Scotland, except at great country houses, but continue in use in England. In the latter kingdom ceremonious funerals on the other hand went out of fashion nearly a century earlier. John Gibbon in his Introductio ad Latinam Blasoniam 1682 laments that since he had been an officer of the College of Arms, he had only in his official capacity attended three funerals.

One of the most notable instances of the complaisance of Heralds as to arms displayed at funerals is the case of Mildred Littler Countess of Breadalbane. John first Earl of Breadalbane a widower for the second time and of mature age, thought proper to marry his mistress, who had been his cook or house-keeper and thus legitimated their daughter Mary who married Archibald Cockburn younger of Langton. I find no account of the Countess' funeral; but on the death of her daughter Lady Mary Cockburn in August 1725, eight quarters on the mother's side were duly exhibited, the names of her presumed ancestors being all English or Irish.

Another curious case appears in the successive funeral escutcheons of a family of large property in Perthshire, the right of succession to whose estates was lately disputed. The representative about the middle of the sixteenth century left by his wife, an Earl's daughter, one son and successor who died without issue. He also had by a woman named Glass daughter of a small landowner of respectable family, an illegitimate son who was a member of the household of James VI., made a fortune at court, was knighted, and on the death of his legitimate half-brother succeeded by settlement to the family property. In the earliest funeral escutcheon of his descendants, there is a blank; next the name of Glass is inserted as if the lady had been married and entitled to carry arms, but finally after a lapse of two centuries the name of Glass disappears and that of the nobly born wife takes its place.

Sometimes a merchant burghess is designed "of most noble extract," and in other cases where an ancestor has married a wife without a paternal right to arms, that generation is passed over and the wife of the preceding head of the family given.

After making every deduction for such errors or false statements, these records must be allowed to be of very great value and shew the good blood then inherited by the majority of the nobility and gentry. The Peerage of Scotland is the most aristocratic body perhaps in the world; all creations ceased in 1707 and only two or three of the families of whom it is composed are not of old Baronial descent, but very few indeed of the living Peers are in a position to prove their seize quartiers.

The funeral escutcheons of members of the family of Kerr are numerous, but I find descriptions of only three funerals.

The first that of Jane Countess of Roxburghe is in the Register of the Lyon King of Arms, and is unusually interesting as nearly every branch of the family of Kerr was represented. Her ladyship was the eldest daughter and co-heiress of Harry Lord Kerr son of the first Earl of Roxburghe and married her kinsman Sir William Drummond who succeeded to the Earldom of Roxburghe under the Deed of Nomination executed by the first Earl.

The Act of 1681 was not the last legislation on the subject of funerals. Another 1686 June 14 ordained that no corpse should be buried in any shirt sheet or anything else except in plain linen or cloth of hards made and spun within the kingdom without lace or point, and especially forbade the use of holland or other linen cloth made abroad and all silk hair woollen gold silver or any other stuff. This Act was ratified by another 17 July 1695 with this addition that none presume to cause bury any corpse in Scots linen of a higher price than 20s. Scots per ell.

Both these were rescinded 25 March 1707 by one of the last Acts of the Scottish Parliament and it was statute and ordained that thereafter no corpse of any person of what condition or quality whatsoever should be buried in linen but in plain woollen cloth or stuff.

See as to her descent, Coll. of Arms, MS. D 27, 119^b.

SIR THOMAS HODGSON, K^{TED} 1677. (Le Neve, p. 321.) The name of this knight is misspelt Hudson by Le Neve. For the whole of the following particulars I am indebted to Dr. Sykes of Doncaster.

Sir Thomas Hodgson was of Bramwith Hall in the parish of Barnby Don, co. York. He was buried there 27 June 1694. Will dated 12 April 1693, proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury 15 August 1694. (193 Box.) The following entry in the Parish Register of St. Andrew's Holborn most probably supplies the name of his first wife. "1660-1. Married Thomas Hodgson a Gent. of Barnards Inn and Ann Ayliffe of St Clement Danes." She was buried there 31 March 1691. Sir Thomas married secondly, Anne daughter of Anthony Thorold Esq^r second son of Sir William Thorold of Marston co. Lincoln, K^t & Bart. She died at Rowston, co. Lincoln, s. p. 11 August 1719, and was buried at Marston, where the Arms of Hodgson, Per bend indented Or and Azure, 3 martlets counterchanged, impaling Thorold, appear on her monument. Sir Thomas had issue by his first wife:—

Edward Hodgson, only son & heir. Died 21 Aug^t 1695, s. p.

Will dated 8 Aug^t 1695, proved at York 15 July 1696.

Married Catherine 2nd dau^r of George Booth Esq^r of Chester. She married secondly James Howard Esq^r Captⁿ in the Guards, grandson of Thomas first Earl of Berkshire.

Anna. Married at Barnby Don 15 Feb. 1680-1, to Robert Tredway of Welburn, co. Lincoln, Esq^r.

Frances. Married first to Sir Thomas Travell, K^t (Le Neve, p. 385) from whom she separated about 1702. Married secondly John 15th Earl of Sutherland. He died 27 June 1733 having no issue by her. She died 15 Dec^r 1732 aged 54. (Mont^l Insⁿ at Barnby Don.) Will dated 13 July 1731.

The following entries in the Registers of St. Andrew's Holborn probably relate to members of this family. 1632-3. Jan. 6. Bur^d John Hodgeson a Gent from M^r Copes at the White Horse, Holborn. 1723, May 24. Bapt. Sarah dau. of Captⁿ Thomas Hodgeson and Ann Hatton Garden.

(Reprinted from Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica, Vol. i., p. 68 et seq.) Burke's Landed Gentry, all editions. Le Neve has fallen into the error of confounding this Sir John with Sir John Elwes of Grove House, Fulham, who was his first cousin, and who is incidentally mentioned as the husband of Elizabeth Raleigh, pp. 74, 277. My thanks are due to Dudley Cary Elwes, Esq^r F.S.A. for the following brief pedigree which clears up the mistake, and places the two Knights in their proper position.

SIR JOHN MICKLETHWAIT, K^{TED} 1680. (Le Neve, p. 374.) This family is supposed to have been of the Yorkshire house of the same name, vide Foster's Yorkshire Genealogies, Vol. ii. The monumental inscription to Sir John Micklethwait will be found in the New View of London, p. 161. For the following particulars I have to thank Dr Sykes of Doncaster.

4. Martha Micklethwait, bapt. 14 Nov^r 1622; married Luke Clayton sometime Vicar of Rotherham. Will dated 16 June 1682, in which she mentions "my sister Anne Fowke, widow," and "my niece Martha Fowke," and describes herself as of Rotherham, widow.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE MONUMENTAL INSCRIPTIONS OF MIDDLESEX, WITH BIOGRAPHICAL NOTICES AND DESCRIPTIONS OF ARMORIAL BEARINGS. By FREDERICK TEAGUE CANSICK. London: 1869—1875. 8vo, 3 Vols.

Mr. Cansick has undertaken an arduous and considerable labour in publishing the most noteworthy epitaphs of the County of Middlesex and City of London, and one which cannot fail to be of great assistance to Historians and Genealogists. A collection of this kind records, and that more lastingly than the perishable monuments so frequently obliterated by time, and so much oftener wantonly destroyed by the would-be church restorers of the present day, can ever do, the last memorials of many of England's most honoured names. Mr. Cansick is going the right way to work, and when his task is ended, and his labour done, will be able to exclaim with Horace, Exegi monumentum ære perennius.

The volumes before us contain epitaphs from Old St. Pancras, St. John Baptist Kentish Town, Whitefield's Chapelyard, St. Katherine's Regent's Park, St. James's Hampstead Road, Highgate Cemetery, St. Michael's Highgate, St. George the Martyr Cemetery, Foundling Hospital Chapel, the Bloomsbury, St. Martin's, St. Andrew's, and St. Giles's Cemeteries, St. Aloysius' Chapel Somers Town, St. Pancras Euston Square, Hornsey, Highgate Burial Ground, Tottenham, Southgate, Edmonton, Friern Barnet, Enfield, and Hadley. In the third volume a few extracts from parish registers are given; it is much to be regretted that they are not more numerous, and also that they are not included in the index. Similar entries appear to be interspersed with the inscriptions in the first volume. In the second and third volumes the blazon of arms where they occur is given.

It is beyond our space to mention the names of the numerous celebrities whose epitaphs are recorded in these volumes, enough to say, that they bear a fair proportion to the nobodies who of necessity occupy the greater portion. Most of the inscriptions are of course of modern date, and hence perhaps it happens that few of them are quaint or curious. In many cases Mr. Cansick might have lessened his labour with advantage to his readers, by leaving out the laudatory trash inscribed by disconsolate parents and inconsolable widows, as well as texts of scripture with which everybody is familiar. Of quaint epitaphs, that of Sr John Weld (Vol. iii. p. 89) is one of the few to be found:—

“The wicked like a wasted Candle sincke
Within the socket, and there, dye and stincke.
Bvt righteous men dissolved yield A sent
Like precievvs odovrs when their box is rent.
And so did hee at his departure giving
A lasting sweetenes to refresh y^e living.”

Mr. Cansick deplores the dilapidated state of the monuments in Old St. Pancras Churchyard. The regard of the parishioners for these memorials of the dead by no means equals the interest their predecessors took in the advantage of the living. The following extract, apparently taken from the parish books, may serve as a useful hint to needy parsons and poor parishes. It is an ingenious method of doing what is vulgarly called “raising the wind.” “At a vestry held 12th July 1721, it was agreed and ordered that a new pall should be bought at the joint charge of the minister and the parish, according to the custom of this parish, and that the fee for this new pall should be as usual, viz., ten shillings for a foreigner, and five shillings for a parishioner; and that the fee for the old pall, for the use thereof, should be half of the other, that the profits of these palls should be equally divided between the minister and the parish.”

In the third volume of this series we are glad to find a larger number of illustrations than in the previous ones, and to be able to reproduce two of them (see next page). The first from the North transept of Hadley Church, the other from the monument of Richard Fountaine who died in 1721. These are well executed, and will give an idea of the value of the rest. In a few instances illustrative notes have been given. Some of them seem hardly of sufficient importance to merit a place in a work of this kind, as for example a pedigree, at p. 82 of Vol. ii., of James Hawthorne, husband of Betsy Porden first cousin to Sir John Franklin, from Wodin the Saxon Deity & Frea dau'r of Niorder, God of the Wind. There can be no reason, unless it be to gratify personal vanity, for the insertion of such nonsense as this.

We hope to find in the next volume of this series corrections of some clerical errors which have probably crept in unseen by the editor. For example, the inscription (Vol. i. p. 39) to Sr Tho^s Webb differs in no less than fourteen instances from the same as shewn on the photolithographed illustration of it. The inscription also to the celebrated Nancy Dawson (Vol. ii. p. 255) seems to be very incomplete. Unless copies of monumental inscriptions are made verbatim and literatim, they lose much of their value. The fourth volume is already in the press, and will contain upwards of 500 inscriptions from the City churches. The selection of these will be a difficult task, as we presume Mr. Cansick will not reprint those already to be found in such works as Strype's Stow, Maitland, or the New View, or indeed any already printed. We wish him success in his undertaking, and hope to find it valuable on account of its originality.

THE AMERICAN GENEALOGIST: Being a Catalogue of Family Histories, etc. By WILLIAM H. WHITMORE. Third Edition, revised and continued. Albany: 1875. 8vo.

We congratulate Mr. Whitmore on the publication of a third issue of this useful work. Since his first edition, published in 1862 under the title of a "Handbook of American Genealogy," he has revised, indeed re-written, the whole, and the present volume gives a faithful account of the vast mass of family history published in the United States. To each family history noted is appended a critical review describing its contents, and affording an accurate guide to their reliability. It is much to be regretted that we have no genealogist willing to do for us in the Old world as good a work as Mr. Whitmore has done for the New.

The Genealogies of Families settled in America may be consulted with great advantage by English Genealogists, because so many of them relate to families who derive their origin from England, and who but for the labours of their descendants in America, would have been left in obscurity. No one taking an interest in English pedigrees need consider his researches complete until he has referred to the authorities Mr. Whitmore brings to our notice.

A portrait of Mr. Whitmore by the heliotype process forms the frontispiece to the work, and adds much to its value by bringing the image of an author, with whom most genealogists on this side the Atlantic have had pleasant correspondence, and a courteous interchange of knowledge, vividly and truthfully before them.

THE HISTORY OF CHESHIRE. By GEORGE ORMEROD, Esq., LL.D. New Edition, by THOMAS HELSBY, Esq. London: Routledge and Sons. 1875. Folio. Part II.

The second part of Mr. Helsby's valuable reprint of Ormerod's Cheshire in every way bears out the good opinion we conceived of the first. This part carries the work on as far as the end of the lists of the dignitaries of Chester Cathedral, and comprises no less than twenty pages of additions to the original edition. These consist of a continuation of the lists of Mayors, Members of Parliament, Cathedral dignitaries, and other officers of the City of Chester, with some very valuable notes on the early Mayors; a full and complete account of the recent repairs made to the Cathedral, and a reprint of a lecture on it by St G. G. Scott, read before the Chester Historic and Archaeological Society, as well as a large number of original notes. Mr. Helsby is doing his best to render the work complete. It should be added by way of errata that "Hunting in England," p. 167, must be read "Huntingdon in England," a mistake in the original edition which has escaped notice, and that the list of Cheshire tokens, reprinted at p. 228, has since been much enlarged in "Boyne's Tokens," pp. 31-36.

From the assertion in Mr. Helsby's note, p. 271, that the title noble is now confined to Peers we must entirely dissent, and can only regard it as a vulgar error into which he has inadvertently fallen. It has been laid down by no less an authority than Chief Justice Coke, that Nobiles sunt qui arma gentilitia antecessorum suorum proferre possunt. It is the right to bear arms which confers nobility, not the possession of a peerage, or any other title of dignity.

PEDIGREE OF THE FAMILY OF EYSTON OF EAST HENDRED IN THE COUNTY OF BERKS. Printed for Private Circulation. London: 1875. 4to.

This pedigree is taken from a MS. book at Hendred House, containing the Eyston pedigree in detail, and in which the authorities are given for the dates and statements therein. It traces the descent of the Eystons of East Hendred from John Eyston, living there in 1487, to the present C. J. Eyston, Esq., of that place. It appears to be carefully compiled, and is well printed. Several members of the family have been remarkable for their eminent piety, but notably so Thomas Eyston, born in 1588. He "was a good Christian and a Wise man; he was bred in one of the Innes of Court and was a Councillor at Law. He was a great sufferer on the score of Religion, and so remarkably patient that they gave him the name of old Job."

PUBLICATIONS OF THE PRINCE SOCIETY. THE GENEALOGY OF THE PAYNE AND GORE FAMILIES. Presented and Edited by W. H. WHITMORE, A.M. Boston: 1875. 4to, pp. 30.

This tract commences with a short abstract of the life of Tobias Payne, born in Herefordshire, and descended out of Gloucestershire, and is an interesting record of the vicissitudes of an early settler. It has been continued by his descendants in a manner well worthy of imitation by those whose delight it is to cherish the memory of their ancestors. Taking this as an example of the publications of the Prince Society, we wish them every success in their good work.

HISTORY OF THE BARONIAL FAMILY OF MARMION. By CHARLES FERRERS R. PALMER, O.P. Tamworth: 1875. 8vo.

This work is, to use the words of its author, "the last homage of our pen to our native town." That fortunate town is Tamworth. The two first chapters have nothing whatever to do with the History of the Marmions, which commences in the third. The statements of all previous authorities appear to be entirely disregarded, and for the accounts here given not a single authority is cited, a fact which is quite sufficient to remove this book from the region of history into that of fiction. We can only commend it to the tourist to Tamworth as a pleasant guide book, the dicta of which he may believe or not as best suits his humour.

DOES AN HEIR TO THE BARONY OF HAWLEY EXIST?

IN 1646 Sir Francis Hawley of Buckland, Somerset, Baronet, was created a peer of Ireland as Baron Hawley of Donamore, and his titles are said to have become extinct on the death in the year 1772 of Francis, third Lord. It would appear however that they were claimed and assumed, as a foot-note appended to Playfair's account of Hawley of Leybourne Grange, Bart., gives the death of Samuel Lord Hawley 19 December 1790, aged 71, and of Lady Elizabeth Hawley 19 May 1776; the last named was perhaps the Honourable Elizabeth, one of the sisters of Francis, third Lord.

In "An Account of the Descendants of Captain Thomas Brattle," a daughter of Francis, last Lord Hawley, is said to have married in 1755 John Brettle, Esquire; query, was this Lord ever married?

The following descent is claimed in published pedigrees* by Mr. Hawley of West Green House and Blackwater, in Hampshire:—

- I. Francis 1st Lord Hawley.
|
- II. Robert Hawley, younger son, married Susan, Lady Erle, daughter of William, 3rd Viscount Saye and Sele.
|
- III. Lieutenant-General Henry Hawley married Anne Toovey.
|
- IV. Lieutenant-Colonel William Henry Toovey-Hawley married Jane Baker.
|
- V. Lieutenant-Colonel Henry-William Toovey-Hawley,
1st (King's) Dragoon Guards, married Catherine Jepson.
|
- VI. William-Henry Toovey-Hawley of West Green House and Blackwater House, Hampshire.

If this Pedigree could be supported by satisfactory evidence Mr. Hawley would, failing nearer heirs, be entitled to the Barony of Hawley and to an English baronetcy created in 1643. However abundant proof exists that the descent claimed is altogether untenable.

Although it is in one account stated that the family descends from Francis first Lord Hawley, it is elsewhere* stated that (II.) Robert is only supposed to have been his Lordship's son. No Susan Fiennes ever was Lady Erle. A lady of that name, daughter of the first Viscount Saye and Sele, married Thomas Erle, who died in 1665, eldest son of Sir Walter Erle, but according to Bridges' Collins' Peerage it was not this Susan but her grand-niece of the same name, a daughter of William the third Viscount, who was wife of Robert Hawley.

* Burke's Landed Gentry, 2nd Edition, General Armory, and Heraldic Illustrations.

III. Lieutenant-General Henry Hawley, who was Colonel of the 1st (Royal) Dragoons, Governor of Portsmouth, and Aide-de-Camp to the King, left no legitimate children. He held a command in Scotland during the Rebellion of 1745-46, and seems to have acquired some property in that kingdom, as after his death, which occurred at his seat near Portsmouth 23 March 1759, when he was above eighty, his sister Miss Anne Hawley, then resident in London, was served heir general to him 18 March 1762.

This service alone is sufficient to upset any claim to legitimate descent from General Hawley, but fortunately his will is conclusive on this point, and moreover shews the origin of the Toovey-Hawley family. It is dated 29 March 1749 (with four codicils), and is a most curious document; he directs that his funeral be conducted like that of a common soldier from the hospital, many of whom are as good men as himself; that the carpenter be paid for the "carcase box;" that if the priest demand a fee, "let the puppy have it," and so on. He leaves his whole fortune in certain proportions to his only sister Anne, to Captain William Toovey and Lieutenant-Colonel John Toovey, both of his own regiment, sons of Mrs. Elizabeth Toovey widow, who is to life-rent most of what Captain Toovey succeeds to, and who had "been for many years his friend and companion, often his careful nurse, and in his absence a faithful steward." There is also a bequest to Elizabeth Burkett spinster, niece to Mrs. Toovey, who is described as having "been a useful handmaid" to him.

The will proceeds, "As I never was married, I have no heirs; I therefore have long since taken it into my head to adopt one heir and son after the manner of the Romans." He goes on to place Captain William Toovey in this position, makes him his sole executor, and directs him to take both his names.

The legacy to Elizabeth Burkett is left on condition that she never marries Colonel Toovey, "and if he is fool enough to marry her," then all provisions in their favour are to become null, and Miss Hawley is given power to proceed against them and recover their shares of his estate.

The services in Scotland throw some light on the later history of the Toovey-Hawley family; on the 23 March 1778 Henry

* General Armory.

William Toovey or Hawley, was served heir-general of his father William Toovey, afterwards William Toovey Henry Hawley, Captain King's Regiment of Horse.

These are evidently numbers IV. and V.

It has been said that the father of the Tooveys was a private in Hawley's regiment; at any rate it is certain that Mr. Hawley is not a legitimate descendant in the male line of the ennobled family. Other heirs may however possibly exist; Richard, younger brother of Francis second Lord Hawley, left a son of his own name.

The Register of the parish of St. James, Westminster, records the burial of the Honourable Susanna Hawley a child, 9 January 1687-88, and of Captain Hawley 8 April 1694.

The parentage of General Hawley seems unknown; an absurd statement has appeared that he was an illegitimate son of George II., who was four or five years his junior. According to Betham's Baronetage a Captain Hawley, brother of the General, married a daughter of Robert son of Sir John Colleton, Baronet. If this were so, Captain Hawley must have been dead without having a family in 1762.

WOLLATON AND THE WILLOUGHBY MONUMENTS.

By Captain A. E. LAWSON LOWE.

THE lordship of Wollaton, in Nottinghamshire, appears to have come into the hands of the Willoughby family during the earlier part of the reign of King Edward the Second, about which time William, son of Roger de Morteyne, lord of Wollaton, sold to Sir Richard de Willoughby, of Willoughby, the whole manor of Wollaton, only excepting the capital messuage which eventually became the property of his eldest son, Sir Richard de Willoughby, Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, through his marriage with Isabel, sister and heiress of the above mentioned William de Morteyne. This family of Willoughby was distinct from the great Lincolnshire house of that name, and was derived from one Ralph Bugge, an opulent wool-merchant of Nottingham, living in the time of King Henry the Third, whose elder son, Richard, settled at Willoughby-on-the-Wolds, where he possessed considerable estates, and assumed the surname of Willoughby from that place, whilst his younger son, Ralph, having acquired lands at Bingham, had a seat there, and was the progenitor of the Bingham family, subsequently of much note in these parts. After the match with the heiress of Morteyne, Wollaton became the chief seat of the Willoughby family, who occupied the ancient manor-house of the Morteynes, which stood near to the parish-church, where some old masonry yet remains to mark its site. But although the Willoughbys were probably seated here before the time of King Edward the Third, documentary evidence together with the numerous monuments in the mortuary chapel at Willoughby-on-the-Wolds, prove conclusively that Wollaton Church did not become the family burial-place until nearly a century and a half later, and, indeed, there is no record of any member of the family being interred at Wollaton previous to the decease of Sir Richard de Willoughby, who, by his will, dated September the 15th, 1469, commended his soul to God Almighty, St. Mary, St. Leonard, and All Saints, and bequeathed his body to be buried in the church of St. Leonard at Wollaton, at the north end of the high altar, before the image of St. Leonard, and near to the tomb which he had lately erected, and he gave to the church of Wollaton a jocale of silver-gilt adorned with a beryl stone, in which to exhibit the sacrament upon the feast-day of Corpus-Christi. His monument yet occupies its original position on the north side of the altar, beneath a carved stone canopy in the Perpendicular style, which displays four shields: I., two bars charged with three water-bougets,—Willoughby. II. Willoughby, impaling a saltire engrailed charged with nine annulets,—Leeke. III. Willoughby, impaling a bend between six escallop-shells,—Foljambe. IV. Willoughby, impaling paly of six, a bend charged with a mullet pierced,—Annesley. Under the canopy is a fine slab of Purbeck marble, inlaid with two very beautiful brasses of a knight and his lady, interspersed with wheel-shells—which would appear to have been the badge of the Willoughby family—together with three shields, one bearing the arms of Willoughby impaling those of Leeke, and the two others exhibiting the arms of Willoughby and Leeke, singly. Round the edge of the slab runs the following inscription:—

“Hic jacet Ric’us. Wyllughby Armiger qui obiit vii^o die Octob. Anno d’ni n’ri Jh’u x’pi Milli^{mo} cccc^olxxi^o. Et Anna ux. eius que obiit xxiii^o die mensis julii A^o ei’udem d’ni m^occcc^olxxvii^o.”

Beneath the slab, on a level with the floor of the chancel, lies the ghastly figure of a skeleton partly enveloped in a shroud, which was originally enclosed within a grating of cross-bars, now removed.

On the opposite side of the chancel stands an altar-tomb, adorned with the recumbent effigy of a knight in plate armour with a collar of SS. about his neck, placed between four smaller female figures, representing his four wives, all of which yet retain many traces of the somewhat gaudy colouring and gilding with which they were originally embellished; whilst above the whole is an arched canopy enriched with armorial bearings. Another ghastly effigy, similar to the one beneath the last mentioned monument, lies within the tomb, and placed in niches in front of the monument are four figures to represent the two sons and two daughters of the deceased. Beneath the canopy is the figure of an angel supporting a large shield, upon which these arms are carved:—Quarterly, eight coats. 1, two bars charged with three water-bougets,—Willoughby. 2, vaire, a fesse,—Marmion. 3, bendy of ten,—Montforte. 4, a cross patonce,—Freville. 5, a saltire engrailed,—Bullecourt. 6, a sword in pale, point downwards,—Kilpeck. 7, ten roundells, four, three, two, and one,—De la Zouche. 8, per pale, dexter a tower (between two spears paleways, in fesse?),—Ayala * sinister barry nebulée,—Blount. Round the arch of the canopy are nine smaller shields, displaying the arms of Willoughby, Buttetourt, Kilpeck, Frevile, Montforte, De la Zouche, and Willoughby quarterly with Frevile; together with two crests, both of which have suffered mutilation, one being that of the Willoughby family—an owl, and the other appears to be a griffin sejant upon a chapeau.* The wheel-shell badge also appears amongst other ornamentation. The inscription, which runs round the edge of the slab, sustaining the effigies of the knight and his four ladies, is now partly concealed:—

["Hic jacet Henricus Willoughby, miles pro corpore Regis et Baronetus, et quondam Dominus de Wollaton,]† qui obiit xi^o die mensis Maii Anno d'ni millimo ccccc^oxxviii^o. Cujus a'ie p'piciet' deus. Amen."

Next in point of antiquity is a richly carved and gilded mural monument, placed within the family-pew at the eastern end of the north aisle, and thus inscribed:—

"Henricus Willoughby, Armiger, et Anna uxor ejus, Henrici Grey Ducis Suffolciæ soror hic fœliciter in Domino obdormiunt, ille obiit in bello co'tra rebelles in Norfolcia in 1518, illa occubuit anno salutis nostræ 1546. Tres liberos susceperunt, Thomam qui obiit sine prole superstitè, Franciscum Willoughby, Equitem Auratum, et Margaretam nuptam Mattheo Arundell, Militi. Optimis parentibus Franciscus filius mœrosus et amoris ergo hoc monumentum posuit 1591."

Above the inscription is a large shield: Quarterly, thirteen coats. 1, or, on two bars gules, three water-bougets argent,—Willoughby. 2, or, a cross patonce gules,—Freville. 3, vair, a fesse gules fretty argent,—Marmion. 4, sable, a sword in pale point downwards argent, hilted or,—Kilpeck. 5, bendy of ten, or and azure,—Montforte. 6, argent, billetée sable, a lion rampant of the last, crowned or,—De la Plaunch. 7, azure, a fesse between six crosses crosslet argent,—Haversham. 8, or, a saltire engrailed sable,—Buttelout. 9, or, two lions passant azure,—Dudley. 10, gules, ten bezants, four, three, two, and one,—De la Zouche. 11, vair, a canton gules,—Fillioll. 12, azure, semée of crosses crosslet or, a lion rampant of the last,—De Breues. 13, argent, three pellets each charged with three chevronels gules,—Carant; impaling, quarterly, eight coats. 1, barry of six argent and azure, in chief three torteaux,—Grey. 2, or, a maunch gules,—Hastings. 3, barry of sixteen argent and gules, an orle of martlets sable,—Chaworth. 4, gules, seven maseles conjoined or, three, three, and one,—De Quincy. 5, azure, a cinquefoil ermine,—Astley. 6, argent, a fesse and a canton gules,—Widville. 7, sable, six mullets argent, three, two, and one,— 8, azure, fretty argent,— over the quarterings a label of three points ermine. On either side are two smaller shields, one bearing the arms of Willoughby, impaling, sable, on a cross engrailed, between four eagles displayed argent, five lions passant guardant of the field,—Paget; and the other—sable, six swallows argent, three, two, and one,—Arundell, impaling Willoughby. There are also two other small shields, one displaying the arms of Lyttleton, of Frankley, in Warwickshire, with twenty-three quarterings

† The first part of the inscription is taken from Thoroton's "Antiquities of Nottinghamshire," and is not perhaps altogether accurate, as the latter part is incorrectly given in that work.

(Sir Francis Willoughby, who erected the monument, having married a daughter of that house), and the other the arms of Willoughby with twelve quarterings. Surmounting the whole is the Willoughby crest—an owl, argent, beaked, legged, and ducally crowned or; and on the lower part of the monument is the crest of the Lyttleton family—a moor's head couped at the shoulders, proper, and wreathed about the temples, argent and sable.

Returning to the chancel, we find in a canopied recess in the south wall, which seems to have originally formed a part of the ancient sedilia, a small slab of marble, thus inscribed:—

“Perci. } Willughby qui ob. Aug. 23 1643.
 Bridg. } qua obiit July 16 1629.
 Toto }
 Tumulo } coi'vere in b'no
 Duplici conjuncti connobio
 Ignoscat illis omnia
 Qui nostra tulit crimina.”

Sir Percival Willoughby, who is here commemorated, was not, as might be supposed, a member of the Wollaton family. His father was Thomas Willoughby, of Bore Place, in Kent, whose descent was derived from the great Lincolnshire house of Willoughby d'Eresby, and his connection with Wollaton arose from his marriage with Bridget, the eldest daughter and coheirress of Sir Francis Willoughby, of Wollaton, through whom the lordship of Wollaton passed into his hands. This Sir Francis Willoughby (who was the builder of the present family-seat, which was commenced in 1580 and completed about 1588), had six daughters by his first wife, to the eldest of whom he bequeathed the Wollaton estate, but a short time before his death he was married a second time to a young wife who had sufficient influence to prevail upon him to make a will leaving her the greater part of his Nottinghamshire estates, a circumstance which subsequently involved his son-in-law, Sir Percival Willoughby, in long and ruinous litigation. Sir Francis himself was not buried at Wollaton, for his death occurring in London, under somewhat suspicious circumstances, his remains were interred in the church of St. Giles without Cripplegate.

A mural monument in the north aisle, commemorating one of Sir Percival Willoughby's younger sons, is thus inscribed:—

Above the inscription are three shields: I., or, fretty azure,—Willoughby d'Eresby, impaling or, on two bars gules, three water-bougets, argent,—Willoughby. II., Willoughby d'Eresby. III., Willoughby.

In the same aisle, opposite to the one last mentioned, is another mural monument, surmounted with the arms of the Willoughbys, of Wollaton, and inscribed :—

“This monument is here placed in memory of Sr William Willoughby, of Selston, in the county of Nottingham, Baronet, who gave the Lordship of South Muscam, in the county of Nottingham, to his kinsman, Francis Willoughby, of Wollaton, Esq^r, by whose order in his will this is here set up by Sr Thomas Willoughby, his son, that Sr William’s kindness therein may ever be acknowledged by the Family. He married Margaret, the sole daughter of George Abbott, Esq^r, by whom he left no issue. He died at Selston Feb. 10th 1670, in the 50 year of his age.”

Sir William Willoughby, of Selston, who was created a baronet by King Charles the Second, August the 4th, 1660, was certainly very remotely related to the Wollaton family. He derived his descent from one Thomas Willoughby, an Alderman of Nottingham, who died about the beginning of the reign of King Henry the Eighth, and who, from the slight distinction in his armorial bearings, was probably a connection of the Willoughbys, of Wollaton, although his precise descent does not seem to be recorded. Francis Willoughby, of Wollaton, by whose desire this monument was erected, was the celebrated natural philosopher, and Sir Thomas Willoughby, his son, was raised to the peerage by Queen Anne, December the 31st, 1711, by the style and title of Baron Middleton, of Middleton, in the county of Warwick, as his deceased elder brother had been elevated, whilst yet in his infancy, to the rank of baronet, in commemoration of his father’s attainments in science.

On the south wall of the church is a large monument of statuary marble, divided into four compartments, the principal of which bears this inscription :—

“To the memory of Henry, Lord Middleton, Baron of Middleton, in the county of Warwick, who was born in 1726; married Dorothy, daughter and coheir of George Cartwright, Esq^{re}, of Ossington, in Nottinghamshire; and died on the 14th of June, 1800, aged 74, leaving issue, Henry, born the 24th of April 1761, Dorothy, married in 1784 to Richard Langley, Esq^{re}, and Harriett, married in 1787 to the Hon^{ble} Lumley Savile. He succeeded to the title and estates of his cousin Thomas, Lord Middleton, and added dignity to the Peerage by a mind well cultivated, improved by the advantages, untainted by the vices, of travel. Loyal from principle, and maintaining a firm independence, he steadily supported the measures of Government in times of turbulence and sedition. In a civil as well as a military capacity, he was active, just, and independent; and in private life he was generous, hospitable, friendly, and sincere. At his decease, universal regret was felt and expressed, and those who from the dearer ties of affinity were more intimately acquainted with his worth were left more sincerely to deplore so great a loss!”

Upon a smaller compartment beneath :—

“Dorothy, wife of the above, died on the 19th of July, 1808, aged 75 years.”

On two side compartments :—

“ Francis, third Lord Middleton, succeeded his father in 1758, and died without issue in 1774.

“ Thomas, the 4th Lord Middleton, succeeded his brother in 1774, having married Miss Chadwick in 1770, and died without issue in 1781.”

On the lower part of the monument are these arms, ensigned with a baron's coronet :—Quarterly, 1 and 4, or, fretty azure,—Willoughby d' Eresby ; 2 and 3, or, on two bars gules, three water-bougets argent,—Willoughby ; over all, on an inescutcheon of pretence, ermine, a fesse between three fire-balls sable, issuing flames proper,—Cartwright. Supporters. Dexter, a grey friar in his habit all proper, to his girdle his beads argent, thereto a small cross pendant or, holding in his dexter hand a crutch, proper ; sinister, a savage wreathed about his temples and middle with ivy, and holding in his sinister hand a club, all proper, each supporter holding a banner gules, fringed or, charged with an owl argent, ducally gorged, collared and chained gold. Motto, “Verité sans peur.”

On the north side of the chancel is a mural monument adorned with two very finely sculptured figures of angels, by Westmacott, and bearing the following inscription :—

“ Sacred to the Memory of Henry, sixth Baron Middleton,
Born April 24th, 1761.

Inflexible integrity dignified his public life.

In private he was endeared by his social qualities.

His friendship was sincere and his benevolence noble without ostentation.

His Lordship died, deeply lamented, at Wollaton on the 19th June 1835.

In testimony of her grateful and affectionate regard to his memory his afflicted widow erected this monument.

Jane, daughter of Sir Robert Lawley, Bart.,

relict of the above Lord Middleton, died 17th December 1852, aged 85 years.

They left no issue.”

On the same side of the chancel is another mural monument of richly carved Caen stone, surmounted by the arms of the Lords Middleton, and inscribed :—

“ In memory of Digby

Seventh Baron Middleton of Middleton, in the county of Warwick, R.N.

only surviving son of Francis Willoughby, of Hesley, in the county of Nottingham, Esq^{re} (younger brother of Henry, fifth Baron Middleton), and Octavia his wife, daughter and co-heir of Francis Fisher, of the Grange, Grantham, Esq^{re}.

He was born 26th November 1769 ; succeeded his cousin Henry, sixth Baron Middleton, 19th June 1835, and died unmarried at Wollaton 5th November 1856, in the 87th year of his age.”

Thoroton, in his "Antiquities of Nottinghamshire," mentions two other monuments of which no traces are to be found. One of these, described as "an altar-tomb under an arch in the middle of the church," was of an earlier date than any of the existing memorials, bearing an inscription recording the decease on May the 21st, 1105, of Matilda, the wife of Sir John Dabrishecourt, knight. The other was in the chancel, and appears to have been a brass to Robert Willoughby, Esq., who succeeded to the Wollaton estate on the death, in 1471, of his half-brother, Richard Willoughby, Esq., who has already been mentioned as the first representative of the Willoughby family interred at Wollaton.

REGISTERS OF THE REV. THOMAS NORRIS.

At his death these Registers became the property of his relative Mr. T. Norris Ince, of Wakefield, whose widow sold them, along with her husband's genealogical MSS., to Dr. Sykes, who has sent them to their legal custodian, the Registrar-General.

WYKES OR WEEKES OF KENT AND SUSSEX.

THE Saxon word wyke, a village, alone and in composition, has furnished a name for numerous localities in England, and consequently for numerous families of distinct and independent origin. The names Wyke, Wykes, Wix, Wickes, Weekes, etc., are thus all derived.

A.D. 1166 William de Wike held a knight's fee in Kent (Liber Niger). In the Testa de Nevill, temp. Hen. III. Wm. de Wyke and Gerard de Wyke are recorded as holding lands in Kent by serjeanty. According to the Book of Aid in the Record Office, 20 Edw. III., Stephen de Wyke and others held one quarter of a knight's fee, which the heirs of John Taylor held at Wyke, in the hundred of Westgate, co. Kent. 8 Edw. III. Sir Stephen de Wike is rated in the Subsidy Roll at 10s. for lands or houses at Canterbury. Temp. Rich. II. Thomas de Wyke and Richard de Wyke occur in Fines of Lands at Maidstone. 18 Rich. II. John Wykes Esq. occurs. 4 Hen. IV. Richard Wykes occurs in a Fine of Lands at Brenchley. 13 Hen. IV. John Wykes^(a) is rated at 40 mares and Thomas Wykes at £30 for property in Kent (Subsidy Roll). "The manor of the Moat alias Wyke," says Hasted in his 'History of Kent' (8vo ed. xi. 161), "is situated in the parish of St. Martin's, Canterbury. It was formerly possessed by a family which gave name to it, one of whom, Stephen de Wyke, possessed it in the 20th year of Henry the Third, as appears by the 'Testa de Nevill.' And in 1353 (6 Edw. III.) Richard Oxenden, then Prior of Christ Church, the see of Canterbury being vacant, granted a license to Stephen de Wyke's chaplain to celebrate Divine Service in his chapel at Wyke, within the parish of St. Martin, the instrument of which is printed in 'Battely's Somner Appx. No. ix.'" The Bridewell or Poor Priests' Hospital in Canterbury, was rebuilt in 1373 by Thomas Wyke, syndic or master thereof (Ibid. p. 188). Edmund Wykes occurs in the List of Gentry, 6 Henry VI. Thomas Wyke and Joanna his wife occur as deforciant in a Fine of Lands in Wittersham, co. Kent, Hil. Term, 1513. John Weekes gent. and William Weekes gent. of Horsmunden, occur in a Fine 23 Car. I.

No pedigree of Wyke, Wykes, or Weekes is met with in the Visitations of the county. But in Mr. Willement's 'List of Arms,' in the Cloisters of Canterbury Cathedral, temp. Henry IV. & VI.—Argent, a chevron gules between 3 crosses moline sable (No. 80) is attributed to the name of Wyke; and to Wm. de Mereworth,^(b) in a List of Kentish Knights, temp. Edw. IV. (in Harl. MS., 1068, p. 157), a similar coat is given, viz., argent semée of cross crosslets sa. a chevron gules. This coat is evidently derived from Wykes by inheritance, as appears by the Abbreviatio Placitorum, 2 & 3 Edw. I. (p. 187), where it is stated that Walter de Mereworth, son of Christiana de Wykes, was next heir of

(*) Perhaps this is the John Wykes of Sarre Court and St. Lawrence, Isle of Thanet, who marr. Joan only d. of John de Criel, qui ob. 6 Hen. VI., by Alice, d. & h. of John de Botetourt. (Planché's 'Ash next Sandwich,' p. 294.)

(b) Eustace de Mereworth held 2 knts. fees in Kent of Wm. Earl of Glouc. 1166. ('Liber Niger.')

Roger de Wykes of the manor of Wykes (in what county was unknown).^(c)

Now it is remarkable that this coat of Wykes closely resembles the arms of Wyke of Somersetshire, who bore (Harl. MS. 1559) —a chevron between 3 crosses moline gules. Collins in his 'Hist. of Somersetshire' (iii. 618), says of this family: "Near Claverham is the ancient mansion of Court de Wick, so denominated from the family of De Wick, who had their name from the parish of Wick St. Lawrence, where they were seated temp. Hen. II. 12 Hen. II. Thomas de Wickes held 2 knights' fees in Somersetshire of Robert Bp. of Bath." Elsewhere (p. 267) he says that the manor of Ninehead Flory was owned temp. Stephen by Ranulph de Fluri, who bore a chevron between 3 crosses flory, as is evidenced by a seal to an ancient deed, which manor came to the family of Wykes by marriage. If the preceding heraldic statements are true, it would imply that a branch of Wykes of Somersetshire early settled in Kent and gave their name to a manor; but the fact of the Wm. de Wike of the Liber Niger being settled in Kent in 1166 somewhat militates against this view, as the match with Fluri appears to have taken place subsequently.

The following pedigree is compiled entirely from family papers. The family for several generations has borne the arms of Weekes of Devon (viz., ermine, 3 battle-axes sable). The will subjoined^(d) is in the possession of a member of the family; and it is supposed that the testator was son of Joseph Weekes, brother of Simon Weekes, living 1620, descended from Sir Richard W. of Honeychurch, co. Devon, who bore the above arms; but a Kentish origin is equally if not more probable.

WALPOLE (p. 8).—Jane Walpole married Charles Ricard of Goldall, or Gowdall, and Heck, in the parish of Snaith, at which church he was buried 1 May 1624; and since she is also buried there as "Mrs. Jane Ricard of Heck, widow," 5 Jan. 1640-1, it is probable that . . . Gare of Knotting (should be Knottingley) has been attributed to her for a second husband in error.

C. B. NORCLIFFE.

(c) 4 Hen. V. on the inq. p.m. of John Wykes. John was proved his s. & h. of lands in Cambridgeshire, Kent, and Midx. Peter de Hotot held one knight's fee in the vill of Wykes, in Lyminster, co. Sussex. The rent of 60 acres of land in this vill was given to the Convent of Arden in York-shire, by Godehilda de Planches, wife of Wm. de Port or St. John, and Eustachia her dau'r, A.D. 1218, for the salvation of their own souls and of the soul of Richard Godehilda's son. This gift was afterwards confirmed by Roger, s. & h. of Eustachia de Wykes and John his brother. ('Sussex Arch. Coll.,' xv. 97.) This would appear to be the Wyke in the text.

(d) Will of Joseph Weekes of Westham [co. Sussex], dated 2 May, 1658. To his br. Richard Weekes all his lands in Sussex; to his br. Wm. £20; to his sister Mary £35; to his sister Elizabeth £35. All other his goods, chattels, &c. to his br. Wm., whom he appoints exor. Witn. Henry Stonestreet, John Easton, and John Millward.

TRADITION.

THE THIRLESTANE MURDER; A PENDANT TO THE WIGTOWN MARTYRDOM.

The truth of History is rarely to be found in what is called, and often miscalled, tradition. Whether that be presented in the winning form of a Border ballad, or the wicked one of a Wigtonshire Martyrdom,—whether collected by a loyal Border minstrel in our own time, or fished for, and cooked, by a Whig Kirk Session in the early days of the “Immortal Memory,”—tradition often becomes a delusion and a snare. Not that we would quarrel with a purely pathetic legend because it can be shewn to be untrue. But when our patriotic, or our humane, sympathies are enlisted in the service of calumny,—whether it be pathos pandering to political calumny, as in the now notorious case of the “Wigtown Martyrs,” or calumny ministering to romantic pathos, as in the hitherto unexplored case of the Thirlestane murder, with which we are about to deal,—the genius of such mischievous romancing ought to be arrested as a criminal impostor, and handed over to the police of letters.

The third story in Sir Bernard Burke’s very popular compilation entitled ‘Family Romance, or Episodes in the Domestic Annals of the Aristocracy,’*—a work in every one’s hand, and specially intended to illustrate, in a manner at once agreeable and authentic, how truth may beggar fiction,—is told as follows, but in more detail than there is room for here. So we must take the liberty of epitomizing, to a certain extent, Sir Bernard’s attractive narrative, at the same time indicating, by marks of quotation, those passages which it seems necessary to give in his own very words.

In the time of James the Sixth, he tells us, Sir Robert Scott of Thirlestane, in the Forest of Ettrick (a branch of Buccleuch), was married “to a beautiful and amiable woman, whom he tenderly “loved, a daughter of the House of Harden now represented by “Lord Polwarth.” Here we have a genealogical mistake, to begin with. She was a daughter of Sir John Cranstoun of Cranstoun, ancestor of the noble family of that name. This lady, Sir Bernard proceeds to say, died young, leaving an only son, Robert Scott, the heir of Thirlestane, whose father, Sir Robert, thereafter espoused “an unprincipled woman of vindictive temper and fierce “passions,”—whom Sir Bernard Burke, having thus frightfully and quite gratuitously characterised, has the forbearance not to name. We may here mention, however, that she was Catherine Jardine, a daughter of Sir Alexander Jardine of Applegirith,—an ancient knightly and baronial family, still worthily represented in

* Third Edition; London, 8vo, sans date; Hurst and Blackett’s Standard Library.

Dumfriesshire. By this lady Sir Robert, as our genealogical and heraldic author proceeds to inform us, had a second family; and that this cruel stepmother, having become jealous of Robert Scott, the young heir by the first marriage, plotted and accomplished his death. Taking into her counsels "the family piper, whose name was John Lally," the murder, according to Sir Bernard, was perpetrated after the most approved fashion of Udolpho horrors and Braddon sensationalism. The "family piper"—of a Border family, by the way, of the race of Buccleuch—"procured three adders from which he selected the parts replete with the most "deadly poison, and having ground them to a fine powder, Lady Thirlestane mixed them in a bottle of wine." At this time, as Sir Bernard has it, the doomed heir of Thirlestane was on the eve of his twentieth birthday, and, moreover, of his marriage. His father had not only "arranged for him a suitable and advantageous "matrimonial alliance with a beautiful young lady of high birth," but had commenced to build upon his lands of Gamescleuch (directly opposite to Thirlestane, across the Ettrick) a magnificent castle, quoth Sir Bernard, as a residence for the young couple. He adds that "the mason-work of the new castle of Gamescleuch "was completed on the young laird's twentieth birthday, which "was held as a high festival at Thirlestane." And now comes the tragedy. Young Robert Scott, as this dreadful story goes, had crossed the Ettrick to inspect his future home, accompanied by "John Lally the piper." A feast had been provided for the workmen, and the heir of Thirlestane called for a cup of wine to pledge them. The poisonous piper was at his elbow, armed with the cruel stepmother's deadly vintage of pounded adders, and the unsuspecting victim drained the cup. "Young Thirlestane," continues Sir Bernard, "was instantaneously taken violently ill, "and such was the force of the poison, that he swelled and burst "within an hour,"—by Shrewsbury clock we presume. The piper Lally immediately fled across the Border, and, like the goblin page, was never heard of more! Tidings of the terrible catastrophe were instantly conveyed to Thirlestane Castle, where the chief and a large assemblage of clansmen, guests, and retainers were awaiting the return of the young heir. Considering the symptoms—for by this time the victim had burst—it is not surprising that all with one voice pronounced it a case of poison. But who was the poisoner? "The old baron," proceeds our author, "caused a bugle to be blown as a signal to all the family to "assemble in the castle court. "Are we all here?" enquired Sir Robert. "All but the piper Lally," was the reply. According to Sir Bernard Burke, this answer sufficed to satisfy the chief of Thirlestane that his own wife was the murderess, and his fugitive piper her accomplice. The Executive, it seems, was not called upon to act in this awful affair, and forbore to interfere. Sir

Robert Scott of Thirlestane, Knight, took this delicate family matter entirely into his own hands, and most ingeniously devised a scheme of retribution that was to prove ruinous not only to his sinning spouse, but to himself, to his second family (whom the murder intended to elevate), and indeed to the standing of the right line of his own house for ever! The burst body of his first born was carefully embalmed, and lay in magnificent state in the hall of Thirlestane for "a year and day." During the whole of that period this Border castle was thrown open to all comers, and a system of regal feasting and grim festivities kept up, such, indeed, as no king ever ventured to indulge in, before or since. And here we must again recur to the very words of the accomplished official genealogist and domestic historian who has favoured the world with this (according to him) authentic "episode in the domestic annals of the aristocracy."

"Butts of the richest and rarest wine were carried into the fields; their ends were knocked out with hatchets, and the liquor carried about in stoups. The burn of Thirlestane literally ran red with wine." Meanwhile, "the lady of Thirlestane was kept shut up in a vault of the castle, and fed on bread and water." Sir Robert himself "died soon after, and left his family in utter destitution. It is said, that his wicked lady died in absolute beggary."

The merit of this strange legend would be small indeed were it presented to us as the fruit of Sir Bernard Burke's own sensational and imaginative genius, or even as a curious specimen of Border tradition, to be taken cum grano salis. But the value and the interest of it is understood to consist in its absolute truth. Sir Bernard would really seem to be even of greater faith in such traditionary marvels than the Very Reverend Vice-Chancellor of St. Andrew's University. When the monstrous improbability of the melodramatic details of that time-honoured Presbyterian institution, the "Wigtown Martyrs," was forced, by a searching but somewhat daring investigation, upon his learned and logical judgment, the Presbyterian Principal, to the dismay of all the faithful, for the first time repudiated as untrue the whole of those long cherished details, and scarcely appeased the sect he had so far thrown over, by at the same time announcing his adhesion to the naked fact of their pet martyrdom. He admitted, with ingenious ambiguity, but not without a somewhat discourteous ebullition of spleen against the troublesome investigator who had thus far awakened his common sense on the subject, that the peacock plumage of the Solway sacrifice was altogether false. Nevertheless, he took the poor denuded daw to his pastoral bosom, and thus philosophized:—

"All who study these beautiful old stories with any critical "eye"—which the Principal had never ventured to do before—

"are forced at once to allow the admixture of picturesque and edifying matter they contain. It is the rule of this sort of literature to become impregnated in its descent"—tradition to wit—"by the imaginative fertility of the consciousness of the time; and still more, of the immediately succeeding time, which learns to look back with a reverend wonder and love to the tragic events which made heroic the former days. The Wigtown martyrology is certainly no exception to this rule. Wodrow's stories everywhere bear the stamp of this imaginative development. But are Wodrow and his authorities therefore liars,"—the coarse term is the Principal's own—"and the Wigtown martyrology a mere imposture from beginning to end,—a calumnious fable, as it has been politely termed? Were the two women never at all drowned at Wigtown?" ('Macmillan's Magazine' for December, 1862.)

Heaven help honest truth if it must be polite to calumnious fable! Heaven help History, and common sense, if to strew fantastical flowers, of an unintelligible ratiocination, over the grave of a political calumny now absolutely proved to be false in all its bearings, in order still to preserve its memory in viridi observantia, be a legitimate exercise of the reasoning powers in the Principal of an ancient University, once famous for its learning and its teaching. The tradition of the Wigtown Martyrology (as the Principal phrases it) is a pregnant example of pathos pandering to political calumny. The tradition of the Thirlestane murder is a no less remarkable instance of calumny pandering to romantic pathos.

But the purely romantic author disdains to save his common sense by means of any such ingenious compromises, and artifices of language, as the very reverend author rises to in defence of his. The brave Sir Bernard, true to the veracity of tradition and the audacity of peerage writers, rejects not an item of the horrors and the impossibilities of this melodramatic murder. The gun-cotton effect of the infernal adder wine upon the body of the young victim—the embalming—the lying in state for a year and a day—the riotous and ruinous supping on horrors which lasted all that time—the innumerable butts of the "richest and rarest" unadulterated wine, broken open with hatchets, and carried about the field in stoups, till Thirlestane burn "literally ran red" therewith—the murderess in the cellar, fed with bread and water, among the poisonous adders she had doubtless learnt to charm with the lore of "Padua far beyond the sea,"—not one iota of all this does Sir Bernard reject from his "tale, alas! too true."

But the more plausible, though less plucky Principal, when forced to the scratch,—forgive the cant phrases from one not educated at St. Andrew's,—dared not to face the time-honoured details of that dramatic and aquatic Oratorio of the Solway. He stript it of all its exciting scenery and decorations, refused to listen to the ecstatic psalmody of its dripping overture, utterly rejected the Wigtown Kirk Session's libretto of the sacred drama, and thereby he has reduced the long cherished "Wigtown Martyrology" to a heap of indistinguishable ruin! Thus did the able and amiable Principal save at least his common sense.

Two versions, slightly varying, of the Thirlestane murder were published by that great natural genius James Hogg in different editions of his ballad collections. He tells the story substantially as Sir Bernard Burke has so imposingly reproduced it, for the purpose of becoming a marketable commodity. But the sole authority of the "Ettrick Shepherd" for this lamentable legend is just that which such local ballad-mongers as he was, and such martyrologists as were the Kirk Session of Wigtown in the year 1685, preferred to all the records in Christendom,—to wit, facts gathered, or said to have been gathered, from the mouths of old crones and carles, from the shielings and sheepfolds, the muirs and mosses of a wild country side, and cooked for the credulous by such fanatical gleaners of tradition.

"It must be remembered," says the shepherd-bard of Ettrick, "that I had access to no records for the purpose of ascertaining the facts above stated; though I believe that they are for the most part pretty correct." Had it been a muirland martyrdom, instead of a Border murder, with a Kirk Session of the year 1685 for chronicler instead of a shepherd-bard, it would have been, in Scotland at least, high treason against sacred history to doubt the tradition. And even our pastoral poet prefers the traditions of his country-side to the written records of the family upon which he fastens this diabolical tale. "It is not a little singular," he adds, "that in the family genealogy, published in Wood's peerage from a manuscript contained in the Thirlestane charter chest, there is no mention made of this catastrophe; nor is it possible from that genealogy to ascertain who the heir, that was thus taken off, has been. Yet there is so little doubt of the traditionary story being true, that it was the foundation of a lawsuit,"—we should rather have predicated that it would have been the foundation of a criminal trial, and the hanging, without benefit of drowning, of this Border chief's spouse,—"which lasted for generations (!) regarding a part of the lands that belonged either to Sir Robert's second lady,---the murderess, to wit,---or were hers in reversion."

Now mark how a plain and short tale suffices to extinguish all this incoherent nonsense. There is a Court of Session case, collected by "Auld Durie," in the days when the Senators of the College of Justice reported, each in his turn, the decisions of the High Court, in which we find it narrated (15 February, 1623) that—"Sir Robert Scott, eldest lawful son to Sir Robert Scott of "Thirlestane, by his obligation given to Mary Lyon, obligeth him "to take her to wife; and also obligeth him, how soon he or his "heirs should succeed to his father's living of Thirlestane, to "infeft the said Mary in an annual rent of a thousand merks, to "be uplifted out of the said lands of Thirlestane,"—instead of from some other lands which were the property of Sir Robert junior. "Sir Robert (junr) after his marriage with the said Mary, "being deceased," the family suit, as to what lands were to bear the burden of her provisions, arose between the young widow and the old chief, her father-in-law, in which the latter was nonsuited; nor could the suit itself have lasted many weeks.

No more of the old case need be repeated here. But in the above extract we have all the essential particulars of Sir Bernard Burke's romance completely disproved, and the foul tradition utterly destroyed. The young heir of Thirlestane was not murdered in his twentieth year, and on the eve of his marriage. He died childless indeed, but had lived to be knighted in his father's lifetime, to be possessed of considerable Border lands independent of his father, and to be married to Mary Lyon, of the noble house of Kinghorn and Glamis, whom he left well provided for. Nor will it readily be conceived that "Auld Durie,"—unromantic as that Senator of the College of Justice might be,—would have simply reported the heir of Thirlestane as "being deceased" had the fact been that he was ruthlessly torn from his betrothed by one of the most diabolical and marvellous murders that had ever been heard of. Moreover, old Captain Walter Scott of Satchels, who wrote the curious history and genealogy of all the Scotts of the Border (upon which is based the 'Lay of the Last Minstrel'), was the nephew, as we learn from himself, of this same Sir Robert Scott, younger, of Thirlestane, the hero of Sir Bernard's romance. In his very accurate genealogy of Thirlestane (as can be proved), Satchels tells us that the first Sir Robert of Thirlestane was the son and heir of a former Robert Scott of Thirlestane, who was Warden Depute of the West Marches, and married to Margaret Scott of the House of Buccleuch; that the first Sir Robert espoused Margaret, daughter of Sir John Cranstoun of Cranstoun; and he then proceeds to record the untimely death of their son and heir, the second Sir Robert (who died before his father), in the following uncouth couplets:—

"SIR Robert Scott his son, for whose death I mourn,
He married Lyon, daughter to the Master of Kinghorn;
His death was sad to all his near relations:
A worthy man was he, and died without successions."

If the sadness which clouded this extinction of the Cranstoun alliance, in which Sir John Cranstoun himself had taken the most lively and substantial interest, had been anything beyond the sadness of an unlooked-for and untimely death, surely, at least, it could not have been caused by that very frightful murder, or the loving nephew of the lamented victim would have spoken of his death in other terms.

But what of the lady whom we have left in the cellar? Did she die there on her bread and water, or did she live, as Sir Bernard has it, to die "in absolute beggary"? There is not a shadow of authentic imputation to be discovered against the conduct or character of this maligned lady; neither did she die in poverty.

Old Sir Robert Scott of Thirlestane died in 1627. Catherine Jardine (the murderess) was left amply provided for. In the year of her husband's death we find her raising a process to release and reclaim her jointure lands, which Sir Robert had assigned in security to his near cousin Walter, second Earl of Buccleuch, who had become cautioner for him against overwhelming debts, which in the end utterly ruined his whole family, except his widow, Catherine Jardine. That lady wisely and successfully took measures to protect herself. The following document (still preserved in Lord Napier's (who is also Sir Francis Scott of Thirlestane) archives, dated 7th July 1627, throws more light upon the domestic history of these Border families than we are likely to obtain from Sir Bernard Burke or the Ettrick Shepherd. We shall conclude with quoting an extract from the commencement of this deed, divested of the antiquated orthography.

"We Walter Earl of Buccleuch, Lord Scott of Whitechester "and Eskdale, for obedience of the letters of horning, and for "eschewing the danger thereof, purchased at the instance of Dame
 "Catherine Jardine, relict of umqwhile Sir Robert Scott of Thirle-
 "stane, Knight, upon the decreet of removing obtained against us
 "before the Lords of Council and Session, upon the sixteenth day "of June instant (1627), decerning and ordaining us, and certain "other persons therein contained, to flit and remove from the five "pound land of Davington (and various other lands mentioned),
 "are content, and consents, that the said Dame Catherine Jardine
 "enter presently, at her pleasure, to the paccable possession of the "same lands, conform to her liferent infestment thereof, and "decree of removing foresaid recovered at her instance thereupon;
 "with express provision that there be no prejudice done or "intended against our beloved pupil, John Scott (her own son),
 "lawful son and heir of the late deceased Sir Robert Scott of "Thirlestane, Knight; and further for many tender and honour-
 "able respects which we owe in duty, conscience, and honour, to our "beloved pupil, the said John Scott, lawful son and apparent heir
 "of the foresaid Sir Robert Scott of Thirlestane, we bind and "oblige us, our heirs and assignees whatsoever, that we shall in "no manner of way, in any time hereafter, lay anything to the "charge of the said lands," etc.

Thus were Catherine Jardine's liferent lands secured to her during her widowhood, and the reversionary rights of her son, John Scott, protected under the auspices of his loving cousin, tutor, and chief, Walter, second Earl of Buccleuch. So much for Sir Bernard Burke's and the Ettrick Shepherd's "episode in the domestic annals" of the Thirlestane branch of Buccleuch. And so much for TRADITION.

NEWPORT OF HANLEY COURT, CO. WORCESTER.

The descent of this family may be termed a 'neglected genealogy.' Nash, the historian of Worcestershire, gives it no place in his History; Baker, the historian of Northamptonshire, was evidently not aware that the descendants of Newport of Welton existed in another shire; Burke omits the earlier generations, and in their place gives as an ancestor a person in no way connected with them; and lastly, Mr. Grazebrook in his Heraldry of Worcestershire, though he mentions that they recorded their pedigree in the last County Visitation, contents himself with a reference to Burke, and wisely omits the latter's statement about their 'distinguished position.'

An account of this family appears only in the first edition of that now well known work the 'Landed Gentry.' For what reason it has been suppressed in subsequent issues is not very clear. The present owner of the Hanley estates, though in no way allied by blood to the Newports, has assumed proprio motu, their Name and Arms, and has thus, though unrecognised by the authorities at the Heralds' College, at all events quite as much right to a place in the last edition of the 'Landed Gentry,' as many other gentlemen whose names are found there, more on account of their property, than their pedigree, or right to Arms.

The LINEAGE recorded by Burke (Commoners, Vol. iv., p. 356) commences thus:—

"The family of Newport, one of great antiquity, has been settled in its present place of residence for nearly three hundred years, enjoying considerable landed estates, and maintaining, for that lengthened period, a distinguished position in the county of Worcester. The manor of Hanley Court was conveyed to the Newports in the reign of Edward VI. by John de Hanley, and has continued in their possession to the present time.

"Edmund Newport, esq. of Hanley Court, living at the close of the 16th century, who married Anne, daughter of John Lyttelton, esq. of Frankly, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and coheir of Sir Gilbert Talbot, knight, of Grafton, sprang (sic)

'John Newport, esq. of Hanley Court,' etc.

When this account was written the family of Newport had been extinct, in male line at least, for upwards of seventy years, so that allowing that they purchased the manor temp. Edw. VI. from John de Hanley, they could not have held 'a distinguished position' in the County of Worcester for nearly 300 years, indeed a little over 200 would be the longest time they could possibly have done so. Not one of them had been Sheriff or Member of Parliament for the county in this long period, and in what other capacity any of the family can be said to have distinguished himself remains for future genealogists to discover.

Who the Edmund Newport, esq. of Hanley Court, living at the close of the 16th century, may have been, it is unnecessary to enquire; Nash states (Lyttelton pedigree, Hist. Worcestershire, Vol. i., p. 493) that he was ancestor to the Earls of Bradford, an evident mistake, as the Earls of Bradford trace to the Newports of High Ercall, a totally different family. No one bearing the christian name of Edmund appears in the pedigree of the Hanley Newports. Edmund is probably a mistake of long standing for Edward. John Newport, esq. of Hanley Court above mentioned, certainly did not spring from an Edmund, nor from an Edward, as the following pedigree will shew.

The first mention of a Newport of Hanley is in 1557 (4 and 5 Ph. and Mary) 14 Oct., when Edward Newport of Hanley who had been committed to the Tower was released. (Eph. Parl. London, 1654, pp. 95, 96.) Edward Newport, perhaps another person, married Mary dau'r of Thomas Hereford of Moore, in the parish of Lindridge, by Margery daughter of Thomas Acton of Lye.* She had four brothers Edward Hereford of Moore,† George Hereford, William Hereford, ob. s. p., and Thomas Hereford.

The Newports of Hanley descend from John Newport of Welton, co. Northampton, who purchased Welton 1574-5. He married Margery dau. of Sir W^m Sayer, and had John Newport of Ecton and Welton, who had issue with others;‡ John Newport of Welton, living 1613, eldest son; Richard, a priest, twice banished for being a papist, persisted in returning, and was therefore hanged at Tyburn, 30 May, 1612, (see Memoirs of Missionary priests, by R. Challoner, 1742, 8°, Part ii., p. 72); and Edward, who is mentioned in Harl. MS. 1553, fo. 210^b, though omitted in the pedigree given by Baker in his History of Northamptonshire.

John Newport of Welton, the eldest son, married Katherine dau. of Anthony Jenkinson, and was father of a numerous family; (Baker's Northampton, i., 459) his eldest son John Newport, was bapt. at Welton, 1 Nov^r 1596, and marrying Anne dau'r of John Newton, became possessed of Hanley Court.

I have no hesitation in identifying the last mentioned Edward Newport with Edward the husband of Mary Hereford. His will, in which he is described as Edward Newport of Hanley William, in the Co. of Worcester, Esq., is dated 4 Nov^r 1608, and was

* ? 'The Lea' in par. of Upper Sapey, co. Hereford.

† The Register of Hanley begins in the year 1586, and the two following entries may relate to the nephew and niece of Mary Newport, née Hereford.

1600. Anthonius filius Edwardi Hereford sepultus fuit apud Handley Will^m vltimo die Januarij.

1604. M^{rs} Marye Herford daughter of George Hereford was buried xxth day of July.

proved in the Prerog. Court of Canterbury, with two codicils, 7 July, 1619, (Parker 75) by his godson Edward Penell of Lincoln's Inn, Gent. He gives ten shillings a year out of his saltworks at Droitwich to Humfrey Salwey, Esq^r, and William Penell, Gent. in trust for the poor of Droitwich, and a like sum out of his Manor or Lordship of Hanley William in trust for the poor people of Hanley William to be paid on St Thomas's day for ever.—To his loving cousin and Godson Edward Littleton, Gent., son of John Littleton late of Franckley, Esq^r twenty marks to buy him a Gelding, etc.; and a like sum for same purpose to cousin and Godson Edward Littleton, Gent., son of Humfrey Littleton of the City of Worcester, Esq.; and the same to Godson Edward Penell of Lincoln's Inn, Gent.—To cousin William Lee, Gent., £10.—To every of the children of his (testator's) sisters Elizabeth and Bridget 20^s apiece.—To Arthur Winnwood 'my trustie servant' £10.—To Anne Newton daughter of John Newton £200, to be paid her by 'my welbeloved wife Mary Newport to whose government the said Anne in her childhood was committed,' and if not paid by her in her life time then by instalments of £40 a year out of the rents of his (testator's) messuage or tenement, &c., called the Blackhouse* in the parish of Eastham.—To cousin Hugh Lee, Gent., an annuity of forty marks out of his (testator's) farm called the Lee Farm in the parish of Over Sapey.†—To Thomas the son of Edward Hereford, Gent., an annuity of forty shillings a year.

Having given these legacies, the testator bequeaths his manor of Hanley William alias Downton, and his lands in Eastham, Over Sapey, and Droitwich, subject to the life interest of his wife, to Hugh Lee and Anne Newton, if the said Hugh Lee and Anne Newton shall marry together, for life, with remainder to their heirs males, remainder over to his 'loving cosin John Newport' the eldest son of John Newport of Welton, co. Northampton, Esq^r, and his heirs males, remainder over to Robert Newport second son of the said John Newport, remainder over to Richard Newport and Anthony Newport, other sons of the said John Newport the elder, remainder over to right heirs males.—Appoints his wife Mary‡ Newport, Humfrey Salwey, and William Penell, executrix and executors.

It is probable that at the date of the execution of the above will Hugh Lee and Anne Newton were both children, however this may have been Edward Newport's wish that they should marry was not realized.

* There is a farm now forming part of the Hanley estate of this name in the parish of Eastham.

† The adjoining parish to Hanley William.

‡ 1616. Marie Newport wyfe of Edward Newport Esquire was buried xxvith of februarye. Hanley William Parish Register.

His heir male, his 'loving cosin,' or as we should now say nephew, for at the date of this will the terms cousin and nephew were synonymous, John Newport had, most likely with a knowledge of the contents of his uncle's will, or from what is less likely, as the world goes, an affection for the young lady herself, 'cut out' Hugh Lee. A codicil to the will, dated 27 September, 1618, recites, that, forasmuch as the marriage intended by the testator between Hugh Lee and Anne Newton taketh no effect, and for that there is a purpose of a marriage by God's grace to be had betwixt John Newport of Welton, in the county of Northampton, Gent., and the said Anne Newton, to testator's 'good liking,' he revokes the settlement made of the Hanley and other estates on the said Hugh Lee and Anne Newton, and makes a similar settlement on the issue of John Newport and Anne Newton 'for that I have a great desire to preserve and keep my Lands in the name of the Newports, so long as it pleaseth the Lord.' To add fuel to fire the rejected and disinherited Hugh Lee appears as a witness to this codicil.

It seems probable by comparing the following dates that when Edward Newport, a few months after, found his end approaching, he was anxious that the marriage should take place, and touched it may be by the 'prick of conscience,' at the sight of the rejected lover left with only an annuity of forty marks, determined on giving him a more substantial consideration for his disappointment. By a second codicil, dated 26 June, 1619, testator gives him the Lea farm in fee, and a legacy of £100. John Newton, (doubtless the father of the young Lady), and Andrew Newton, being witnesses. They had evidently arrived to join the wedding party, for on the next day 27 June 1619, John Newport and Anne Newton were married at Hanley William (Parish Reg). The next entry in the parish register is the last scene in this 'eventful history,' "Edward Newport esq^r was buried the second of Julye, Anno p^det." Hugh Lee apparently made the best of the situation, for in the Register of Eastham I find this entry—"1619. Hugh Lea gent. and Anne Winwood were married at Hanlechild the xixth day of September."

SIR THOMAS NORTHCLIFFE (Norcliffe) (p. 152) ; Burke's Landed Gentry, vol. ii. 993.—In the pedigree above referred to in Foster's Yorkshire pedigrees, for 1605, as the date at which Moses Good-year was the husband of Lady Norcliffe, read 1695. Elizabeth wife of Stephen Norcliffe, Esq. Barrister at Law, and of Sir Richd. Scott, Kt. was buried 9 Jan. 1632-3, at St. Mary Castle-gate, York.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

A ROYAL DESCENT; WITH OTHER PEDIGREES AND MEMORIALS.
Compiled by THOMASIN ELIZABETH SHARPE. London, 1875, 4to.
Only 100 Copies printed.

We learn from the preface to this work that "the object of the writer has been to collect into one volume all the direct descents, in both male and female lines, of every member and branch of her own family, as a book of genealogical reference for their use; and to put upon record all the evidence necessary for proving these descents." It is seldom that a family is fortunate enough to find so able and persevering a chronicler of their ancestors, or one so ready to give an unquestionable authority for every link in their pedigree. The book is far more than what its modest title leads us to suppose; it is not merely Royal descent, it is also a well authenticated history of a number of good families. Miss Sharpe has divided her work into four parts.

The first shews the descent of the families of Carr, Stubbs, Eastwick, Harding, Edmonds, Kelly, Sharpe, and Strutt (Lord Belper), from King Edward I., through Gouldsmyth, Cope, Chaworth, Paston, Wyndham, Howard, Mowbray, and Segrave, by Margaret Plantagenet, daughter and sole heir of Thomas de Brotherton, fifth son of Edw. I., by his second wife Margaret of France.

The second contains pedigrees of Buckner, Chaytor, Clere, Cope, De Sars, Ellis, Jenkin, Paston, Woodroffe, Caryll, and Gouldsmyth, etc., families connected with those mentioned in the first.

The third gives two descents of Edw. I.; two of Margaret of France; three of Elizabeth Fitzalan; and those of Cath. de Molines, Eleanor Scrope, Anna Fermor, and Walter Stubbs; thus exhibiting the descent of the families shewn to be descendants of Edw. I., in the first part, also from Wodin, Clovis, Henry the Fowler, Basilius 'the Macedonian,' Charlemagne, etc., etc. This appears to be the only superfluous and unproven part of the work. Having traced so far, it seems almost a pity that the usual traditionary pedigree to Adam and Eve should not have been included!

Part four blazons the Arms attributed to the different families treated of. A very useful key pedigree is added, shewing the pages on which accounts will be found of the different people who are mentioned in the descent. There is also a good index.

As a matter of necessity, this book cannot fail to be of great interest to the numerous people whose genealogy it traces from Edward the First. It has, however, a much greater value, in so much as, unlike most books of its class (a class, written as a general rule only to gratify the vanity of a few individuals), it records from original and authoritative sources the genealogies of a great number of people more or less connected with national history. Miss Sharpe's work is done, and well done, and we hope it will serve as an example to other ladies of leisure of one method of spending their lives more profitably than in rinking or kettle-drumming.

THE ARCHÆOLOGIST, Vol. II., Nos. 8 & 9. January and February 1876.

This interesting publication contains articles on Popular Antiquities, Coins, Philatelic Gossip, and Notes and Queries. It is printed at Hull, and is a useful repository for local antiquarian memoranda.

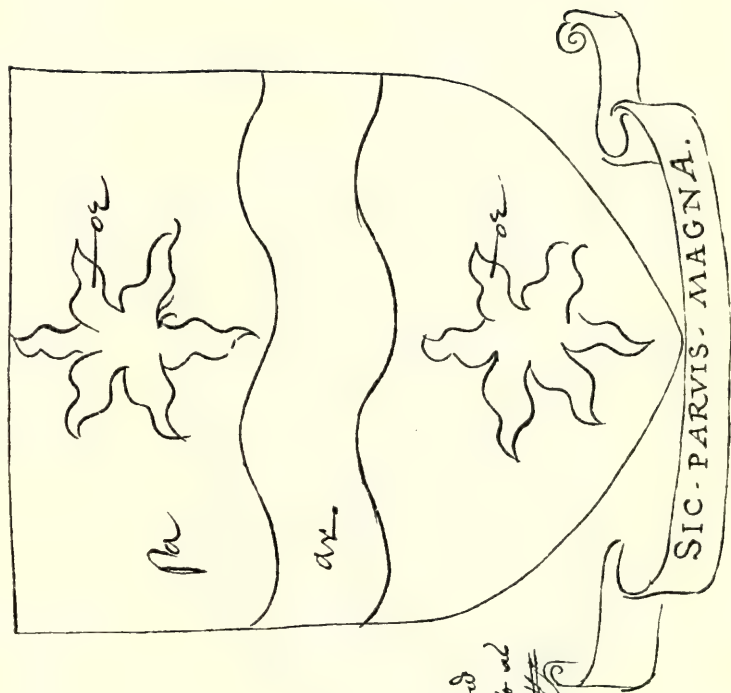

LOCAL GLEANINGS RELATING TO LANCASHIRE AND CHESHIRE, reprinted from the "Manchester Courier." Manchester: J. E. Cornish, 33 Piccadilly, and T. Day, 53 Market Street. 1875-6. 4to.

Local Gleanings, or rather as it should be called "Materials for the History of Lancashire and Cheshire," is an excellent publication, full of hitherto unpublished matter illustrative of the history, biography, genealogy, folk-lore, and every-day life of the progenitors of Lancashire and Cheshire families of all grades. We wish its able editor, Mr. Earwaker, every success in his useful undertaking, and can but regret that he has thought it necessary to limit the number of copies to 250. The work is too generally interesting to be printed for a merely local circulation.

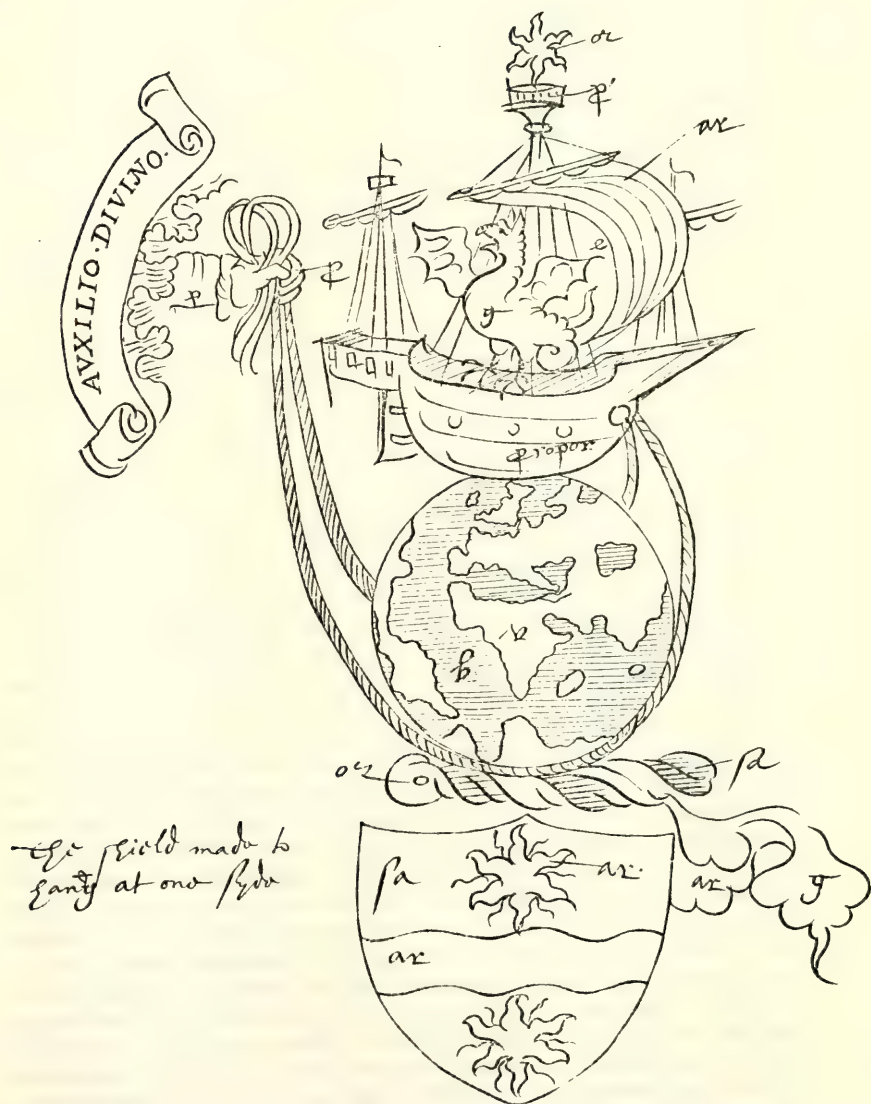

BRIEF SKETCHES OF BOOTERSTOWN AND DONNYBROOK, CO. DUBLIN.

By the Rev. BEAVER H. BLACKER, M.A. Dublin: 1874. 12mo.

During fourteen years Mr. Blacker has been collecting and publishing what he modestly calls "Brief Sketches" of Booterstown and Donnybrook, though on perusal of his volume, consisting of no less than 488 pages, it will be seen that he has collected every scrap of information worth recording concerning them. It contains a great amount of valuable genealogical information of more than merely local importance, and is well worthy of a place on the shelves of every one interested in genealogical pursuits. Only one thing appears to be wanting to render the book of great utility, that is, an index of names and places.

This draught was abridged it is put down on the

THE ARMS OF SIR FRANCIS DRAKE.

PROBABLY most of the readers of 'The Genealogist' have seen the interesting articles on the family and arms of Sir Francis Drake which appeared in 'The Herald and Genealogist,' vol. viii., pp. 307-313, 476-483; and in the 'Archæological Journal,' vol. xxx., p. 382, et seqq.

The following drafts of the Grant of Arms made to Sir Francis appear to have escaped the notice of the writers of those articles. They will be found in the Bodleian Library, Ashmole MS. 834, folios 37 and 38. For these copies of them, and also for the use of the engravings of the tricks of arms by which they are accompanied we are much indebted to the kindness of Mr. Charles Bridger.

Wheras it hath pleased the Queenes most excellent mat^{tie} graciously to regard the praysworthy deseartes of S^r francys Drake knight, who of an exceedinge greate love and zeale to her highness and his countrey, hath not spared to adventure and hazard his lyf and to weare his body with longe and paynfull travell into dyvers and sondrey partes of the world never hitherto founde owte by any of this nation: wherby thorough the favourable permission of almightie God, ther is greate hope of the wynninge of meny heathen nations from infidelitie to the knowledge of God and of his soune Jesus Christ our redeemer, and therfore no small honor renowne and com'oditie lyke to redounde to this our Countrey. THE PRINCESS OF CRAON.

THE author of 'Mann' and Manners at the Court of Florence, Vol. I. pp. 9-10, says, "The Princess de Craon was not much of a Princess. Duke Leopold of Lorraine was a gallant and handsome man. There was one lady at his court (Madame Lunati), who cared nothing for his gallantry and good looks," but asked her husband to remove her from Lorraine, and his Highness's attentions, which he did, "and the balked Duke thereof, walking abroad in the meadows to digest his melancholy, saw a buxom girl in a field driving turkeys. His melancholy was cured. In a week the thoroughly washed and newly decked rustic beauty was lolling and laughing from one of the windows in the ducal palace at Nancy. This was the lady who was afterwards married by M. de Beauvau. For their respective services they became Prince and Princess de Craon, and they were vicegerents at Florence for Francis the husband of Maria Theresa."

I do not know whether or not the Duke of Lorraine had an amour with a buxom driver of turkeys, but the origin of Madame de Craon was very different indeed; it seems a pity that Dr. Doran should have given currency to such a statement, when a little investigation would have supplied the facts of the case.

The Princes of Beauvau and of Craon now living have good ground of complaint, as certainly there is an abundance of detail in many published works, from the contemporary Wappen Kalendar down to the Almanach de Gotha 1867 and L'Annuaire de la Noblesse de France 1852 as to the birth of the Princess their ancestress. Genealogists do not mention what is a matter of notoriety that she was long maîtresse en titre of Leopold of Lorraine, who died in 1729 in his fiftieth year, but they do state that Marc de Beauvau, younger son of Louis Marquis de Beauvau, then twenty-four years of age, married in 1704 Anne-Marguérîte de Lignéville, by whom he had twenty children, and was created Marquis of Craon 1712, Prince of the Empire 1722, Grandee of the First Class in Spain 1727 and Knight of the Golden Fleece.

There were four families which for centuries ranked incontestably at the head of the nobility of Lorraine, and were curiously styled les grands chevaux or great chivalry; these were the Haraucourt, Lenoncourt, Lignéville, and Châtelet, whom an old poem describes as “Grands chevaux ou chevalliers

De noblesse sans égalle.”

The Lignéville exist, and the present representative descends from the brother of the lady so scurvily treated; they were created Counts of the Holy Roman Empire in 1620, and one branch now extinct enjoyed the title of Prince of Conca.

Dr. Doran supplies repeated contradictions to his own allegation, as he mentions the Countess of Lignéville as sister-in-law of the Princess, and notes that her daughter was an Abbess in Lorraine, where the chapters were very exacting as to noble quarters, and certainly would have excluded the daughter of a peasant girl; the Princess Mary was a Canoness of Remiremont, the most aristocratic foundation in France or Lorraine. He also names as her children the Primate of Lorraine and Madame de Boufflers, which shows that he did not think the Princess a second wife and stepmother of the Prince of Craon's children. The nobility and alliances of the Beauvau are equally good, and in France they were Cousins du Roi in consequence of the marriage of Isabelle de Beauvau in the middle of the fifteenth century to John of Bourbon, Count of Vendôme: her great-grandson succeeded to the Crown as Henry IV.

There are a good many other errors in matters of genealogy in 'Mann' and 'Manners', but I shall only remark on the statement Vol. II. page 235, as to Louisa of Stolberg Guedern, wife of Prince Charles Edward Stuart. "Her mother Charlotte Maria married to the Prince of Horne was a daughter of the ultra-Jacobite Earl of Ailesbury." Her mother was Elizabeth-Philippa-Claudia, daughter and coheir of Maximilian-Emmanuel last Prince of Horne, by his first wife Lady Charlotte-Maria Bruce.

“ATKINSON’S” ROLL OF ARMS.

Edited by JAMES GREENSTREET.

THE following list of the names and arms (in blazon) of nearly ninety of the English nobility and gentry who lived about the time of the Wars of the Roses will no doubt be found interesting. It is taken from a volume of heraldic collections, augmented by later hands, but some portion of which belonged to Edmund Atkinson Somerset Herald in the reign of Edward VI. His signature is on one of the earlier pages thus “Edmund Atkinssun alias Somerset Herald of Armes.” Beneath it Ralph Brooke has written “and a sorye one twoc;” and William Penson, Lancaster Herald, subsequently added as a comment on this aspersion “But Atkinson might have taught York to write true Orthography, in requital of such his disparageable Language.” Both of these remarks are now however cancelled by pen strokes.

From the circumstance that the hand in which the list is written may possibly be referred to the period when Atkinson flourished, or a little earlier, it seems likely that what we now possess is a copy (or fragment of one) made at that time from an original Roll of Arms of the period to which the entries refer. That it is only such a copy of some earlier authority is shewn by inaccuracies which occur here and there evidently occasioned by the copyist not being thoroughly acquainted with the style of writing in which the names and blazon he was transcribing were given. I have considered it not inappropriate to distinguish this small collection of ancient coat armour from many similar ones still extant, by coupling it with the name of the Herald with whom it seems to be more particularly associated.

The contents of the Harleian MS. 1408, in which it is preserved, have at some time or other been bound up in a very irregular manner; and the present sequence of many of the pages is not to be taken as their original. This is obvious from the manner in which the leaves of the copies of the “First Dunstable” and “Carlaverock” Rolls have been mixed up together (see fo. 141 to 147^b). Moreover two apparently distinct hands, and certainly different modes of rendering the blazon, are observable in the Roll under consideration. I have therefore, it will be seen, transposed the leaves in order that the Roll (or fragment) may appear in what there seems reason for believing was its original form.

Each folio is ruled out into spaces in red ink; the names being written large above them, and the blazon, smaller, underneath. Folios 107 to 108^b inclusive, and folio 105, have nine spaces on each (i.e. three rows of three), and the writing is considerably larger than that on the succeeding folios. Folios 105^b and 106 have each twelve spaces (i.e. four rows of three); folio 106^b has fifteen (five rows of three); and folio 109 three spaces, and one beneath, for the four concluding coats.

At the top of folio 105 is written (? in a hand of the time of Elizabeth) "tempore H. 6."

87. S ^r Edmonde Vfforde. He berethe Sable, a crosse engrailed golde, a Baston in Bende siluer.	„	3
88. Sir John Cornewall'. He berethe Ermin, a lyon gouls crouned golde, a Bordre sable besanted.	„	4

2. These are the arms of Dutton.

3 and 4. These are the arms of Hungerford.

7. These are the arms of Creston, co. Norfolk. Papworth cites them from Glover's Ordinary as those of Sir Thomas Creston.

8. These are the arms of Stanley who married the heiress of Lathom, and quartered that coat.

9. Read Rockford.

10. Sir Thomas Criol, or Keriell, the last of the renowned Kent family of that name, and a general who greatly distinguished himself in the wars with France, so much so that his arms are said to have been augmented by the canton being superseded by another bearing the regal arms (France and England, quarterly). He was taken prisoner at the second Battle of St. Albans, and barbarously beheaded by the Lancastrians (A.D. 1461).

12. This coat is that given in Papworth's Ordinary as appertaining to the Honor of Clare or Clarence (i.e. Per chevron gu. and az. in the chief two lions ramp. combatant or), but here we have a fleur-de-lis of the third in base.

13. The arms of Eton, or Etton.

14. The arms of Shotisbrooke are Erm. a chief per pale indented or and gu. Also Erm. a chief per pale indented arg. and az. charged in dexter a rose of the last.

15. The arms of Elyman, or Ellingham; and of Elingham, or Elmham, co. Norfolk.

16. These are the arms of Chadwick, of Chadwick and Healey co. Lancaster; and Papworth cites them from Jenyns' Book as those of "John Chideok."

18. The coat seems to be incomplete. Gu. a bend lozengy between six cross crosslets or, was borne by Aubemarle; and Gu. a bend of five lozenges conjoined erm. between six cross crosslets or, by Aubemarle of co. Dorset. But possibly the blazon of the Roll should be Gu. crusilly and a cinquefoil or; over all a baston . . . , because we meet with a celebrated Umfreville in that period i.e. Sir Robert de Umfreville, K.G., one of the two sons of Thomas de Umfreville (ob. 10 Rich. II., 1386) brother of the half-blood to Gilbert third, and last, Baron de Umfreville who died in 1381. Sir Robert died without issue in 1436—Courthope, Historic Peerage.

19. The arms in the first quarter are of Bondville or Bonville, Sponton, co. York; and Papworth cites them from Willement's Roll as those of "Sir William Bonevill."

20. The arms of Babthorpe of Yorkshire are Sa. a chevron between three crescents erm.; and also Sa. a chevron or between three crescents erm. Query if the word escutcheon in the Roll be a mistake for chevron.

21. Papworth gives Gu. two flaunches (or voiders) indented arg. within a bordure or, as the arms of Delorey; also Gu. two flaunches indented arg. within a bordure vert bezanty, as those of Dollar. I can offer no explanation as to what the term "Anabeles" of the Roll is intended for.

22. "firne" here stands for fret; perhaps the word was originally frette, the small tt having been read as n.

23. Or, three chess-rooms gu., in the first quarter, is the coat of Colvill. Papworth cites the arms in the second quarter, from Willement's Roll, as those of "M. John Colvyle."

25. The word "encor" is doubtless a mistake for entor (i.e. entoury), the small t having been read c; and perhaps "seylys" is a similar mistake for foyls—the meaning being that the inescutcheon sable is within an orle of sixfoils of the same.

27. Read Barkele.

28. Given as the arms of Monford in Glover's Ordinary.

30. Papworth only gives Ellis for these arms; but has Pigot, Yorkshire, Or, on a cross gu. five escallops arg.

34. Roche, Walkneth, co. Lincoln, etc., Gu. three roach in pale arg. i.e. same arms.

35. Formerly the arms of the Barons of Thweng (Lucy sister and one of the co-heiresses of William second, and last, Baron de Thweng, married Sir Robert Lumley). Thomas second Baron de Lumley died circa 1497. He was grandson of Ralph first Baron (slain, and attainted, 1400); being son and heir of John de Lumley (restored in blood by Parliament in 1411, but slain at Baugy 1421) brother and heir of Thomas de Lumley (ob. under age 1404) eldest son of the first Baron. He obtained a reversal of his grandfather's attainder 1461, and was summoned to Parliament from then till 1497.

37. De la Rever, or Delariver (Berks), bore Az. two bars dancettée or. The blazon in the Roll seems to be intended however for Az. three fesses dauncy (or dancettée) or.

38. Giles Daubeney aged fourteen in 1410, and brother and heir to John (ob. in his minority) son and heir of Sir Giles Daubeney who died in 1402.

41. The arms in the first quarter are those of Stawell, co. Somerset; Martin, co. Devon, and Merton or Morton, bore the arms of the second quarter.

46. Thomas Hoo created Baron of Hoo, co. Bedford, and of Hastings, co. Sussex, 2 June 1447, to hold the title to him and his heirs male. He was Knight of the Garter, but died 1454 without male issue.

48. Read Malmaynes.

58. The arms given as those of the first quarter belong to Vernon of co. Cheshire. The coat quartered is wanting.

59. The arms of Earby. Borne, with a mullet of the first on the canton, by Ireby of Cambs. and Cumberland.

60. The coat of Eynsford, of Kent.

64. This supplies the tinctures of a coat cited by Papworth from the brass of John Lyndewode, dated 1421, at Linwood, co. Lincoln, i.e. ".... a chevron between three linden (or lime-tree) leaves"

65. Mr. Papworth gives Az. three quatrefoils slipped arg., for Hatcliffe, of Hatcliffe, co. Lincoln; and Az. three quatrefoils arg. slipped vert, for Atelyffe of co. Kent.

66. Sir John Scott, of Scot's Hall, co. Kent (son and heir of William Scott ob. 1433) was Sheriff of that county Ao. 39 Henry VI. (1461) and died in 1485. He was succeeded by his eldest son Sir William Scott.

75. The arms of Basket, of the Isle of Wight and co. Dorset.

76. These arms are assigned to Valence, but the name in the Roll appears to be intended for Valoigns.

79. The coat of Leke, Leake, or Leyke, of Lincolnshire.

82. Arms of the ancient knightly family of Curwen, of Workington, co. Cumberland.

83. Arms of Beltoft, of Lincolnshire.

85. The term sinople was used by the French heralds to express the tincture vert.

86. The arms of Widrington, Fenham, Northumberland. Papworth cites them from Willement's Roll as those of "M. Gerard de Wythryngton."

PEDIGREE OF NICHOLETTS OF THE HILL IN THE PARISH OF EASTHAM, CO. WORCESTER, AND OF HOPTON SOLLERS, CO. HEREFORD.

The following pedigree is an exact copy of a very curious old vellum roll, now in the possession of Col. Charles H. Nicholetts of Guildford, Surrey, to whom I am indebted for permission to print it. This roll appears to have been much injured by damp, so that it is perfectly impossible to decipher some parts of it. I have been enabled by the kindness of Capt. Nicholetts, R.N., to add some notes from ancient deeds in his possession; and for others from the parish Registers of Eastham I have to thank the Rev. Henry Browne, Rector of that parish.—GEORGE W. MARSHALL.

1. The original is written in three columns as here printed.

2. Elizabeth dau'r of Sturmy. Prattinton MSS.

4. Anne daughter of James Rowden of Rowden in the parish of Bromyard. In Eastham Parish Register is this entry of her burial, 1589. "Anna Nicholus vidua sepulta fuit i^o Die novembris." Against this entry is written in the margin. "Anna Nichollets vxor Will^m Nichollets gener." The name Nichollets is frequently spelt Nicholas in the earlier portions of the Eastham Registers. Thomas Nicholas, who I take to be one of the family, signs the Register as Curate, from its commencement in 1571 to 1600. The following entries in the Register may possibly relate to the above William Nichollets:—

Willielmus filius populi al'i filius Will^mi Nicklas ex corpore Isote Mychell baptizatus fuit xxij^o die Februarii, 1598.
Willielmus Mychell sepultus fuit xi^o die Julii, 1599.

If further proof be needed that the names Nicholas and Nichollets are synonymous, the following entry in the Eastham Register may be worth recording:—

1639. Margaret y^e daughter of Edward Bowen and Joane his wife of the p'ish of Saint Nichollets in y^e Citie of Worcester was borne in Estham, and baptized y^e xviiith of August.

5. James de Rowden or Rowden of Rowden in Bromyard married Joan dau'r of John Brown of Little Frome, and had, with a son who died s. p., Richard Rowden who m. Sibyl d. of Sir John Baskerville of Combe, Kt., and Anne wife of Will^m Nichollets. [Inf^a Rev. C. J. Robinson.]

6. Charles, son of William and Ann Nichollets, bapt. at Bromyard 9 Jan. 1544. Married Mary dau'r of Allen of Lowe.—Robinson's Mansions and Manors of Herefordshire, p. 17. The following entries, apparently relating to this Charles, occur in Bromyard Par. Reg. 1578, 1 Feb. Bapt. Samuel son of Charles and Mary Nichollets. Gabriel, 1581. Richard, 1585. 1587-8, Carolus Nichollets, gen. et M.A., buried 2 January. 1611, Walter Smyth, M.A., and Marie Nicholus, vid. apud Acton Beauchamp (married).

7. The following notes from his will, dated 24 July, 1617, the probate copy of which is in the possession of Captain Nichollets, R.N., throw some additional light on the pedigree.—He is described as "Richard Nicholletes of the parish of Eastham co. Worcester and diocese of Hereford." To be buried in the church or chancel of the parish church of Eastham—to William Nicholletes of Eastham and others a strike of munecorne, and twelve pence in money—to Dorothy Page a whoope [i.e., two pecks] of munecorne. My son in law

Thomas Hyckes, my daughter Mary Hyckes his wife, and her children William H., Thomas H., Richard H., Anne H., and Rebecca H., all under age. My son in law John Deyos, his three daughters Judith D., Frances D., and Sarah D., his younger son Richard D., all under age. Nicholas son and heir of said John Deyos, under age. My dau^r Elenor mother of the aforesaid children. My son in law John Jones, my dau^r Anne his wife, both mentioned as deceased; their children Ann Jones, George, William, and Edmund Jones. Cousin Anthony Lowe, William Lowe my godson. Sir John Lee curate of Eastham. My son in law Alexander Wallwen, and my daughter Sarah his wife, (they are mentioned as living at the Hill at this time) and their two younger sons Alexander Wallwen and William Wallwen. Godson Richard Howdon, Gent. My Sister Growther. My cousin Jane Sowley. My Cousin Mary Lowe. One bed-stend with round carved pillars which was by my mother's last will given to my cousin Richard Nicholletts my brother Charles his son, which now is in the cock loft at the Hill to remain there until my cousin Richard Nicholletts coming into the country. Wainscot at Wyeton. etc., to nephew Richard Nicholletts my son Williams son and heir. My brother Anthony. Son William Nicholletts to provide an alabaster stone to be set over my grave, to be of the same length as my grave, with the picture of me and my wife and six children, viz., four daughters and two sons, with a superscription about the same stone containing the day and year both of my wife's death and mine, and who's daughter and heir my wife was. Francis Kerry, D.D. is appted one of the overseers, (he was Rector of Eastham). Witnesses at the sealing and publication of the will 19 March 1619, Alexander Wallwen, John Deyos, Elenor Deyos. Proved at Hereford by Sarah Wallwen the sole executrix, 7 April, 1620.

His widow appears to have lived at Stockton. 1641. "M^{rs} Ales Nicholletts wid. of Stockton was buried at Estham y^e 2 of July." The above are from the Par. Reg. of Eastham.

11. 1643. Will^m Nichollets gent. of Arenbury was buried y^e xxiiijth of February. Monumental inscription at Eastham in Nash's Worcestershire, i. 364. William Nicholletts purchased lands in Avenbury, Much Cowarne, and Bishops Frome and Bewdley as appears from the following deeds.

Ind're dat. 26 April 1613, betw. James Husbundes of Wormebridge, co. Heref^d Esq^r [his wife's name was Mary] Hugh Walshe of Lyres Ocle, Esq. Deed of sale of lands in Avenbury from Francis Heyward to William Nicholetts, dated 30 March, 16 James I.

12. Margaret Wykes? By Indenture dat. 26 April 11 James (1613), Margaret Dowgin of Hopton Solers in the parish of Avenbury widow purchased for £50 Hornridge Leasow in the parish of Much Cowarne, being four acres, of James Husbards of Wormelbridge co. Heref^{ts} Esq^r, Hugh Walshe of Lyre's Ocle in the said Co. Esq^r, Thomas Walshe gent. son and heir apparent to said Hugh Walshe, and Thomas Walshe of Efters Moore in the parish of Holmer in said Co. Gent. brother of the said Hugh.

13. 1649. "William the some of William Nicholottes Esquier of Hopton was buried at Eastham the 5th day of May." See also Mont^{ts} in Nash, i. 364.

14. 1650. "Margaret the daughter of William Nicoletts Esquier of Hopton was Buried the xxiiijth of January."—Eastham Reg.

15. It appears from the monument of their father that these must have been all sons. Only one of them was buried at Eastham. "1651, Anthoine Nicklots the sonne of William Nicklots of Hopton Esquier was buried at Eastham the 18th of September." Mr Robinson in his Mansions and Manors of Herefordshire, p. 16, calls him Andrew. The others were George, and Richard, both buried at Stoke Lacy. See Duncumb's Hist. of Herefordsh., ii. 172.

16. 1655. "Mary the wyfe of Guilbert Nicholletts of Hopton in the Countie of Hereford Esquire was buried at Eastham the 10th of August."

17. Deyes of Eardisland.

18. "1616. Willyam ye sonne of Alexander Walweyn gent. was baptized the xxth date of October." 1619. "Pendlope the daughter of Alexander Walwin gent. of Estham was baptized the xith day of december."—Eastham Reg.

19. Francis Vnet of Castle Frome co. Heref^{ts} Esq^r, sold lands at Hopton Sollars, late in the occupation of William Nicholetts the younger, for £240, to William Nicholetts of Hopton Sollars the elder. Indenture dat. 10 Oct. 16 Car. I.

20. Blank in MS.

21. 1690. Buried Guilbert Nicholetts Gent the twenty-first day of July.

22. Probably the writer of this pedigree.

23. See Deed endorsed "Madame Nicholetts Joynture." Indre dat. 16 Oct. 1690, betw. Gilbert N. and Mary his wife of the one part, and Herbert Aubrey of Clebunger, co. Heref. Esq., and Richard Browne of Hall Court in the par. of Bishops Frome, gent., of the other. To levy a fine of the Hill in the par. of Eastham now in the occupation of Thomas Turberville, Manston at Hopton Sollars, lands in Much Cowarne, mansion of Wickton in par. Bredenbury, lands at Bromyard, etc., to use of said G. N. and Mary his wife, &c. This deed appears to give a very good account of the various estates than belonging to the Nicholetts. Mr. Robinson, "Mansions and Manors of Herefordshire," p. 17, states that Gilbert Nicholetts died 4 July, 1690, which would appear from the date of the above deed to be a mistake, in any case he must have been deceased before 11 Oct. 1694, as appears by a deed endorsed "Mortgage from Mrs. Mary Nicholetts and Edward Cornwall Esq. to Mr. Anthony Johnson." Indenture dat. 11 Oct. 1694, betw. Mary Nicholetts the younger of the city of Hereford widow relict and executrix of the last will and testament of Gilbert Nicholetts the younger late of Hopton, co. Heref., Esq., and mother and guardian of Gilbert Nicholetts son and heir of the said Gilbert, and Edward Cornwall of Moccas, co. Heref. Esq., of the one part, and Anthony Johnson of Whittney, co. Heref. gent. of the other part. Recites that Gilbert Nicholetts the father of Gilbert N. the younger was in his lifetime seized in fee of certain lands by purchase from Tringham Stephens, gent. and Millicent his wife, and whereas, etc., did by his last will dated 14 March, 1690, etc.

THE
VISITATION OF THE COUNTY OF NORTHUMBERLAND
MADE AND TAKEN BY RICHARD ST. GEORGE, Esq., ALIAS NORROY KING OF ARMS OF THE EAST, WEST, AND NORTH PARTS OF ENGLAND FROM THE RIVER TRENT NORTHWARD AND IN HIS COMPANY
HENRY ST. GEORGE BLEWMANTLE PURSUIVANT OF ARMS IN THE YEAR OF OUR LORD 1615.*

* In the year 1615 the Counties of Cumberland, Durham, Northumberland, and Westmoreland, were visited by Richard St. George, Norroy. The Visitation of Cumberland was printed by the Harleian Society, in 1873; that of Durham, at Sunderland in 1820; and Westmoreland at London in 1853. A few pedigrees from the Northumberland Visitation were privately printed by the late Sir Thomas Phillipps, but have never been circulated. No apology need therefore be offered for printing in its entirety the Visitation of Northumberland, the following copy of which is taken from Harleian MS. 1448. A few pages of each number of the 'Genealogist' will be devoted to its publication, and the Editor hopes that it will not be considered an unworthy addition to the numerous Visitations already in print. No copy of any other Northumberland Visitation exists outside the College of Arms. Though some MSS. in the Harleian collection profess to be such, they will on examination prove to be mere collections of Northumbrian pedigrees, not copies of Visitations properly so called.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE LANCASHIRE LIBRARY, ETC. By LIEUT.-COL. HENRY FISHWICK, F.S.A. London: 1875, 4to.

This work is a bibliographical account of books on Topography, Biography, History, Science, and Miscellaneous Literature relating to the County Palatine of Lancaster, including an account of Lancashire Tracts, Pamphlets, and Sermons, printed before the year 1720; with Collations and Bibliographical, Critical, and Biographical Notes, on the Books and Authors.

But few attempts to index books bearing upon the history of individual counties have been made since Gough at the end of the last, and Upcott in the beginning of the present century compiled their well-known works. Since then so large a number of books have been issued that it would be a labour too great for any single person to adequately catalogue in one work those relating to each county, and hence it is to those, who like Col. Fishwick, devote themselves to the history of a single county that we must look for lists of the books relating to it. We wish every county the good fortune to have as able and industrious a librarian. His preface clearly defines the contents of his book, and we think him in every way justified in his canon of admission. "Works" he says, "to be included in my list must be written about or refer to Lancashire places, persons, or things." Col. Fishwick tells us that he has been actuated by the same feelings as the French Author, who said that, "when he wanted a book he wrote it."

It must not be supposed that the Lancashire Library is like other books of its kind, a mere catalogue, it is far more than this, and therefore of much more value. Of each work a full and clear collation is given; with in many cases the price at which it was published and the present selling price, a brief biographical notice of the author, and in cases where it is scarce the name of the Library in which a copy will be found. Besides all this many valuable critical notes are scattered here and there throughout the volume. The contents are arranged in six parts, i. Topography, ii. Biography and Family History, iii. Poetry, Fiction, and Miscellany, iv. Works partly relating to Lancashire, v. Tracts and Pamphlets printed before 1720, vi. Sermons and Theological Treatises, Addenda, and General Index, and Index of Authors. As far as it goes the index is good, but it would have increased our obligation to the editor had an index of the names of persons incidentally mentioned been given. After examining all the books relating to other counties we have been able to find, and comparing them with Col. Fishwick's, we have no hesitation in saying that with one exception, Mr. Smith's 'Bibliotheca Cantiana,' it is more complete than any of them, and that it is quite on a par with that work. Every Lancashire library will be incomplete till THE 'Lancashire Library' finds a resting place on its shelves.

Having alluded to other catalogues of books having special reference to particular counties, and not being aware that any list of them has been published, we append the titles of those we have met with, under the impression that it may be useful to our readers:—

PAROCHIAL AND FAMILY HISTORY OF THE DEANERY OF TRIGG MINOR, IN THE CO. OF CORNWALL. By SIR JOHN MACLEAN, F.S.A. London: 1875, 4to. Part xi.

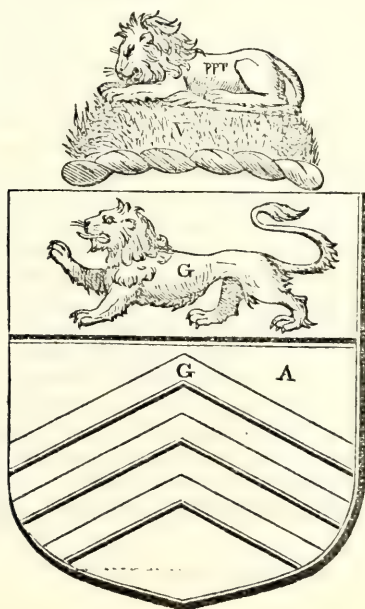

The History of St. Minver forms the first part of the third and last volume of this valuable contribution to County History. It was intended that the entire work should have been included in two volumes, but the long Family Memoirs given in the history of some of the parishes described, has necessitated the extension of the work to a third. The whole will be concluded in three more parts which will be sent to press as soon as the great research required for their proper preparation will permit. No genealogist who has read the complete and accurate pedigrees in the two volumes already published will regret the delay in the completion of a book of so much interest, not only to Cornishmen, but to all descended out of that County.

It is not only however for the Genealogist that Sir John Maclean writes, for he goes thoroughly into every detail which may prove of interest to the parochial antiquary, and of this his account of the Parish of St. Minver is an excellent example. A brief summary of its contents will best describe its value, they are:—i. Industries and condition of the working classes. ii. Geology. iii. Prehistoric Remains. iv. The Roman Station. v. Ancient Roads and Tracks. vi. Ancient Christian Monuments. vii. Meeting Houses of Dissenters. viii. The Rectory and Advowson of the Church. ix. The Vicarage. x. Institutions. xi. The Parish Church, of which a view and ground plan is given, with notices of the bells, altar plate, and monumental inscriptions. xii. Parish Registers. xiii. The chapels of SS. Guinedoc and Michael with monumental inscriptions, etc. xiv. Charities and Schools. xv. Manor of Penmayne alias Polmeane, and other places and manors too numerous to mention.

The family History of the parish is contained in no less than seventeen pages, which include accounts of the houses of De Cant, Reynward, Penkevill (with tabular pedigree, certified by Rouge Croix Pursuivant of Arms), Stone of Trevigoe (with ditto), Mably, Moyle or Moyles, Peters, Arundell of Trevelver, and a tabular pedigree of Darell and Stephens of Trewornan (also certified by Rouge Croix). These genealogies need no comment, for they give the AUTHORITIES on which the statements contained in them are based, and thus render of themselves the best praise which can be bestowed on their painstaking and laborious compiler.

Lastly we must not omit to mention that the work is illustrated with views of churches, monuments, ancient crosses, and well executed cuts of coats of arms. Those of the family of Penkevill, as entered in the College of Arms, of which by the kindness of the Editor we are enabled to reproduce the engraving, will give an idea of the manner in which most of the pedigrees are illustrated. Sir John Maclean is giving a valuable contribution to Cornish History, and we wish him goodspeed in the completion of his arduous labours.

'LEEDS PUBLIC LIBRARY, CATALOGUE OF SECTION P, HERALDRY, ETC.
Jan. 1876.

The works on Heraldry and Genealogy acquired by the Leeds Public Library have been well selected, and form the basis of what will in time prove a very valuable collection. There appears to be a growing taste for enquiry into these branches of History in the manufacturing districts of the North. We congratulate the people of Leeds on having free access to so good a Library, and can assure them that much more pleasure and profit is to be derived from such studies than is generally supposed.

THE COUNTY FAMILIES OF THE UNITED KINGDOM. By EDWARD WALFORD, M.A. 16th Edition. London: 1876, 8vo.

This is the most comprehensive annual publication of its kind. Under the title 'County Families' Mr. Walford combines all the information of the Peerages, Baronetages, Knightages, and Landed Gentry, relating to living persons, nay more, for he includes a great number of people who are not fortunate enough to have their names noticed in any of them. What Mr. Walford's canon of admission may be we are not informed, but he appears to include under the title 'County Families' everybody from Her Majesty the Queen, to the successful tradesman who has just left his counter, and called himself Esquire. In an annual publication of so extensive a kind, it is only natural that there should be many mistakes, and for these we can hardly blame the Editor who in his prefatory notices very candidly admits that they are often unavoidable. It is to people, who, like the readers of the 'Genealogist,' take a special interest in Genealogy, that he may fairly look for corrections and additions, and we hope that our readers will lend their aid in rendering the work more and more complete. In time to come books of this class will be of great assistance to the Genealogical enquirer, and it is therefore the more important that their information should be correct. Accuracy can only be attained by the timely aid of those personally interested.

The work would be much improved by the entire omission of the ever recurring title Esquire, always unnecessary, and very frequently applied to people who have not the shadow of a claim to such a distinction, and to whom, had it been applied in their lifetime, it would have probably been as distasteful as it is ridiculous. Mr. Walford expresses in his preface a true opinion when he says that, "the bearing of Arms, not of Titles, has ever been considered the distinctive mark of true noblesse." He would greatly add to the value of his book, if he would give the Arms of those legally entitled to such evidences of Nobility, and thus render it not only a list of 'County Families,' whoever they may be, but also, a 'Catalogue of the British Nobility.'

COOPER OF GOGAR.

“THIS baronetcy which was supposed to have become extinct in 1836 is now claimed, but not assumed, by William Cooper Esquire of Failford, as representative of the 3^d Son of the first Baronet.” Debrett's Baronetage, 1876, occurrences during printing.

This claim naturally suggests two questions: Was a baronetcy ever conferred on a Cooper of Gogar? Is Mr. Cooper of Failford the heir male of the Gogar family? A very easy investigation furnishes a negative reply to both. A short notice of Cooper of Failford as a “doubtful pedigree” by Anglo Scotus will be found in the ‘Herald and Genealogist,’ Vol. VIII., page 193, but this does not seem to have been effectual, and as a claim to a baronetcy is now advanced I propose to go a little more fully into the subject.

The name of Cooper is probably to be met with in every county of Scotland and is also common in England, but there is no reason to believe that all bearers of it descend from one progenitor.

Cupar in Fife and Coupar-Angus are places from which the surname may have been taken, but the occupation of Cooper is likely to have been the origin of the patronymic in at least as many cases. In Fifeshire the chartulary of the Priory of St. Andrews preserves the names of Dominus Salomone de Cupir 1245, Walter de Cupir 1288, Thomas de Cupir, Canon of St. Andrews 1406, and Thomas de Cupre, who was witness to a charter of Duncan, Earl of Fife.

In 1286 Peter de Cuper of Dundee witnesses a charter in favour of the Abbey of Balmerino. In 1483 William Cowper acts as a witness at Cupar, and five years later he, or a namesake, attained the honour of sitting in Parliament for that Burgh, where in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries the name was common among burgesses.

From the middle of the fifteenth century, various persons of the name figure in connexion with the Abbey of Dunfermline, one of them being David Cuper Alderman, whose seal was affixed to an indenture in 1507.

James Cowpar had a gift of plumbarie from the Abbot about 1560, and 1630 to 1633 Patrick Cowper represented the Burgh in Parliament; this family continued long afterwards to reside there.

There are pedigrees of the Coopers of Gogar and the families claiming descent from them in Playfair's 'British Family Antiquity,' in Paterson's 'Ayrshire,' both editions, and in Burke's 'Landed Gentry.'

Simon Couper "one of the Barons of Scotland who was compelled to swear fealty to Edward I., in 1296," is called the first ancestor; on referring to the Ragman Roll this baron shrinks to the modest dimensions of "Symond Cupre" of the county of Berwick, and it is certain that before the abolition of heritable jurisdictions in Scotland in 1747 no one of the name ever attained the position of lord of a barony.

In 1275 the Chartulary of Dryburgh mentions the lands of Christian Cowper in Ravenysden, near Berwick-upon-Tweed; in 1329 Alan Cowper of Inver receives payments for services as shewn by the Chamberlain Rolls, and in 1479 Laurence Coupar occurs as a witness at Berwick.

Playfair apologizes for being unable from "the destruction of the national as well as of private records" to go further back than Adam Cooper of Gogar living towards the close of the sixteenth century "whose ancestors had been settled at Gogar for many generations." His apology is hardly called for; in 1607 Parliament ratified a Crown Charter of Confirmation, dated 17 February 1601, in favour of Adam Couper, one of the Ordinary Clerks of His Majesty's Session, of the lands of Nether Gogar which he had purchased from the late Robert Logan of Restalrig. Adam's father was a Burgess of Edinburgh, and that seems to have been the rank of any persons of the name in Scotland who lived previous to this date.

Sir George Mackenzie remarks "that many surnames who alledge they came from France bear Ermine, and therefore I presume they came from Bretagne; for that countrey being upon the sea, its inhabitants were more inclined to travel than the other French, but some Families, as the Coupers, do for more security carry the Flower de luces and Ermines in one shield to signify their descent from France and from Bretagne in that kingdom."

It is a pity to dissipate such a pretty romance; but it has already been shewn that the name is found here in the thirteenth century, and what was the probable origin of it. The argument from arms is no stronger; the oldest authority for any bearing for the name is an illuminated manuscript in the Lyon office, compiled about 1565, which contains two coats; Cowper, azure, a bendlet engrailed between six fishes naiant counter naiant argent; and Couper, argent, a chevron gules charged with seven ermine spots between three trefoils slipped vert. Here we have no fleurs-de-lis, although the ermine does occur in one of the shields, which however has the appearance of being an addition at a later date to the collection.

No person of any name at all resembling Cooper ranked as noble in Brittany till the 28th August 1669, when Pierre Coupaye was admitted at the Réformation de Noblesse held that year, as having filled the office of Echevin of Nantes; he neither bore ermine nor fleurs-de-lis, but a more modern family the Couppé du Perblanc carry ermine.

The seal of Adam Couper of Gogar attached to a charter of the year 1608 in favour of his son and heir apparent John, has a cheveron ermine between three slips of laurel each with three leaves.

The heraldic MS. of Robert Porteus, Snowdown Herald, 1661, gives for Cooper of Gogar Argent, a cheveron gules surmounted of another ermine between three trefoils proper, with the motto Virtute; and when the 'Lyon Register' was formed in 1672 'The Right Worshipful Sir John Cowper of Gogar, Knight' recorded this, only altering the trefoils into laurel slips vert, and taking for crest a hand holding a garland.

The other coat dating from the sixteenth century makes its appearance in the Register in 1737 for David Cowper of Balleny, in the county of Edinburgh, as Azure, a bend engrailed between six fishes counter-naiant argent, with a dove with a serpent nowed in her beak proper for crest, and the motto ESTOTE PRUDENTES. This gentleman, who was a writer in Edinburgh and also possessed the lands of New Grange, seems to have been the first and the last of his family, as after his death his nephews, David Duncan and William Brown were in 1749 served heirs portioners to him.

William Cowper Bishop of Galloway 1612, who died in 1619 aged 53, bore on his seal a cheveron ermine between three laurel leaves, but in a funeral escutcheon arranged by Henry Fraser 'Ross Herald,' for one of his descendants, there is ascribed to him the coat given by Porteus. Bishop Cowper, whose father was a tailor and burgess of Edinburgh, had two brothers Andrew, a writer, who was tutor during their minority to his children, and Mr. John who was minister of St. Giles' in Edinburgh and of St. Mungo's in Glasgow, and in 1586 was imprisoned in the Castle of Blackness for refusing to pray for Queen Mary, then under sentence of death. He married Elizabeth Livingstone of the family of Baldowane, and died on Christmas Day 1603, leaving a family. The Bishop had daughters who married into the families of Maculloch of Myrtoun, Maclellan of Borgue, and Crawford of Skeldon, and several sons who seem all to have died except Andrew. This Andrew Cooper, Cowper, or Couper, I believe acquired the estate of Fentonbarns in Haddingtonshire by his marriage with Marion Preston, heiress of John Preston of Fentonbarns and Penicuik, Lord President of the Court of Session 1595 to 1616, and left a son and heir, William, and a daughter, Marjory who married Mr. John Hay of Woodcockdale, and was ancestress of James Bruce of Kinnaird, the traveller, and of the present Lady Thurlow.

The only other person of the name who made a figure in Scotland was Sir James Couper described as Admiral of the Belgian fleet; his parentage I have not discovered, but his heir at his death in 1697, was his niece Margaret Pow, whose father was head master of the grammar school of Leith.

To return to the Gogar family :

I. Adam the purchaser died in 1608, and his son by Katherine Dennistoun his wife (said to be of the family of Colgrain, but not mentioned in the carefully compiled pedigree by the late Dennistoun of Dennistoun, printed in Irving's 'History of Dumbartonshire.')

II. John of Gogar inherited his lands of Nether Gogar and others. He married Christian Skene said to be of the family of Halyards not far from Gogar, and lost his life when Dunglas Castle was blown up 30th August 1640.

It is this gentleman who is said to have been created a baronet. No patent is entered in the Great Seal Register and it does not seem anywhere to be asserted that the original exists. Playfair says he was elevated to this dignity in the year 1638 by Charles I. "for his rank and services" with remainder to his heirs male. Paterson adds that "he does not appear to have assumed the title. It is however alleged that the baronetcy was not created till 1646 in the person of his son." His testament in the Commissariat Register of Edinburgh describes him as "Jo" Coupar of gogar" and the cautioner for his widow who gives up inventory for her children who were minors, is David Gray, tailor, burgess of Edinburgh. Alexander Couper of Foulfurd Writer to the Signet was as next of kin tutor to the infants.

III. "John Couper of Nether gogar" was served heir to his father in various lands in the county of Edinburgh 27th October 1640. He was knighted before the 26th August 1643 and after that till 1686 appears in the lists of Commissioners of Supply, Members of the Committees of War etc. but is nowhere styled Baronet. In 1681 Sir John was chosen to represent the county in Parliament. By his wife Margaret Inglis of the family of Otterston he had two daughters.

1. Mary married Thomas Chalmers, Advocate, of the family of Auchebraes. Their son married Janet Fergusson heiress of Isle in the county of Dumfries and was ancestor of the present R. D. Gillon Fergusson of Isle, senior col heir of the Coupers of Gogar, who is entitled to quarter the arms.

2. Margaret married 28th October 1680 Archibald Graham Bishop of the Isles and had two daughters one of whom married Walter Graham of Kilmardinny.

Thus ended the direct heir of the family of Couper of Gogar and the estate was sold to pay debts incurred by Sir John.

Nothing seems to have been heard of a claim to its representation till the year 1775 when Mr. Grey Cooper, barrister-at-law, M.P. for Rochester, a relation of the influential family of Grey of Howick, and author of various pamphlets in support of the Rockingham administration (one of them entitled 'A Pair of Spectacles for Short-sighted Politicians'), made his appearance in Edinburgh, and was the 1st August served heir before the sheriff of the county to Sir John Cooper second Baronet of Gogar elder brother of his great grandfather. This service was never retoured to H.M. Chancery, and if it had been, could have conveyed no right to a title which had no existence.

The assumption however became generally recognized, and Sir Grey, who was Secretary to, and afterwards a Commissioner of the Treasury, in 1796 was made a Privy Councillor.

Four of his descendants were styled baronet, held a high position in the church and the army, intermarried with the families of Honynood of Evington, co. Kent, baronet, Kemays-Tynte of Halsewell etc., but his line expired on the death in 1850 of Sir Frederick called seventh baronet. The pedigree which the claimant submitted to a jury of "unprecedented respectability" stood thus: John Coupar second of Gogar had a second son James who seems to have been born in 1622; he is identified with

III. James Cooper, minister successively of the parishes of Wigton, Mochrum, and Humbie. He was deprived of his living as a non-juror in 1695 and was soon after Curate of Holy Island, where he died in 1701.

One would expect to find the son of a gentleman who had a residence in the town of Edinburgh and whose estate was only at a distance of five miles, a graduate of the University there, but the name of this James is not on the list. Then he was not licensed till 16th February 1663, when James the son of Gogar would have been over forty years of age. It is not impossible that the clergyman was the James, younger brother of Sir John, but it seems unlikely, and one would like to see the proofs that satisfied the jury.

By his wife Marjory or Margery, daughter of Cooke of Tweedinston, co. Durham, otherwise Marjory, sister of William Cooke of Tweedmouth, in Northumberland, James had a son.

IV. William Cooper, M.D. Berwick-upon-Tweed, who succeeded to the title but "suffered it to lay (sic) dormant."

This statement does injustice to his father; if the pedigree were true the Rev. James, who survived his elder brother Sir John many years, would have succeeded. His wife was "Margery, daughter of Anthony Compton, of Gainslaw Esquire, a junior branch of the ancient noble family of Compton Earls of Northampton." This branch has been ignored by the Heralds at their Visitations and by more recent genealogists, which matters the less as Mrs. Cooper does not seem to have belonged to it. Anthony Compton the purchaser of Gainslaw was Mayor of Berwick, an office also held by his father and namesake; he had only two daughters who survived infancy, Ruth, wife of Henry Selwyn, and Hannah, who married William Jones, Comptroller of Customs in Scotland. His son William, the only other Compton of Gainslaw, left an only child Hannah, Mrs. Ogle of Eglington.

V. William Cooper a physician at Newcastle-on-Tyne also "suffered the claims of the family to lie dormant," married Mary elder daughter and coheir of Edward Grey of Alnwick in Perth (sic) son of a younger son of Edward Grey of Howick, and died in 1758.

VI. The Right Honourable Sir Grey Cooper, Baronet of Gogar, proprietor of Wortlington co. Suffolk, married 1st, his cousin Margaret sister of Charles first Earl Grey. 2nd, Miss Kennedy of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, an heiress. "With a becoming spirit, a due regard to his own rights and those of his posterity, he set on foot and established his claim to the honours of his ancestors." From 1850 when Sir Grey's descendants in the male line expired this title has been again suffered to lie dormant. Such assumptions are not so easy now as they formerly were, and it may be expected that the claim of Mr. Cooper of Failford will only give him rank as a "claimant." His pedigree is set forth thus,—

III. William Cowper, born in May, 1629 another son of John of Gogar, is said to have served as an officer of Dragoons in the time of the Commonwealth, married Christian Scot, and settled in Dumbartonshire. The register of the parish of Kirkintilloch contains entries of the baptisms of children of this "William Cowper" without any military or other designation, and there were other persons of the name resident there at the time.

IV. John Couper or Cowper resided at Deardyke and afterwards, it is said, at the Tower of Banheath; the register calls him simply "John Cowper in this parish" at the time of his marriage in 1676 to Christian Gray. "James Cowper in the Brewhouse" occurs as a witness to baptisms of their children, but finds no place in the published lineage.

V. John Couper or Cowper married in 1708 Margaret Thom, both merely described as parishioners of Kirkintilloch and there is nothing to shew that they were above the rank of working people. In 1711 he is mentioned as "in Badinheath."

Rev. John Couper, "a clergyman in the county of Lincoln," changed the spelling of the name to Cooper and is said to have intended to claim the baronetcy of Gogar "but desisted therefrom on the appearance of Sir Grey."

He died unmarried and is said to have left considerable property to the children of his brother William. The Scots' Magazine has a notice of his death 21st September 1789, "at Glasgow in an advanced age. Mr. John Cooper formerly Minister of a dissenting congregation in England."

VI. William Cowper his brother a merchant in Glasgow, also changed the form of his surname to Cooper soon after 1754. "He purchased the Regality of Failfoord or Smeithston" in 1786. This "regality" is said to have been erected by Crown charter 1706 in favour of Sir Thomas Wallace of Craigie, but after the abolition of heritable jurisdictions in Scotland no privileges of regality existed and the description is no longer used. Mr. Cooper executed an entail of his estate of Smeithston 30th March 1793, in which there is an obligation on the heirs succeeding "to use and bear the name of Cooper."

VII. Alexander Cooper of Failford his eldest son, seems to have been in entire ignorance of the descent from Gogar now asserted and of the claim to a baronetcy he inherited from his uncle, as in 1805 he petitioned the Lyon King of Arms for a grant of arms which he obtained. They are, Argent, on a bend engrailed between two lions rampant gules three crescents of the field, a bordure chequy of the first and azure, being founded on the bearings of Cooper of Northumberland and Warwickshire with a bordure of Stewart, the patentee's mother being the daughter of a Glasgow merchant of that name. Crest, an oak tree with one of its branches borne down with a weight, and the motto INCLINATA RESURGO.

It is, to say the least of it, remarkable that Mr. Cooper, if a Scotchman, should have desired or accepted a coat of arms suggestive of English origin. This gentleman dying unmarried his brother and successor

VIII. Samuel Cooper of Failford also had a grant of the same arms but in the motto the word INCLINATA is dropped and he is allowed to use in addition the crest and motto of the Gogar family; 1839 is the date of this, and would appear to be the beginning also of the pretension to descend from Gogar which was fully developed in the minute pedigree, evidently based to some extent on original research, published in Paterson's 'History of Ayrshire' 1852.

In June of that year

IX. William Cooper of Failford, son and heir of Samuel, again registers arms expressing a desire "to make such alteration and addition to his arms as might identify the Scotch origin of his family and their former name of Couper or Cowper."

This desire was granted by the Lyon Court and the coat now stands; First, Cooper as before, second and third Ritchie and Crawford, for his mother an heiress; fourth Couper of Gogar within a bordure chequy arg. and azure as a difference. This seems a strange confusion of two paternal coats; if the Gogar descent were proved, the coat of that family, with or without difference, should have been allowed; if Scotch descent were shewn, the quasi English coat might have been dropped and one resembling that of Gogar granted, but as it is we have two opposing coats, so to speak, borne by the claimants to the representation of a Scotch family, the one which occupies the first quarter not being Scotch at all.

The arms as finally settled are engraved in 'Burke's Heraldic Illustrations' 1860, with the statement that Mr. Cooper of Failford "claims descent paternally from a common ancestor with the Coupers of Gogar baronets."

The only baronetcy of Nova Scotia ever conferred on a gentleman of the name is enjoyed by Earl Cowper the descendant of William Cowper of Rattling Court, co. Kent, who had been so created shortly before he was made a baronet of England in February 1641, but the patent is not recorded.

THE OVERBURY FAMILY.

LITTLE attention appears to have been paid by Genealogists to the descent of the well-known Sir Thomas Overbury whose murder by poison in the Tower as well as his literary productions have given his name notoriety in English History.* Mr. Dudley Cary Elwes, F.S.A., forwarded sometime ago the will of Sir Nicholas Overbury, father of Sir Thomas, of which he possesses the probate copy, together with some notes, for publication in the 'Herald and Genealogist,' edited by the late Mr. John Gough Nichols, but unfortunately owing to that gentleman's premature death only a portion of the notes, viz., those on Sir Thomas Overbury ('Herald and Genealogist,' viii. 446) appeared. Hence it is that Mr. Elwes, who is good enough to say that he regards the 'Genealogist' as the legitimate successor to Mr. Nichols' publication, has sent the following will, and several valuable notes, incorporated in the annexed tabular pedigree, for publication in the 'Genealogist.' Had Mr. Nichols lived, Mr. Elwes thinks that he would probably have added many interesting notes to the will of Sir Nicholas. I have endeavoured to supply their place by giving a brief account of the Overbury family in the form of a tabular pedigree. For access to the Records in the College of Arms I am much indebted to John de Havilland, Esq., York Herald, without whose kind assistance it would have been far from complete. I have also to thank Mr. Elwes for many valuable notes and references; and for the entries in parish registers, which have very materially aided me, my thanks are due to the Rev. T. P. Wadley, M.A., Rector of Naunton Beauchamp; and also to Col. Chester, without whose liberal aid I should not have been able to identify with certainty the burial place of Sir Thomas Overbury.

EDIT. GENEAL.

* A popular account of Sir Thomas Overbury will be found in Chambers's 'Book of Days,' ii. 580. A life is prefixed to Mr. Rimbault's edition of his works in the 'Library of Old Authors,' 1856, 8vo. Mr. Rimbault was evidently ignorant as to his genealogy. See also 'The Miscellaneous Works in Prose and Verse of Sir Thomas Overbury, Kt., with Memoirs of his Life.' London, 1756. 10th edn. † Buckland is very near Broadway, co. Worcester, where a Walker family resided at this time, and where Margaret Walker was mar. to William Dickens in 1547, and Anthony, son of John Walker, was baptized in 1551. Mary Overburie was one of the sponsors at the baptism of Mary da. of Anthony Walker at Aston sub Edge, 14 July, 1583.

To the Editor of THE GENEALOGIST.

Sir,—I beg to make a remark on the paper in your last number headed "The Arms of Sir Francis Drake."

One of the main points of controversy between myself and Dr. H. H. Drake (as will be seen by reference to the Articles in the 'Herald and Genealogist' and the 'Archæological Journal') is whether the words:—

"Notwithstandinge that he the said Sr Francys Drake, beinge well borne and descended of worthie ancestors such as have of long tyme boren Armes as tokens and demonstrations of their race and progenie, which lykewyse to him by iust descent and prerogatyve of birth ar duly deryvid, may for the Armes of his surname and family beare Argent a wever dragon volant guesles with the difference of a third brother, as I am credibly infourmid by the testimony of Bernard Drake of _____ in the Countie of Devon Esquire chief of that coatearmure, and sondrey others of that family of worshippe and good credict."

Or as the paragraph stands in the MS. Coll. Arm. F. 12 fo. 163-4:—

"Notwithstandinge the sayd Sr Francys Drake may by prerogative of his birth and by iust descent from his ancestre bear these Armes of his surname and family to witt Argent a Wyvern Dragon guesles wth the difference of a third brother, as I am verily enformed by the testimony of Barnard Drake of _____ in the county of Devon Esquire chief of that cotearmur and sondry others of that family of worthy and good credit."

were, or were not, inserted in the actual Grant of Arms to Sir Francis Drake?

My contention is, that the paragraph was not inserted ;—that it was at one time proposed for insertion ; but for some cause or another it was omitted from the Grant. It appears to me that the Bodleian MS. quoted in the ‘Genealogist’ very distinctly supports my view.

It is clear that there were several drafts and sketches for the Arms made before the armorial bearings to be assigned to the great Circumnavigator and the actual terms of the Grant were settled.

In the Harl. MSS. Nos. 1154 and 1172, and in the MS. Coll. Arms ‘Misc. Grants,’ vol. ii., p. 181, will be found copies of an apparently perfected Grant to Sir Francis signed “Rob^t Cooke al’s Clarencieux Roy d’Armes.” These copies, which are identical in terms, are dated 20th June 1581, and do not contain the paragraph in question.

Dr. H. H. Drake however rejects the above as copies of the actual Grant, and relies upon the unsigned MS. to which I have referred as in the College of Arms, marked “F. 12,” which is entitled “The cōpye of an instrument made for S^r Frauncis Drake for his Armes 1581,” and which is manifestly a copy of one of the many drafts that were prepared.

That MS. I find on examination was, as originally written (for much of it was subsequently erased by a pen), identical with the Bodleian MS. printed in the ‘Genealogist,’ and there stated to have been “abridged and made shorter,” and the debateable clause inserted ; but the copy of the Grant with Cooke’s signature attached, which is given at fo. 38 of the Bod. MS. does not contain the clause, although that MS. is specially referred to in fo. 37, as being the draft ultimately adopted.

I believe the copy given in the Bod. MS. p. 38, is a copy of the Grant actually made to Sir Francis Drake.

First. Because it bears date 21st June, a day subsequent to that inserted in the Grant, copies of which are in the Harl. MSS. and the College of Arms, as before mentioned.

Second. Because it contains the words “a read dragon volant sheweth itself regarding the said direction,” which were omitted in the Harl. MS. and Coll. Arms copies ; but which were necessary to the correct description of the Arms as drawn in fo. 38 of the Bod. MS., and as shewn in a sketch by Vincent preserved in the Coll. of Arms (MS. 184, p. 54).

I submit that the Grant of the 20th June was completed and signed by Clarencieux ; but that the accidental omission from it of the reference to the red dragon or wyvern, led to its re-engrossment and re-execution on 21st June.

In neither the one completed Grant nor in the other does the paragraph in question occur, and the distinct statement in p. 37 of the Bodl. MS., confirms my opinion that it never formed part of the Grant although a proposal was at one time made that it should do so. Whether or not the reason I have, in the controversy, suggested for its omission is correct will of course remain a debateable point.

I am, Sir, your obedt. Servt.,

WILLIAM R. DRAKE.

WOLLATON AND THE WILLOUGHBY MONUMENTS.

THE interesting paper under this heading in the 'Genealogist' of April 1876 induces me to offer to your readers some details in elucidation of the history of that great family.

Sir Francis Willoughby of Wollaton, who "hoc monumentum posuit 1591" (p. 167) had for his first wife Elizabeth Lyttelton, d. of Sir John Lyttelton of Frankley. The name of his second wife,—“a short time before his death he was married to a young wife”—(p. 168), was I presume unknown to Captain Lowe, and is unknown to me. I now transcribe from the originals two letters: the first discloses the state of domestic affairs at Wollaton soon after Sir Francis Willoughby's second marriage, when there was an expectation of possibly an heir male: the second gives the date of his death within, I suppose, a few days. These letters are among the papers of my friend Charles Michael Berington, Esq., of Little Malvern Court. I gave an account of his collection in four letters in the 'Worcester Herald' in 1871. I am glad to take the opportunity of printing these which is afforded by Captain Lowe's Willoughby details.

Small foolscap size, folded across the length in three folds, then doubled so as to form a shape a little smaller than the present square postage envelope. Address, outside,

“To my lovinge firend | M^r Rowland Russell | at Wollerton | d.d.”

It is endorsed in a very fine hand of the day

S^r Michaell Worthie the notinge.”

And this is the letter—

“After my hartie comendacons my man Tho. Leaver is to buy cattell in y^r country. And to avoyde daunger of Carriage of monney he desireth to be furnyshed there, w^{ch} I praie ye do, and whatsoeu^r ye delyu^r him takinge his bill for yt I will vppon the sight of it pay at london. And so desiringe y^t my hartiest comendacons may be delyu^d to you, S^r Francis, to both the ladies to yorself & to all o^r frends

"MICHAELL MOLYNS.

"I have Rec. xxth of leaver and whatsoeu' he will more you shall have at london.

"I praie ye advise S^r francis directly from me to suffer none of his daughters to be in the company of my lady: for in the case shee ys yt is nott fitt for her to have contynuall waris wth them, w^{ch} shee shalbe suer of if they contynew wth her. And lett him Remember wthall That all his daughters be mortall enemyes to an heire male and therefor how unfitt their company is for her his wisdom can discern, I have talked wth my l. kep. of all S^r fra: causes from topp to toe at great laysure & I hope I have don moche good in yt.

"I have written manny lres. but how they be d.d. god knowth."

The fears of the daughters of the first marriage were not realized. Whatever it was that happened it is certain that no issue of the second marriage survived to share their claims. But the young widow seems to have revenged herself.

The l. kep.—Lord Keeper—in 1596 was Sir Thomas Egerton, afterwards Lord Ellesmere and Viscount Brackley. Such copious statements as this should be recollected when the case against the next Lord Keeper and Chancellor, Bacon, has to be considered.

Sir Michael Molyns, the writer, was of Clapcote, which he spells Clopecott, Reading. He died in 1615: and in the old St. Peter's, Reading, his monument was to be seen. It is mentioned by the brothers Lysons, in their Berkshire.

II.

This letter, on paper of the same size as the other, is in a very tattered state, the result of the neglect and damp which I described in the 'Worcester Herald.' It is addressed "To mye good ffrende | Mr. Rowland Russell | these be | d.d."

M^r Rowland will heare newes this daye at Nott. w^{ch} maketh manie well wyllers to the house of Woolloughton verie sorie, that is of the deathe of S^r frauncis. I praye God y^t be not trewe. I shalbe glad to heare that they be well & see wth a greate longing to heare from you I cease. Nott. . . . s 16th of Novebre, 96.

"Yo^r eve^r assured

"MYLES LEIGHE."

The "Nott" in this letter is of course Nottingham, near which is Wollaton.

Rowland Russell, to whom the two letters are addressed, was son of Henry Russell and Milburga Brocton his wife. Henry Russell was joint purchaser with his brother-in-law Charles Brocton of the dissolved Priory of Little Malvern, in the time of Philip and Mary. Neither of them had any hand in the violence and sacrileges of the dissolution: but acquired the property under the authority of the Crown acting in concert with the Holy See. The original Deed, with the Great Seal attached, remains quite perfect, and in great beauty, in the possession of Mr. Berington. Myles Leigh names two of Rowland Russell's brothers, Henrie and Charles. But the eldest brother John R. was the person by whom the Russell family was brought into relation with the house of Willoughby. He had been dead, I believe, some years, at the date of these. He married two wives—the first was Mary Willoughby, who died in 1580 and was buried in the old church of Welland; in which was a monument to her, seen and copied by Habington, and by Nash copied from him. I made a copy of it from Habington's MS. which I had in my house for some weeks by the obliging favour of the late Lord Lyttelton. She is described as Mary Willoughby daughter to George Willoughby of Neatherton in the Parish of Cropthorne, Worcestershire. And her arms are given, Or, a fret Azure; that is, Willoughby d'Eresby. I am not at present able to give any further information as to this alliance. John Russell had no children by either of his marriages. His second wife was Jane daughter of Lord Lumley. Rowland Russell's brother Henrie succeeded to the representation of the Russells of Little Malvern. He says of himself in his Will (pences Sir Edmund Lechmere, Bart.), "St Johns College in Oxford when I was brought up in lernyng." He was also Principal of Gloucester Hall—now Worcester College—which at that date, says Antony a Wood, 'Hist. et Antiquitat. Univ. Oxon.,' under the year 1568, was, "Pontificiorum sub hæc perfugium." In 1591 he had returned to Little Malvern and married Elizabeth Pakington, from which marriage the line of the Russells was continued. I have not been able to find any notice of a marriage of Rowland Russell. I presume he was never married. Myles Leigh's remembrances to his brothers, without mention of a wife, raise a negative presumption against his being married in 1596. His brother Charles was married and had issue.

NOTICES OF BOOKS.

THE HISTORY OF CHESHIRE. By GEORGE ORMEROD, Esq., LL.D.
New Edition. By THOMAS HELSBY, Esq. London, 1876, folio.
Parts III. and IV.

Mr. Helsby is steadily progressing with his useful work. The additions to the original text in the parts before us amount to no less than ninety-six pages, so that very nearly one-third of their contents is entirely new matter; and this it should be remembered is very fairly distributed over the whole of them,—an evidence of how great is the labour spent upon this new edition.

Part III. completes the history of the city of Chester. Amongst the most noteworthy additions it contains are the portraits of Sir Peter Leycester and Sir Thomas Mainwaring, from the plates used by the Chetham Society in their edition of the Amicia Tracts, the engraving in the first edition, which purports to be a portrait of Leycester, having been found to be that of some other and unknown member of his family, and therefore devoid of interest. The lists of Rectors and Vicars of the different Churches have been much augmented. That of the Prebendaries of St. John's has been entirely rewritten. The monumental inscriptions from the Cathedral and Parish Churches are continued up to the present time, though not with that completeness which might have been done. Collecting monumental inscriptions is no doubt tedious work. Ormerod, evidently tired of copying those in the Cathedral, gives from many merely the names and dates, with the remark (p. 296)—“The following dates of the decease of the several individuals are selected from other memorials, too long and numerous for transcription.” The mantle of Dr. Ormerod has clearly fallen upon Mr. Helsby, who says (p. 345)—“To show the full number of monuments in this small but interesting church [St. Olave's], it may be added that there are two other tablets, but the above are sufficient to give a proper idea of its former condition.” Mr. Helsby should also, when transcribing inscriptions omitted by Ormerod, have compared Ormerod's copies with the originals, by which mistakes such as that in the impalement of the Bennet coat, p. 324, might have been corrected. Ormerod gives it as “Barry of six Sable and Ermine, on a canton Gules three fleur (sic) de lis Or;” it should be, Barry of six Ermine and Azure, on a canton Argent a fleur de lis Gules. Most of the churches of Chester have suffered “restoration” since the days of Ormerod, or as Mr. Helsby puts it, have been restored “to what may be considered, architecturally, their mediæval grandeur.” We should like to know how much destruction of sepulchral monuments this restoration has involved.

In Part IV. the Hundred of Bucklow commences the parochial history of the county, and it is here that we watch with most interest the additions and corrections in this new edition. In some minor points which we shall point out they fall short of what they might be, but taking them as a whole they do great credit to the untiring spirit of research which has enabled Mr. Helsby to contribute so much towards the completion of Cheshire history, and place him in the first rank of county historians. His additions to the pedigrees are in many instances both numerous and valuable. A comparison of the pedigree of Carington of Carington and the notes thereto, as given at p. 544, with the same in the old edition is an excellent example of the way in which the work is being done. In most cases the pedigrees have been continued to the present time. More attention appears to have been paid to the earlier portions than the later; in these the frequent omission of the authorities upon which they are founded is much to be regretted. The places of baptism, marriage, and burial are not given. It is of little use saying that a man was born, married, or died at a certain time, unless reference be made to the record which enables us to prove the correctness of the assertion. Without references to the Wills, Fines, Parish Registers, and Records, which afford proofs of a genealogy, it is seldom worth much more than the paper on which it is printed. This remark applies just as much to the most modern generations in a pedigree as to the old ones, for when the time comes when it may be necessary to prove the pedigree by evidence, the modern generations may have themselves become old by the slow but steady progress of time.

The way in which the additions are made in this part needs some little correction. As they now stand it is not easy to see which are those made by Ormerod to Leicester and by Mr. Helsby to Ormerod. For instance, those at page 431 are by the former, those at page 435 by the latter; and again at p. 517 the new additions end at line 20, the following text being part of the original work. We point this out because all the credit due ought to be given to the editor for the new matter.

We must not omit to mention the new heraldic woodcuts which replace those of the old edition; they are well executed, are a great improvement on the old ones, and form one of the most attractive features in the book, and with one or two exceptions appear to be correctly drawn.

The coat of Egerton-Warburton, p. 573, has been copied from that in the former edition as the arms we presume intended for those of the present Mr. R. E. Egerton-Warburton of Warburton and Arley,—they being in fact the arms of his grandfather, 1 and 4 WARBURTON, 2 and 3 EGETON, with WARBURTON quartering CROXTON (?) on a shield of pretence, the arms of his wife Emma, dau'r and heir of James Croxtton by Emma, sister and coheir of Sir Peter Warburton. These should have been quartered with those of Egerton-Warburton in the new engraving.

Two other coats which have been re-engraved will also attract attention,—those of Massy, p. 520, and Ashley, p. 557. To each, without a word of comment, has been added, not merely as an ornament to the helmet (as may be intended in the case of a feather stuck into that over the shield of Millington, p. 448), but as a Crest, A panache set upon a wreath. If these crests have since the time of Ormerod been discovered to be those of the Massys and Ashleys, their rarity renders them sufficiently remarkable to need some explanation of their origin; if not, they look as if some enterprising seal engraver had been employed to find them. The curious reader may compare these drawings with those in Montague's 'Guide to the Study of Heraldry,' pp. 48 and 49.

It is announced that to the original copper plates which illustrate the work will be added such new steel engravings as the liberality of the public may supply, two or three of which have already been promised. Only two or three! This does not say much for the liberality of the good people in Cheshire. We urge them before it is too late to give Mr. Helsby a plentiful supply of new illustrations, and thus shew their appreciation of the great and useful work he is doing for their county. The opportunity now theirs of illustrating as it should be done one of our best county histories, is one not likely to occur again for many a long year to come, during which 'Helsby's Ormerod' will be the standard History of Cheshire.

GENEALOGICAL MEMORANDA RELATING TO THE FAMILY OF DERING OF SURRENDEN-DERING IN THE PARISH OF PLUCKLEY, KENT.
From the Records of the College of Arms. By the Rev. FRANCIS HASLEWOOD, A.K.C. London, 1876, 4to.

Our correspondent Mr. Haslewood, who some time ago contributed to these pages a very interesting pedigree of the Haslewood family, in illustration of one of Le Neve's Knights, has printed an excellent account of the old Kentish house of Dering. It contains two pedigrees of that family, taken from the Records of the College of Arms, an extensive collection of register extracts, monumental inscriptions, and abstracts of wills, together with woodcuts of the Dering arms, and of the brass of Julyen Dering Gentylwoman in Pluckley Church, who died in 1526. The cut of the arms of Dering with fifty-nine quarterings, as entered in Norfolk vii. 157, in the College of Arms, and certified by Windsor Herald, is a capital example of heraldic engraving. All Kentish antiquaries ought to be grateful to Mr. Haslewood for giving such a valuable contribution to their county history. The only improvement which can be suggested is an index of names,—an unfortunate omission which, if Mr. Haslewood would supply, could not fail to add to our obligation to him. It may not be out of place to mention that a few copies have been printed for subscribers, and that those who wish to secure one should, before it is too late, communicate with Mr. Haslewood.

JESUITS IN CONFLICT, OR HISTORIC FACTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE LABOURS AND SUFFERINGS OF THE ENGLISH MISSION AND PROVINCE OF THE SOCIETY OF JESUS. London, 1873, 8vo.

ALPHABETICAL CATALOGUE OF MEMBERS OF THE ENGLISH PROVINCE, S. J. WHO ASSUMED ALIASES OR BY-NAMES, TOGETHER WITH THE SAID ALIASES. By a Member of the same Society. Manresa Press, 1875, 8vo.

'The Jesuits in Conflict' is the first volume of an intended series illustrating the lives of eminent members of the Society of Jesus. The persecutions of Catholics during the seventeenth century, and the difficulty of obtaining access to historical documents relating to them during the eighteenth, are very sufficient reasons why we know so little of those brave and persevering men who in the troublous times which succeeded the English Reformation sacrificed their lives and property rather than forsake the religious faith of their ancestors. The object of the present volume is to draw forth from the shades of obscurity, in which they have been too long buried, three English Members of the Society of Jesus,—Thomas Pounce, George Gilbert, and Thomas Darbyshire. Of each of these a biographical memoir is given, from which, had we the space to do so, we could extract much interesting information indirectly of use to genealogists; as it is, we can only say that the lives are amusingly written, evidently the result of much research, and will well repay perusal.

The Alphabetical Catalogue of Members of the English Province of the S. J. who assumed aliases is of great value to the genealogist. It should be remembered that the Jesuits of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries numbered among their body many of the English nobility who refused to conform to the Established Church; and, observes the author in his preface, “in the days of open and violent persecution, not only hiding places were resorted to, but also aliases or by-names, which render it at times exceedingly puzzling to the historian and general reader to identify persons.” In this catalogue about 600 Jesuits, chiefly priests, many of whom were known by several aliases, are identified, the real names being printed on one page and the aliases on the opposite. The order is alphabetical, and thus reference is easy. There are few old families in whose genealogical tree some member will not be found who preferred the Catholic to the Reformed Religion, hence the value of such a work as this. It is much to be regretted that it has been issued for private circulation only, but we learn with pleasure that an entirely new Collectanea is in the course of gradual preparation, to which it is intended to annex this catalogue, with other historical data. We trust that this work may be made public, as it cannot fail to be of value to historians and genealogists.

THE NEW YORK GENEALOGICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD. Vol. vii. Parts 1, 2, and 3. New York. January to July, 1876.

The New York Record, a quarterly Magazine devoted to the interests of American Genealogy and Biography, deserves to be better known on this side the Atlantic than it is. Though professedly devoted to American Genealogy, it will be found to supply many a missing link in the genealogies of the Old Country. If evidence were needed that the American people are fully alive to the value of preserving records of hereditary descent, and of the good influence of the knowledge of it when recorded, none better could be appealed to than the valuable papers rescued from oblivion by the Record. A work of this kind will in the course of one or two centuries be to the New World exactly what the records of our College of Arms now are to us, the Libro d'Oro of its old noblesse. In the numbers before us may be mentioned the biographical accounts of Capt. Bryan Newton and John Ledyard, the able memoirs of the ancient families of New York by Edwin R. Purple, the records of the Dutch and Presbyterian Churches of New York, and those of the Society of Friends. All these papers are of more than local interest; they will well repay the time spent in reading them, and we can but regret that it is beyond our power to find room for a succinct account of their contents.

MEMORIALS OF THE FAMILIES OF HATCH IN DEVONSHIRE.

Arms recorded Visit. Devon 1531.

Arms in Visit. Devon 1620.

Introductory Note.

The HATCH (written indifferently "Hatch," "Hacche," "Hach") family were established as landowners in Devonshire at an early period. Sir William Pole* states that the Manor of Hach-Arrondell, which had previously belonged to the family of Arondel of Sandford-Arondel in Somersetshire, was in the reign of Edward I. held by Adam de Hach, and in the 19 Edward III. (1345-6) by John de Hach; adding, that that property appears to have remained in the Hatch family until the reign of Henry IV. :—Robert-at-Hach was Sheriff of Devon 25 Edward III. (1351).

There does not appear to be any evidence, beyond identity of surname, to connect Adam, John, or Robert Hach with Eustace de Hacche, who, about the 7th Edward I. (1278-9) obtained a charter for free warren in his demesne lands of Hach in Wiltshire, and who, in the 27th year of the same king (1298-9) was summoned to Parliament as a baron of the realm and died in 1305 without male issue; nor can relationship be established (so far as I am aware) between them and Geffery de Hatch, the common ancestor of the several branches of the family who flourished in Devonshire; beyond the inference to be drawn from the fact that Hugh Cotgrave, "Richmond Herald," who compiled a pedigree of one of those branches,† ascribed to Geffery the coat of arms borne by Eustace de Hacche, and assigned in a Roll of Arms‡ (compiled between 1337 and 1351) to "Monsire de Hach," viz.: "Or, a cross engrailed gules."

* Collections for Description of Devon, p. 302.

† Harl. MSS. 3967, p. 180. The pedigree was compiled whilst Cotgrave held the office of Richmond Herald, to which he was appointed in 1566; he died in 1584.

‡ Rolls of Arms, Hen. III. and Edw. III., edit. by Nicolas, Lond. 1829. p. 4.

It is probable, however, that there was near relationship between Robert-at-Hach and Geffery de Hatch (who were contemporaries), as "Hatch" became the inheritance of the descendants of the latter.

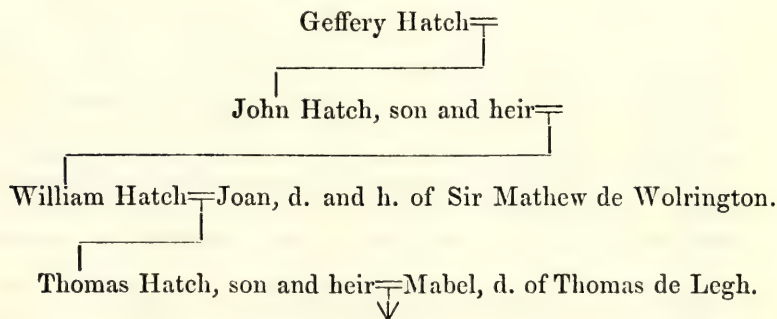

Sir William Pole (Descrip. Devon, p. 210) refers to a deed of the date of 1321 between the abbot of Glastonbury and William Powlet touching lands in "Legh" which Lucas de Hatch and Alis his wife held; and for the marriage of John Powlet who was then within age. Risdon (Survey Devon, Ed. 1811, p. 306) states that Geffery Hatch's daughter brought by her marriage "Hatch" and "De la Legh" to Wolrington. This would lead to a presumption that Geffery de Hatch became the heir of Robert-at-Hach and Lucas de Hach.

The records of the College of Arms uniformly give Geffery de Hatch as the progenitor of the two families of "Hatch of Aller" in South Molton, and "Hatch of Wollegh" in the parish of Beaford, both in the county of Devon. See Visit. Devon, 1531 (MS. Coll. Arms, H 18, p. 87). Visit. Devon, 1564 (MS. Coll. Arms, D 7, p. 110* and Harl. MSS. 5871, p. 14*), Visit. Devon, 1620 (MS. Coll. Arms, I. C. I., p. 218^b), Visit. Cornwall, 1620 (MS. Coll. Arms, 2 C. I., p. 398*).

Although the Heralds in the Visitations derive the descent from Geffery, some doubt exists whether the family of Hatch of Wollegh descend from a Son or a Daughter.

The evidence in favour of the descent being through a Son, is to be found in the Pedigree of Mallett (who by marriage with the heiress of the elder branch of Hatch of Wollegh became possessed of that property in the time of Henry VIII.), entered in the Visitation of Devon in 1564, and again in the Visitation of Cornwall in 1620.

Both those pedigrees give the first four descents as follows:—

* These references are to pedigrees of the Mallett family, into which the heiress of Hatch of Wollegh married, temp. Hen. VIII. The Devon Visitations of 1531 and 1620 record the pedigree of Hatch; but it does not appear (except in connection with the Mallett descents) in the Visitation of 1564.

It should also be noted that the arms given to Hatch in the Visitation of Devon, 1531, favour the assumption that Geffery had two sons, inasmuch as the coat there recorded bears a crescent, the cadency mark of a second son.

The evidence of the descent of Hatch of Wollegh from a Daughter, instead of a Son, of Geffery de Hatch is Cotgrave's Pedigree before mentioned, which will be found in the Harl. MS., No. 3967, p. 180, entitled "A book containing the descents of the antient Devonshire gentry labored and written by Hugh Cotgrave, Rychmonde Heralde; and soon after perused and approved by persons learned in Heraldic knowledge," etc., which gives the descent as follows:—

Mathew de Wolrington = Daughter and heire* of Geffery de Hach.

William de Wolrington de Hach = Sara.

William de Atwater, son of John = Joane, daughter and heire.
Atwater of Southmolton.

Thomas suscepit sibi = Mabel daughter and heire nomen de Hach. of Thomas de Legh.

Cotgrave's Pedigree is supported by Risdon (Survey Devon, p. 306), except that he differs in the number of descents intervening between Geffery de Hach and Thomas de Atwater, who is alleged to have taken the surname of Hach, the Pedigree giving three, whilst Risdon gives four generations.

Cotgrave's Pedigree is also supported in the main by Sir William Pole,† who states that Thomas Hatch married to Mabel, daughter and heir of Thomas Leigh, of Leigh, near Tiverton, and made Wollegh his dwelling-place in the time of King Edward III., and he describes this Thomas as "the son of Robert, the son of William Atwater of Molton and of Jone his wife, daughter and heire of William Wolrington of Hach, from which place (Sir William adds) his posterity took their name."

Although Cotgrave, Pole, and Risdon differ slightly in the deduction of Thomas Hatch's pedigree, they all agree with

* The statement by Cotgrave that the daughter was an heiress would certainly appear to be an error. If so, and if Risdon is correct in alleging that "Hatch" and "de la Legh" were possessed by Geffery de Hatch, it is not at all probable that he would have given those properties to a daughter instead of a son; this view would appear to support the accuracy of the Visitation Pedigrees which give to Geffery two sons, from the elder of whom the Wollegh branch of the family descends.

the Heralds' records as to the subsequent descents, and in the fact of intermarriages having occurred between the Hatch, Atwater, and Wolrington families.

As regards the descent of "Hatch of Aller" from a son of Geffery de Hatch all the authorities concur; but evidently in the Visitation of 1531, he is erroneously described "of Wolley in the county of Devon;" inasmuch as the Hatch family did not acquire the Wollegh property until the marriage of Robert Hatch, son of Thomas and Mabel de Leigh, with Wenllyan, daughter and heir of Sir Thomas Murdock, of Compton Murdock, Warwickshire (see Risdon's "Survey," p. 269), and it is to be noticed that Cotgrave in his Pedigree does not give the description "of Wolley" earlier than the grandson of Robert Hatch and Wenllyan Murdock.

As regards the ARMORIAL BEARINGS given by the Heralds, there is evidently some confusion and inaccuracies. The quarterly coat tricked in the Pedigree of HATCH of ALLER in the Devonshire Visitation, 1620, is certainly incorrect, inasmuch as three of those quarterings refer to the Wollegh and not to the Aller branch, viz.:—MURDACK, Or, a fret sable. DERWYN, Gules a fess ermine debruised of a pale engrailed ermineois. ASHE, Argent, two chevrons sable.

In the Visitation of 1531 the Arms registered for HATCH, are "Gules THREE demi-lyons passant gardant or," the centre lion charged on the breast with a crescent.

Cotgrave, in his Pedigree, gives as the coat of the daughter of Geffery de Hatch, who he states was wife of Mathew de Wolrington, the arms borne by Eustace de Hatch, "Or, a cross engrailed gules," and he assigns to Thomas Atwater, who took the name of Hatch, "Gules two demi-lyons passant gardant or," which is the same coat as is given to Hatch of Aller, in the Visitation of 1620, and subsequently adopted by apparently all the branches of the family.

From the above it would appear that the descendants in the male line of Geffery de Hatch are entitled to bear two, and possibly three, separate coats for that name, viz.: First, the ancient coat of Hach, "Or, a cross engrailed gules;" Second, "Gules, THREE demi-lyons passant gardant or," as recorded in the Heralds' Visitation of 1531; and Third, "Gules, two demi-lyons or," as recorded in the Visitation of 1620; whilst the descendants of Geffery through his daughter would not be entitled to bear either the ancient coat of Hach, or that recorded in 1531, but would be entitled to the arms "Gules, two demi-lyons passant gardant or" as the coat not of Hatch but of Atwater, followed by the quarterings of Wolrington, Leigh, Murdock, Audley, Derwyn, Credy, Markham, and Ashe, which are the quarterings introduced into the shield of John Mallet, of Wolleggh, the son of Baldwin Mallet, who, temp. Henry VIII., married (for his second wife) Anne the daughter and heir of Thomas Hatch of Wolleggh, as the same are tricked in the Visitation of Devon, 1565, viz. :—

1. "Azure, 3 escallop shells 2 and 1 argent." MALLET.
2. "Gules, two demi-lyons passant gardant or." ATWATER or HATCH.
3. "Sable, three birds' heads erased 2 and 1 between five mullets 3 and 2 or." WOLRINGTON.
4. "Vert, a saltire between four eagles displayed or." LEIGH.
5. "Sable, a fret argent." MURDACK.
6. "Gules, a fret or, a crescent for difference." AUDLEY.
7. "Gules, a fess ermine, debriused of a pale engrailed erminois."* DERWYN.
8. "Azure, six mascles argent, with a label of three points of the lust." CREDY.
9. "Azure, on a chief argent a demi-lyon rampant gules." MARKHAM.
10. "Argent, two chevrons sable." ASHE.

With regard to the conflicting evidence as to the derivation of the Wolleggh branch from a Son or a Daughter of Geffery de Hach, I should be disposed upon the whole to give preference to that which is afforded by the statements of the old chroniclers of Devon as to the descent of property, and to set Richmond Herald's evidence against that of his contemporary, William Harvey, Clarenceux, who took the Visitation of Devon in 1564. But in the absence of any corroborative evidence of the correctness of Pole and Risdon (and I am at present unable to adduce any), I think it probable that the record in the College of Arms would be generally accepted as the safest basis for the pedigree, and I therefore adopt it, and upon the hypothesis that Harvey, Clarenceux, was correct; I believe that the following may be accepted as accurately describing the descents of the "Wolleggh" and "Aller" branches of the Devonshire family of Hatch, both of which are believed to be extinct in the male line.

September 1876.

W. R. D.

HATCH OF WOLLEGH.

GEFFERY DE HACH, mentioned in the Devon Visitation, 1531, and there called "of Wolley," but described by Risdon ("Survey of Devon," p. 306) as of Hach† in South Molton, had, according to the pedigree there recorded, two sons—

* This last coat is drawn incorrectly in the Mallet Pedigree (Harl. MS. 5871, p. 14) where the bearing is made "Gules, a cross engrailed ermine."

† This description by Risdon does not agree with the account given by Sir William Pole, who states that Hach with De la Legh, in the parish of South

I. John, son and heir.

II. Gilbert, second son, the progenitor of the ALLER branch.

JOHN HATCH, who succeeded his father, married and had issue two sons, viz. :—

I. Robert Hatch, who, according to the Cornwall Visit., 1620, was the elder, and died without issue.

II. William Hatch, the second son, and heir of his brother.

WILLIAM HATCH, who, on his brother's death, succeeded to the estates, married (according to the Visitation last referred to) JOAN, the daughter of William WOLRINGTON, who was the son and heir of Sir Mathew Wolrington, knight, probably by the heiress of Atwater of Molton. By marriages with the Wolrington and Atwater families it was that "Wolleggh" accrued to the Hatch family. William Hatch and Joan had issue a son and heir,

THOMAS HATCH, who made Wolleggh his dwelling-place and married MABEL, the daughter and heir of Thomas de LEIGH, of Leigh in the parish of Tiverton, by which marriage that property came to the Hatch family and, according to Sir William Pole, continued in it until the marriage of Anne Hatch with Baldwin Mallet in the time of Henry VIII. Thomas Hatch and Mabel Leigh had issue a son and three daughters—

I. Robert.

I. Mabel.

2. Beatrix.

3. Joan, married Alexander Carew, fourth son of Sir Nicholas Carew by Jone daughter and heiress of Sir Hugh Courtenay of Haccombe.

ROBERT HATCH, who succeeded to Hach and Wolleggh, married WENLLIAN, the daughter and heir of Sir Thomas MURDACK of Compton Murdack, co. Warwick, knight. The son and heir* of this marriage† was—Molton, co. Devon, were, anno 27 Hen. III. (1242-3) and anno 24 Edw. I. (1295-6), held by the Wolrington family, to whom, by marriage, they came to Atwater of South Molton and thence to his son, who took the surname of Hatch. Some confusion may perhaps have arisen from the circumstance of there being in Devonshire two properties called Hach,—one in South Molton, and the other Hach-Arondell, in the parish of Loddswell, which latter, as mentioned in the Introductory Note, was held temp. Edw. I. by Adam de Hach and seems to have remained in the Hatch family until the reign of Hen. IV., when it passed to Walter Carswell. Geffery may possibly have possessed Hach-Arondell; and Hach in South Molton may have come to the family by the marriage with Wolrington.

* See Inq. p.m. 7 Hen. IV. No. 59.

† There was probably also a daughter of this marriage, as I find in the pedigree of Denys of Gydcote and Holcombe (Visit. Devon, 1565) a marriage is recorded between Thomas Denys of Holcombe and Elizabeth, daughter of Robert Hatch of Wolley.

ROBERT HATCH, of Wollegh, who married BLANCHE, daughter and heir of Rowland AUDLEY, son of James de Aldithley, ninth Baron Audley, K.G., died 6 February, 6 Hen. IV. (1404-5), possessed of considerable estates in the county of Devon, amongst them Atte Water, in the parish of Satterleigh, and the Manor of Hacche, which latter was held to him and Blanche his wife and the heirs of their bodies, with remainder to the right heirs of Robert. Blanche survived her husband, who on his death was succeeded by their son and heir,*

JOHN HATCH, who at the death of his father (1404-5), was "eleven years of age and upwards."† He married (temp. Hen. V.‡) ELIZABETH, the daughter and heir of William DIRWYN of Little Fulford, near Crediton, by his wife Janet, daughter and heir of Sir Giles Ashe, knight, which William was the son of Robert Dirwyn by Joan, the daughter and heir of William Markham, and grandson of William Dirwyn by the daughter and heir of William Creedy. By this marriage the property of Fulford (which according to Sir William Pole belonged to the Dirwyn family in the time of Edward II.) came into the Hatch family. The issue of the marriage of John Hatch and Elizabeth Dirwyn were three sons and several daughters; the sons being—

I. John Hatch, eldest.

II. Another John Hatch, who married Alice Yeo, of whom and whose descendants hereafter.

III. William Hatch.

By Inquisition§ taken on the death of this John Hatch it appears that he died on the 4th September 1477, leaving his grandson Thomas Hatch his next heir. The Inquisition mentions that John Hatch was seised of lands in Wollegh and Alfardescot in tail male, and refers to other property held by him and Elizabeth his wife who survived him and died 31 January 1478.|| The eldest son of John Hatch and Elizabeth Dirwyn,

JOHN HATCH, died 25 November 1476,¶ during his father's lifetime, having married ELIZABETH, daughter of Sir Edward GORGES of Wraxshall. By his charter John Hatch granted to Alexander Carew and others, for the purposes of his will, considerable property, including the Manor of Ivedon (in the parish of Oulscombe). John Hatch and Elizabeth Gorges had issue,

THOMAS HATCH, who was the heir to his father and grandfather, was born in 1470, as appears by an Inquisition taken at Exeter 20 April, 6 Henry VII. (1491), which states that he was baptized in the church of Little Fulford on the 6th October, 10 Edw. IV. (1470), "Ann Swan" being his godmother. Thomas Hatch was married to ALICE, the daughter of Sir John BASSET, who is mentioned in the Inquisition* taken on her husband's death, from which it appears that by charter of 10 October, 16 Hen. VII. (1500) the Manor of Hacche, etc., was demised to Thomas Hatch and Elizabeth his wife in tail male of the said Thomas, with remainder to the right heirs male of his grandfather John Hacche. It further appears that Thomas Hatch died 5 October 1539, without an heir male of his body, and found that the heir male of his grandfather John Hatch was Thomas Hatch, son of John, who was at the date of the Inquisition of the age of twenty-five years.

The issue of the marriage of Thomas Hatch and Alice Basset was an only daughter, ANNE HATCH, who married Baldwin MALLET, second son of Thomas Mallet, of Enmore, co. Somerset, by which marriage the considerable estates held by the Hatch family at that date passed into the family of Mallet. Anne Hatch was the second wife of Baldwin Mallet, by whom she had issue three sons; and after her husband's death married, secondly, Sir Hugh Trevanyon. Her eldest son—

JOHN MALLET was of Wollegh, and married MARGARET, the daughter of Humphrey MONCK of Potheridge, co. Devon, and had issue—

- I. Robert.
- II. Malachias.
- III. Michael.

Robert Mallet, eldest son of John Mallet and Margaret Monck, married Elizabeth, daughter of . . . Rolle, of Stevenstone, of which marriage there was issue a son and two daughters.

- I. John Mallet, the son, died s.p.
- 1. Christian, also died s.p.
- 2. Eleanor Mallet, married, first, Sir Arthur Ackland, by whom she had issue, John Ackland, and on her husband's death she married, secondly, Sir Francis Vincent, knight and baronet.

D Mr. Arthur S. Larken, in his MS. pedigree of the Ogles, gives this Thomas Ogle a wife named Dorothy Bonnell who was buried at Moulton 6 April 1626. They had three children, Thomas, Constance, and Frances. Constance was buried at Moulton 24 Nov. 1617; Frances baptized at Whaplode 11 Jan. 1618-19; Thomas Ogle, their brother, baptized at Pinchbeck 26 April 1621. He, by his wife Mary, had three children, who were all baptized at Pinchbeck—Thomas, 5 Nov. 1663; Anne, 30 April 1655; and Elizabeth, 21 Aug. 1666.

E This Thomas Ogle, by Elizabeth his wife, had three children, as appears by the entries in the Pinchbeck Parish Registers. The first, "an infant son," buried 24 April 1636; Elizabeth, baptized 31 Jan. 1636-7; Thomas Ogle, baptized 6 Aug. and buried 14 Oct. 1638.

F Seuce Whatton in her marriage licence is described as of Cheshunt in Hertfordshire, and was then about twenty-one years of age.

G In the Rawlinson MSS. Cornelius Ogle is said to have married a daughter and heiress of . . . Saunders, and his sisters' husbands are given in the following order:—"Captain Bridges first husband of Henerica Ogle, Captain Noble her second; Onslow Gardiner, husband to Susanna Ogle; William Kingswell (or Kingsmill) to Dorothy Ogle; Joseph Avery to Elizabeth Ogle." Joseph and Elizabeth Avery were both dead before 20th Nov. 1671, the date of the marriage licence of their daughter Utrisia Avery, who is described as "of St Mary Axe, London, Spinster, aged about 20, to be married at St Catherine Cree in London, her guardian Sir Thomas Ogle consenting, to the Rev. Thomas Griffin of St Bartholomew's, Bishopsgate, Clerk." Mr. Griffin is described as being a Bachelor, and about thirty years of age.

Lincoln, grandson of Sir John Lockton of Swineshead, Knight.

TOLLER FAMILY.

Since I communicated to Mr. Green some particulars respecting this family, which appeared in his pedigree of it, p. 185-91, I have had the opportunity, through the kindness of the Churchwarden (J. Phillips, Esq.), of again inspecting the parish registers of St. Martin's, Stamford, the only one I had left unfinished, and am thus enabled to supply the following dates:—1712, Francis son of Mr Toller, of Stamford, bur. Dec. 11. 1715, John son of Mr William and Alice Toller, of Stamford, bur. Oct. 23. 1727, Alice, wife of William Toller, gent., bur. April 20. 1733-4, Mr Fras. Willcox, from Stamford, bur. Mar. 20. Mr Francis Wilcox was by "trade" a Mercer, and was Mayor of Stamford in 1701-2 and 1715-6. Robert Goodhall, of Stamford, gent., the husband of Alice daur. of William Toller, was son of John Goodhall, of Stamford, Grocer, and grandson of William G. of Holywell (of which Manor he was Lord) in the co. of Lincoln, esq., who was bur. there 19 Nov. 1687. John, the son, described in the Municipal records of the borough of Stamford as the son of Mary Goodhall, widow, of Holywell, was on 29 Sept. 1695, bound apprentice to Robert Curtis, Mercer; took up his freedom 12 May 1703; elected a capital burgess in the room of Edw. Lenton, dec., 16 Aug. following; Chamberlain 1715-6; promoted to the rank of an Alderman 13 June 1717; Mayor 1716-7; and dec. in 1729, as on Nov. 19 in that year Edw. Holcott, Grocer, was made an Alderman in his room. Son Robert, as late an apprentice to his father, took up his freedom 20 May 1734, Constable for the parish of St. Michael 1735-6, elected a capital burgess 5 May 1735, and resigned the post 14 Jan. 1746-7. William, his uncle, bapt. at Holywell 7th Apl. 1698, the last of the family, died at Tinwell, Rutland, in great poverty, and was bur. in the church of that village Aug. 11th, 1766. The arms of the family are—Or, a pile sab. on a canton az. a saltier engr. ar. Mary, the wife of Wm. Toller of Boston, was the dau. of Rich^d Wyche, Town Clerk of Stamford. It is somewhat singular that Richard was Town Clerk from 1701 to 1730. John his son succeeded him and held the office till his dec. in 1770; and John the grandson from 1770 till his death at the age of 82, July 23, 1820, thus grandfather, father, and son held the same office in succession for the space of 119 years. I have reason to believe that the family was a branch of one of the same name that lived at Croyland in this county. R^d of that place had to compound for his estates to the Commonwealth authorities in the sum of £50. Matthew was the first of the family that settled at Stamford about the year 1670. He was Mayor in 1689-90, and was bur. at St. Michael's, Stamford, 26 July 1713. The arms borne by the Stamford family were az. a pile erm. The Rev. Tho. Hurst was Rector of Whissendine, “GUILLIM’S” ROLL OF ARMS AS AN ORDINARY.

EDITED BY JAMES GREENSTREET.

THE three important Rolls of Arms of the time of Edward I., yet unpublished, known as the “Camden,” “Segar,” and “Guillim” Rolls, although belonging to different periods of that reign are not very far removed from each other in point of date. To facilitate comparison between either of them, therefore, it has long been my intention to print each one arranged as a separate Ordinary, and I have accordingly decided to continue the series of Rolls of Arms, already commenced in this publication, with the last-mentioned of them. The Ordinary to it has been numbered to correspond with an index of surnames only, which if made use of in certain cases will doubtless save time, the modern spelling of the names being adhered to. But references to the Harleian Manuscript, upon which I have founded my text, for the folio and space of the respective coats will be found at the end of each entry.

There exist two copies in trick of “Guillim’s” Roll, which derives its name from having been, early in the reign of James I., when these copies were made, in the possession of John Guillim, then Portsmouth Pursuivant extraordinary, who subsequently wrote the well-known “Display of Heraldry.” One, in Harleian MS. No. 6589, was taken, as he himself tells us, by Nicholas Charles, Lancaster Herald, in the year 1607. The other, in the Harleian MS. 6137, made probably about the same date, I have adopted for my authority. Great care has evidently been taken by the copyist to faithfully transmit the peculiarities of the ancient drawing, which Charles’s copy in no wise essays to do. For the purposes of the present edition the two copies have been examined together, and due note taken of any instance in which they differ. Tinctures, etc., omitted in the Harleian 6137 version have been supplied (between brackets), from the other; also when the information afforded by Harleian MS. No. 6589 is different it is added within parentheses; and all additions or emendations obtained from the latter copy are distinguished by the presence of the letter "B."

Mr. Papworth ("Ordinary of British Armorials") assigns "Guillim's" Roll to somewhere about the date 1300, or A° 28 Edw. I., and there seems to me no reason for departing very much from this opinion. It is however by no means certain that the document was compiled in, and has reference to, any particular year; or that it is not, rather, the result of observations extending over some time. Hence it is just possible that a close criticism of the contents of the Roll would demonstrate that a few of the persons included could not have been actually contemporaries of the rest.

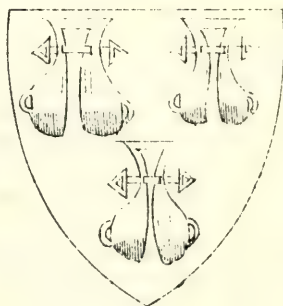

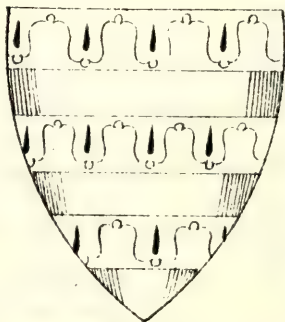

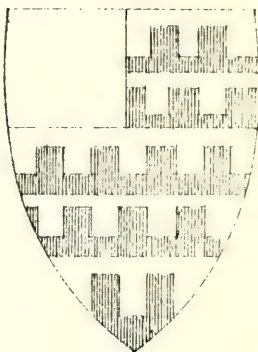

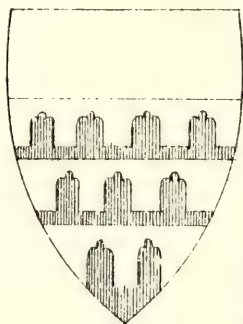

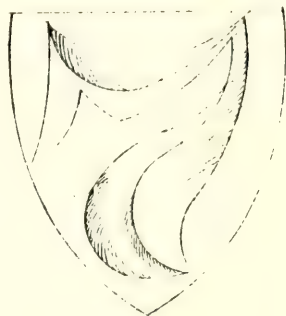

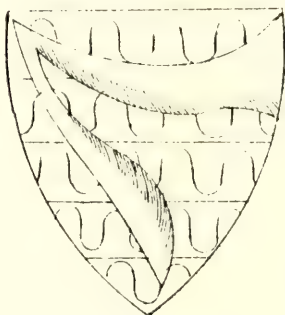

I have appended notes, here and there, tending to the identification of several of the notabilities mentioned in the Roll. Most of the others can be readily identified by reference to Courthope's "Historic Peerage."

THE ARMS OF SIR FRANCIS DRAKE.

To the Editor of 'THE GENEALOGIST.'

SIR,—It is remarkable that Sir William Drake and myself rely on the same evidence to support separate views. The real question is, was Sir Francis Drake entitled to bear the Wyvern gules? Prince alone denied his right, and I have shewn elsewhere ('Notes and Queries') that Prince is untrustworthy.

So much that partakes more of invention even, than of conjecture, has gained currency in regard to Sir Francis Drake, that considering his conspicuous place in history, little or no apology is needed for introducing detail to your readers that would in many cases be unacceptable.

In addition to what I have already advanced, let me state that in and around Tavistock were seated the old families of Hawkins, Fitz of Fitz-ford, Tremayne, Sawle, and Drake; of these, the last was by far the most ancient, tracing from the time of Henry III. as landowners, and bearing the distinguishing Christian names of Roger, Ralph, and Reginald.

Hawkins, connected with the proud Cornish family of Tre lawney, was Drake's acknowledged kinsman. Fitz-ford was the nearest residence to Croudale, Drake's birth-place. Edmund Tremayne, Fitz of Fitz-ford and Bernard Drake were cousins-german. The first had two sons each called Francis who died young, and Sir Francis Drake's father was called Edmund. During the Marian persecution Edmund Tremayne endured the rack rather than implicate the Princess Elizabeth in Wyatt's rebellion. His brother Richard Tremayne was proclaimed traitor in 1556, and fled to the continent. After the death of Mary, Richard became Vicar of Menhenniot, Canon and Treasurer of Exeter Cathedral, and married Joan, daughter of Sir Piers Courtenay of Ugbrooke. John Drake was the executor of Mrs. Tremayne's will. He purchased lands in Menhenniot, and married Mrs. Tremayne's friend (an heiress, who curiously brought all the Ash quarterings to the Tavistock branch of Drake). Richard Sawle purchased lands of Thomas Drake near Tavistock the year before Mary's accession, and is found sharing Edmund Drake's exile in Upchurch, Kent. This Edmund, the father of Sir Francis, appealed on his death bed to Richard Sawle's friendship (see the will of Ed. D.).

The flight from religious persecution into Kent may be explained in this way. The Fitz's, whose friendship with the Drake family has been before proved, held lands in Kent and Essex, and could thus offer a distant asylum to the fugitives (see will of Roger and Walter Fitz). The Tremaynes and Sawles recovered their position and continue county families to this day, their representatives being seated with lands adjoining in Cornwall.

The Drakes, excepting Sir Francis, never recovered, yet like all decaying families held fast to their traditions. Several entered the Church and had livings in Cornwall.

How Sir Francis Drake received encouragement and secret support from Elizabeth, has never, that I am aware of, been satisfactorily explained. That he, a ruined man, without resources, should resolve to contend with Spain single handed is extremely romantic. If your readers will glance over the foregoing facts, jotted down for their guidance, and reflect that bonds of sympathy would unite those Puritan Martyrs, they will understand Edmund Tremayne's speech, that he regarded Francis Drake as his own son. Francis Russell, Earl of Bedford, was Drake's godfather, and was a member of Elizabeth's Privy Council from the date of her accession till his death, and Edmund Tremayne's constancy was rewarded by the Queen with the post of Clerk to the Privy Council. That Drake had access to Elizabeth, and that she would walk with him out of ear-shot of others for two hours at a stretch becomes credible, and that the requisites were provided for his adventurous career is intelligible.

These, with other facts, have been laboriously searched out in order to reconcile conflicting traditions, and here the writer possessed a marked and singular advantage over Sir William Drake, and all who had undertaken to write about Sir Francis.

There had been brought under my notice, traditions derived from a certain individual whom we will call A, who was born within eighty years after the death of the widow of Thomas Drake, brother and heir of Sir Francis, neither of whom died aged. A was therefore in a position to receive and transmit accurate parole evidence. C the grandson of A stated from tradition that he was of the true old Drake family of Devon who bore the red Dragon, and therefore concluded he was unconnected with Sir Francis Drake because Prince said so. He is now between eighty and ninety years old, and adhered to his statement more than half a century. His son, on account of a resemblance, has been accosted by strangers in mistake for one of the Amer-sham i.e. Ash family, and vice versâ, and the resemblance has been remarked at different periods. C's likeness to an old bust and portrait of Sir Francis was noticed to him forty years since, and he disavowing the connection treated it as a curious coincidence. I have recognized in him the same arched eyebrows, form of head and round cheek-bone as is seen in the old engraving of Drake exhibited at the Bethnal Green Museum, and the octogenarian has been discovered, with tears in his eyes, before another copy of this engraving, which he had not seen before my investigations commenced, and which forcibly reminded him of his father. The Wyvern quartered on the picture has also unsettled his belief. I may add that he had cultivated the Fine Arts with some credit, and was therefore a close observer and good judge of likeness.*

Others of A's descendants declared that, notwithstanding the red Dragon, their ancestor, although dwelling with the Ash family around him, was considered a near representative of Sir Francis, and was held in esteem by the then Lord Courtenay on that account. The adherents to the latter version were numerous and widely scattered, and as my informants were persons whose words I could not doubt, and who had no motive for misleading, nor object to gain, there was no way of reconciling their seeming contradiction besides proving that a man might bear the red Wyvern and also be of the blood of Sir Francis Drake.

In this I have succeeded beyond my expectations, when nature, tradition and fact have united their testimony. The chief surprise is that Sir Bernard, who once bore other arms, should prove to be "chief of that coat armure," the authority being two seals attached to charters older than the Heralds' College, the one bearing a Dragon, and the other an Eagle displayed, and the parties' names, Roger and Ralph Drake, which Christian names were permanent among the Drakes around Tavistock for hundreds of years, from Henry III. to George III., as well as that of Reginald, the earliest we know of, and neither of these is to be found in Sir Bernard's immediate line. The best explanation is that the eldest son from an advantageous alliance or a spirit of enterprise left his home, and the standing family names dropped out of use. I may note in this place that the Mr. Drake whom we called A, had adopted modern Tavistock Christian names for his sons, and the Ash heiress names, Christian and Agnes, for his daughters.†

The first of the family, as far as I can yet learn, that attained the honour of knighthood was Sir Thomas Drake temp. Henry IV., according to the De Banco Rolls, and I could give more numerous and important references than appear in the 'Archæological Journal;' without encumbering your pages, however, it is sufficient to say that the antiquity of standing is in favour of the Tavistock or Western Drakes, and they probably bore the oldest coat armour.

A circumstantial narrative of Drake's voyage is in the British Museum, in Stowe's handwriting. It relates that after the Doughty affair, Drake landed his crews. The officers having surrendered their commissions in token of his authority, he

* This evidence more suitable for 'The Genealogist' was held in reserve from the 'Archæological Journal.' I could cite an extraordinary instance in a noble family where one of its members resembles no other living member, and yet is so like a family portrait of the time of Queen Mary, that it is admitted a modern portrait would not be better, and their lines of ancestry diverged some generations before Mary's time. I have seen and heard that in the Drake family there are two marked and distinct types of men often occurring among brothers.

† Both families, Tavistock and Ash, were in the habit of naming their eldest son John.

ranged the gentlemen on one side and the sailors on the other, and harangued them on the duty of obedience and mutual forbearance. He explained the mutual dependence emphatically of the two classes, and finished with these significant words, "Now my masters, as I am a Gentleman! I promise that no man shall be put to death," and then returned the commissions. It will be remembered that the crowd of gentlemen adventurers who sailed with him were of the best blood of the two Western Counties, those who knew him and his family connections intimately, and he would not have subjected himself to ridicule, or weakened his respect by a false assumption.

I have shewn in 'Notes and Queries,' how the Heralds taxed their invention to do honour to Sir Francis, and in various ways introduced the Dragon which appears in the oldest editions of Drake's Travels, and in oil portraits, demi and entire, in accordance with both drafts given at p. 209 ante. But this Crest found no favour with Sir Francis, who from the repeated alterations seems to have been rather fastidious. He bore the Eagle displayed, and his successors set it aside in favour of Cooke's absurd compound, which Camden in his Remains denounces as "too perplexed and unfitting so worthy a man" as Drake.

After these discursive remarks in the way of general information, I now turn to Sir William Drake's communication.

Sir William's "contention is that the paragraph in question was not inserted,—that it was at one time proposed for insertion, etc.," and his reason is that the copy of the grant "given at fo. 38 of the Bod. MS. does not contain the clause," etc. To save space and repetition, I would request all readers interested to compare the original communication at p. 209 with Sir William's comments. It will be seen that the clause was not in the form of a proposal to be deliberated upon, but was an after-thought that was acted upon. That,

First A rough draft was made.

Secondly. This draft was abridged without any intended or implied addition beyond the nether half of the "read dragon" of the crest, and thus appears on fo. 38, or "the next leaf following," according to the words on the plate.

Thirdly. After (the word is not mine) this second writing given on fo. 38, the clause was added ultimately.

This order of occurrence is borne out by the words of the Bod. MS., by Sir Francis Drake's usage, and by the action of the Herald, who to prevent discrepancy, repeated the cancels at the College of Arms, and added the clause in substance in a different hand, with a mark indicating the place for insertion. Had the clause been proposed and rejected it would not have been copied into a second and official MS,

COOPER OF GOGAR.

[We insert with pleasure the following communication, though in our opinion it does not prove that a baronetcy was created in favour of the Coopers of Gogar.—EDIT. GENEALOGIST.]

THE article with the above title which appeared in the last number of 'The Genealogist' is founded upon an error. The paragraph quoted from 'Debrett,' making Mr. Cooper of Failford claim the Gogar Baronetcy, was unauthorized.

I wrote to the Editor of that work, last year, asking him to delete the words "title extinct" appended to a notice of Lady Cooper, widow of the last Baronet, as I believed that descendants of the first Baronet were in existence, but not only had I no authority from Mr. Cooper of Failford to make any claim to the Baronetcy, but I expressly stated that no claim was then made. My object was simply to keep the matter open during farther investigation.

As regards the assertion that no baronetcy was ever conferred upon a Couper of Gogar, Edmondson gives a list of the 'Baronets of Scotland, commonly called Nova-Scotia Baronets.' In it occurs the name of "Couper of Gogar created 1646."

This list, he says, was "faithfully transcribed from the Records of the Order, under the Great Seal of Scotland, by James Cummings, Esq., Keeper of the Records, and Secretary to the Order." And Wood's MS. 'History of Corstorphine', considered to be a good authority upon other points, also states that "John Couper was created a Baronet of Nova Scotia in 1646."

It has been supposed that this Baronetcy was created in 1638, but this seems to be a mistake arising partly from the fact of Sir John Couper having been so designated prior to 1646 (he had probably been knighted in 1640 or early in 1641), and partly from confusion with the patent of "Sir Wm. Couper of Rattingcourt," the date of which patent, I find, is 24th March 1638.

W. S. COOPER, Advocate.

* A Richard Austin, grocer, late an apprentice of Peter Mapletoft, took up his freedom of the Borough of Stamford, where he resided Oct. 1st 1672. I am unable to say whether Master Richard was a member of this family, but it is not unlikely that he was, by reason of Stamford being about this period considered as a sort of metropolis of the district, and as this place is but a few miles (six) from Stamford it is very probable that sons of yeomen were apprenticed to trade-men in the town. Richard, the grocer, was elected a capital Burgess, or as we would now say, a member of the body Corporate, 31 Aug. 1676 ; served the office of Chamberlain in 1683-4 ; made an Alderman in the place of Thos. Hawkins, resigned, 2 Dec. 1691 ; and was Mayor in 1692-3. He resigned his Aldermanic seat in 1708, as on the 21 Aug. in that year George Denshire (esq.) was elected a capital Burgess owing to one of that rank being promoted to the grade of an Alderman.

* The name is common in Rutland. I am unable to identify it with the family whose pedigree is entered in the 'Visitation of 1618-19,' v. Har. Soc. vol. iii. p. 14-16.

† Richard, another son, was bapt. at Tinwell, in this county, 9 Oct. 1697.

‡ I find from the Municipal records that Henry Peake, grocer, of Stamford, paid £5 to John Butcher, the senior chamberlain, and took up his freedom 12 Jan. 1679-80; constable for the parish of St. John's (the first step in the ladder of Municipal promotion) in 1680-1; searcher of "Fish, Flesh, Hyde and Tallowe" in 1686-7; elected a Capital Burgess 10 Oct. 1695; served the office of Chamberlain 1709-10, and resigned his seat in the Council chamber 10 Oct. 1727, whereupon James Dove, a Capital Burgess was promoted to the rank of an Alderman. I have no positive proof that the worthy grocer was a member of this family, but from what I have said in the first note it is not improbable that he hailed from this place.

§ A pedigree of this family will be found in Camden's Visitation of the county taken 1618-19; see Harl. Soc. vol. iii. p. 23-4.

THE 'SATURDAY REVIEW' ON CHANGES OF NAME.

SINCE Mr. William Jones of Clytha took it into his head to follow the example of his relative Mr. John Arthur Edward Jones of Llanarth, and convert his somewhat too common and monosyllabic surname into the aristocratic dissyllable Herbert, much has been written on the above subject.

Some sense, mingled with a good deal of nonsense, has been given forth, but it has not been our fortune to read anywhere a more extraordinary article than the one contained in the 'Saturday Review' of 28th October.

The writer of this article says that the French "do not seem to object to the assumption of any name," and goes on to suppose M. Blanc, grocer at Grandmaison, retiring as M. Blanc de Grandmaison, and finally developing into M. le Conte de Grandmaison.

Any one surely might see that such a course is equally open to M. le Noir the butcher, M. Lebrun the baker, M. le Gris the hotel-keeper, and so on, and is therefore impracticable. What does really take place in France is, that a successful trader or manufacturer—say le Blanc—buys the estate of the Barons de Grandmaison; is perhaps styled by his neighbours M. le Blanc de Grandmaison, which in a sense he is, as proprietor; his son may make an alliance connecting him with the noblesse, and by degrees comes to be spoken of as Baron de Grandmaison.

Such usurpation is, however, kept in check in two ways. The first and most effectual is that the real Baron de Grandmaison, if such a person exist, institutes legal proceedings, establishes his own exclusive right to the title, and obtains a decree with costs forbidding M. le Blanc to use it. The second is, that although his complaisant neighbours may accept the pseudo-Baron, the Government officials are more difficult to deal with, and will only enter him, when registering marriages, births, and deaths occurring in his family, as le Blanc, propriétaire à Grandmaison.

The reviewer is singularly unfortunate in the instances he cites. "Murat was made Duke of Montmorency;" no such creation ever took place,—nor, we may add, could have taken place. In 1864 the Emperor conferred on Count Adalbert de Talleyrand-Périgord the title which had become extinct on the death of his uncle, the last Duke of Montmorency, two years before. The collateral heirs male of the family objected ineffectually to this concession; but in the pleadings the defendant disavowed all intention of assuming the surname and arms of the family of his mother, to which indeed the Imperial decree conveyed to him no right.

"The Duke of Abercorn's French title of Châtellerault was given to the Duke of Hamilton." A full history of this title will be found in the 'Herald and Genealogist,' vol. iv. page 97, and it is certain that it did not belong to the Marquess, as he then was, of Abercorn, and that it was fairly enough given to the Duke of Hamilton, the heir of entail of the Regent Earl of Arran the grantee, as the original grant was to the Earl, his heirs and assigns.

We hardly understand a sentence as to the "names and titles" of the Dukes de Persigny and de Morny,* "which if they were not self-assumed were only granted by an anticipation of Imperial power on the part of their patron." The former title was created in 1863, the latter in 1862. The Second Empire, it can hardly be necessary to state, was then ten years old, and no earlier creation passed under that régime in favour of either Duke.

Another illustration is the case of the Duke of Buccleuch. "First the English name of the Duke of Monmouth, such as it was, has been wholly discarded by his descendants, and then the new Scottish surname has been backed up by a couple of fresh ones, after the Northern fashion."

The discarding of the name of Fitzroy was performed by the Duke of Monmouth himself, who after his marriage with the richest heiress in the kingdom, was obliged to bear the surname of Scot only. The backing up was caused by the succession to the estates of the ducal houses of Queensberry and Montagu under entails and settlements rendering the assumption of the additional surnames obligatory. The writer asks, "Why does Lord Rokeby bear the name and arms of Montagu? He does not appear to be descended from the family, his real surname being the highly respectable one of Robinson." His father was obliged to do so by the terms of the settlement under which he inherited in 1776 the large property of his aunt, the well known Mrs. Montagu.

It is a pity that a stickler for propriety in names should call the Duke of Buccleuch, Buccleugh; Secretary Craggs, Scraggs; and give one of Sir J. D. H. Elphinstone's surnames as Horne instead of Horn. Also that in speaking of the Jones-Herbert affair he should fall into the blunder of saying "that the muddling official had gone some years previously to the expense of obtaining a licence under the Queen's sign-manual to take a fresh name himself,—in other words, had paid for leave to do that which he might have done himself."

* The Duc de Morny was baptized as son of Auguste Jean Hyacinthe Demorny, propriétaire à Sainte Domingue, resident at Villetaneuse, and Louise Emilie Coralie Fleury. His real parentage is indicated by the arms granted to him, Argent, three martlets Sable (the coat of Flahaut) within a bordure compony Azure and Or, the former charged with eagles holding thunderbolts (the arms of the Empire), the latter with dolphins (the bearings of Auvergne, where he had property, and for a department of which he first sat as a deputy) counterchanged.

The official referred to was the late Lord Llanover, who never changed his name, which was Hall.

But really our reviewer culminates in his mention of the change of Smithson to Percy, as he pronounces it, "to throw discredit on a very respectable Yorkshire family, which in old days had actually matched with the great Percies themselves."

The first of the Smithsons, a London merchant, only obtained a right to bear arms in 1663 by grant, and certainly had no such alliance as Percy to boast of; his brother was an apothecary in the city. A family of this standing surely gained honour, not discredit, by being allowed to take the surname of one of the greatest feudal houses of England.

But it is hardly worth while to criticize in detail the statements contained in an article which is written in absolute ignorance of the state of the law in France.

Usurpations both of name and arms are forbidden, and a year never passes without the law being put in force at the instance of the individual whose rights are infringed. Some of the most notable cases that have recently occurred were those of Rohan, Pons, Croy, Clermont-Tonnerre, and Narbonne-Lara, which we mention to shew that the bearers of the best names in France are still jealous of their rights; but cases are numerous where the complainers are in a modest position, and the names they defend neither ancient nor illustrious.

We quote the preamble of a recent judgment:—"Considérant qu'il est incontestable que les noms, titres, et armes constituent des propriétés, et que les difficultés que s'élèvent à cet égard entre les justiciables doivent être réglées par les tribunaux;" and further on—"Considérant que de l'abus possible d'un droit il ne put être conclu contre le droit lui-même, que certaines habitudes du monde ne peuvent modifier devant les tribunaux les conséquences d'un titre légal," etc. Assuredly "they manage these things better in France" than in this country, where the right at common law of any one to take any surname he may fancy seems admitted.

There is sometimes a difficulty in getting the change recognized, and it happened not long ago that one of the trustees of a charity, having proprio motu assumed an additional surname on inheriting an estate, his signature was objected to, and some poor old men and women deprived of their usual dole.

The War Office and Admiralty do not permit any officer in her Majesty's service to alter or add a surname without the sanction of the Royal licence for an Englishman, or a certificate from the Court of the Lord Lyon in the case of a Scotchman.

In cujus rei testimonia predicti Juratores huic inquisitione sigilla apposuerunt. Datum die anno et loco supradictos.

It will be perceived by this Inquisition that Sir Elias Cotel left no male issue. An earlier branch of his family appears, however, to have been settled at Cotele or Cothele on the Tamar certainly as early as the year 1250, as shewn in the following pedigree given to the writer by the late Decble Bogers, Esqre., and derived by him from deeds at Mount Edgecumbe and the record intituled "Minutes of the Privy Council" for Cornwall.

There is no direct evidence of a connection between Sir Elias Cotele and the Cotheles of Cothele, but the arms and crest borne by them were the same as those borne by him,* as shewn in the first quartering of the above cut of the arms of the Cottells of Ycolmbridge and North Tawton, Devon, and Aldercombe, Cornwall, who are stated, on the authority of Gilbert, in his History of the latter County, to have descended from a younger branch of the Coteles of Cotele. In the Heralds' Visitation of Devon, 1565 (Harl. MS. 5871, p. 24), in confirming the arms to the Cottells of Yeolmbridge at the commencement of their pedigree, it is thus written:—"Cottell, Sir Elias, Knight, Or a bend Gules. This coate hath been borne in Devon of great Antiquitie, a man at Armes 17th Edward 1st, Sampford Peverell, Alree Peverell, and Halberton Hundreds were his, 16th Edward 2nd."

Now it is certainly proved on the authority of Collinson's 'History of Somerset,' vol. iii. page 330, and the MSS. referred to in the previous notes, that Sir Elias Cotel, or Cotele, was a Somersetshire Knight, and descended from Sir Robert de Cotele, Knight of Camerton, in that county, who was of that place in the year 1120, and who it is more than probable came to England from France, where the name still exists,* in 1102 with Herlewin Abbot of Glastonbury, who had been a monk at Caen in Normandy, and who gave Sir Robert de Cotele this Manor of Camerton, which had previously belonged to the Abbey of Glastonbury, and which descended in direct line through four generations to Sir Elias de Cotel of Sampford Peverell. This account, therefore, goes far to prove that he was of French descent, and as his arms and the arms of the Cotheles of Cothele were the same, it seems as if they must have been connected, although Polwhele and other writers on Cothele allege the origin of the name to be from the ancient Cornish words coet hayle—"the house near the river"—which the situation of Cothele would infer; yet if this inference be correct, it is very singular that two distinct families of the same name, one of French and the other of English descent, should bear the same arms. Although the Coteles owned the manor of Camerton, their principal residence was at Atworth, Wilts, to which place they gave the name of Coteles or Cottells Atworth, now known as Cottles, near Melksham. Aubrey, in his 'History of Wilts,' alludes to their "old house with large windows of the time of the 1st Edward." This house has long since disappeared and been replaced by a modern mansion, till recently possessed by Dr. Parfitt of Midford Castle. The arms of the Coteles of Cotele, Wilts, are stated by Aubrey, Hoare, and other historians for that county to have been the invariable Or a bend Gules. Cottle the poet was of this family, having descended from a merchant clothier of Trowbridge.

The remaining three quarterings in the above coat of arms of the Cottells of Yeolmbridge and North Tawton are for the heiresses of Malherb, Carhurta, and Godfrey. The Cottells no longer possess their ancient estates in Devon and Cornwall, but the family is still represented by living members, the most direct male descendant being Dr. Thomas James Cottle, of Pulteney Villa, Cheltenham, whose pedigree, with collateral branches in England and America, has been proved and recorded at Heralds' College, from John Cottell of Yeolmbridge, who lived about the year 1400, and who married Sarah, the daughter and heiress of Roger Carhurta, who married Margaret, the daughter and heiress of Richard Malherb, descended from Geoffrey Malherb of Thorn, who lived about the year 1200.

Recorder for the Borough of Stamford, was freely admitted to freedom at a common hall held 21 Apl. 1705. In my extracts from the par. regs. of All Saints, Stamford, among the burials I have the following entry: 1710 Jonathan Gorstelow Snow, esq., was bur. Nov. 26. The Clipsham estate was purchased some few years back of the family by Mr Handley, late M.P. for Newark. In the "Gentleman's Magazine," for 1864, is an account of the monuments existing in Clipsham church, to the Snow family.

Her husband's family I know nothing about, but in the common hall books of the borough of Stamford I found this entry: "1660. March 7. At this hall Henry Louth Post^{mr}, payinge three poundes to Laurence Robbins, the immediate Chamberlin to the use of the towne & giving security to free the towne from his charge, is admitted to scott & lott, & then to be sworne." 1685. MEMORIALS OF THE FAMILIES OF HATCH IN DEVONSHIRE.

HATCH OF WOLLEGH. SECOND BRANCH.

Reverting to the marriage of John Hatch and Elizabeth Dirwyn; their second son (whose descendants, upon the death of Thomas Hatch, who died in 1539 without male issue, became the heirs male of the family), JOHN HATCH, married ALICE, the daughter of John Yeo of Brendon, by whom he had a son and heir,

JOHN HATCH, whose wife was THOMASINE, daughter of William SELMAN, by whom he had a son and heir,

THOMAS HATCH, who was by Inquisition taken at Exeter, 4 March, 31 Hen. VIII. (1540) found heir male of John Hatch (who married Elizabeth Dirwyn) and so entitled to the Manor of Hacche, etc., which, in the year 1500, had been settled on Thomas Hatch and Alice Basset in tail male of Thomas, with remainder to the right heirs male of the above-mentioned John Hatch.

Thomas Hatch was found by the same Inquisition to be of the age of twenty-five years in 1540. He married MARY, daughter of Thomas HOLLINGE, by whom he had issue five sons,

- I. William Hatch.

daughter of William WIDDESLADE of Widdeslade, by whom he had a son,

CHRISTOPHER HATCH, who appears to have settled in Cornwall, as he is described, in the Visitation of that county in 1620, as of Busuisack and as then living, having married CONSTANCE, second daughter of George COURTNEY of Penkivel, co. Cornwall, esquire, and whose issue at that time were three daughters only, viz. :—

1. Prudence.
2. Ann.
3. Frances.

HATCH OF ALLER.

GILBERT HATCH, the second son of Geffery de Hatch of Hatch, married (temp. Edw. III.) ALICIA, or CLAIS, the daughter and heiress of William DE AURE, or ALLER, who brought the Aller property to the Hatch family,* and of which marriage,

RICHARD HATCH was, as recorded in the Visitation of 1531, son and heir. It does not appear whom he married, but he was succeeded by,

ROBERT HATCH, his son and heir, also mentioned in Visitation Devon, 1531, who married a daughter of John GIFFARD of Yeo, co. Devon, had issue,

THOMAS HATCH, son and heir, who married JOAN, daughter of MELHUSH (Visit. Devon, 1531), whose son and heir,

WILLIAM HATCH, of Aller, married MARGARET, daughter and heiress of Thomas HORTON of South Molton, co. Devon. Of this marriage there were two sons and five daughters, whose names and marriages are recorded in the Visit., 1531.

- I. Thomas Hatch of Aller (of whom hereafter).
- II. Andrew Hatch, who married Jone, daughter of Lawrence Jeffery.
 1. Joan, married to John Lee of Bishops Nympton, co. Devon, and had issue two sons,

- I. Thomas Prideaux.

1. Elizabeth married to Robert Drake of Wiscomb, co. Devon.

THOMAS HATCH of Aller, the son and heir of William Hatch and Margaret Horton, married, about 1520, ANNE, the eldest daughter of Richard BLEWET of Kittisford, co. Somerset, who survived her husband, and by whom he had issue four sons and four daughters, all of whom (except one daughter) are mentioned in the 1531 Visitation.

This Thomas Hatch, as appears by the Inquisition* taken on his death, which occurred at South Molton 7 March 1551, died seised of considerable property in South Molton, etc., which, by charter dated 24 October, 1 Edward VI. (1547), he had granted to Humphrey Arscott and others to the use of himself and his wife Anne and his heirs male "on condition that Anne should remain unmarried after his death."

In 1544 (by deed dated 36 Hen. VIII., Oct. 3†) Thomas Hatch sold, in conjunction with Lewis Hatch, his son and heir apparent, the advowson and right of presentation of the parish church of Langtree, co. Devon, to Sir Thomas Denys.

- II. Hugh Hatch.

(See SATTERLEIGH branch).

 3. Dorothy, married (probably in 1547, as their eldest child appears to have been born in July 1548) Thomas Trevelyan of Yarnscombe, co. Devon. From the tabular pedigree attached to the "Trevelyan Papers" (published by the Camden Society), Part III., it appears that Dorothy's husband died in 1565, having had issue by her four sons and five daughters, and that after Thomas Trevelyan's death she married, secondly, to Thomas Wood, of whom no particulars are given.

* See Inq. p.m., 1 Mary. No. 23.

4. Gertrude, married* 10 June 1588, to the Reverend John Welshe, by whom she had two sons, both mentioned in the will of their uncle, Robert Hatch of Satterleigh, viz. :—

I. Marmaduke Welsh.

II. Hugh Welsh.

LEWIS HATCH of Aller (born about 1521), son and heir of Thomas Hatch and Anne Blewet, was thirty-three years old at the death of his father in 1554. He married ELIZABETH, daughter of Bartholomew FORTESCUE of Fillegh, and died on the 13th of February 1561, seised, as appears by the Inquisition† taken on his death, of various lands in the county of Devon, after having, on the 7th November 1560, made his will, in which he mentions his wife Elizabeth. By his charter he demised certain property to the use of his wife and his children, Lewis, John, Edmund, Dorothy, Anne, and Jane. Elizabeth Hatch survived her husband, and in 1587 was living at Exminster,‡ co. Devon.

I. Thomas Hatch of Aller (of whom hereafter).

- II. Lewis Hatch of Head Mill§ in the parish of Chittlehampton, co. Devon, mentioned in the Visitation of 1620, married about 1602 or 1604 Elizabeth, daughter of Oliver Hussey of Devon, by whom he had two sons. He died 6 April 1629, and it appears by the Inquisition taken on his death,|| 16 October, 5 Charles I. (1630), that he held the Rectory of Abbottisham, and that his son Arthur, described in the Visitation of 1620, was his son and heir, and at his father's death was aged twenty-four years.

I. Arthur Hatch, son and heir, who was stated to be of the age of seventeen in the Visitation of 1620, and married Sibel, daughter of Robert Melhuish of Witheridge, co. Devon.

II. Lewis Hatch, aged fifteen in 1620.

- III. John Hatch, mentioned in his brother Thomas' will, dated 15 Feb. 1584.

2. Anne.

3. Jane, married John Walrond of Bovey, by whom there was issue a son, Edmund Walrond of Bovey, who married Ann, daughter of Sir William Pole, knight.

THOMAS HATCH of Aller, found by Inquisition, 18 April, 3 Elizabeth (1561), the son and heir of Lewis Hatch, and of the age, at his father's death, of nine and a half years (i.e., born 1552) married, about 1576, CICELY,* the daughter of Sir John CHICHESTER of Raleigh, co. Devon, knight, whose ward he was.

Thomas Hatch died the 27th February, 26 Elizabeth (1584), as appears by an Inquisition† taken on his death on the 23rd April, 29 Elizabeth (1587), and from which Inquisition it appears that Lewis Hatch (the father of Thomas) being seised of the Manors of Witheridge, etc., had by his charter, dated 1 and 2 Philip and Mary (1554-5), granted the same to Sir John Chichester, knight, Andrew Hatch and others, to the use of Lewis for life, and then to the use of Elizabeth, his (Lewis') wife, who was then still living at Exminster, and that the reversion belonged to Thomas, who was seised of many other lands, etc., and that he had made his will, dated 15 February, 26 Elizabeth (1584), in which he mentions "Sicell," his wife, Arthur Hatch, his son, and John Hatch, his (Thomas') brother, and from the Inquisition it further appears that Cicely Hatch survived her husband and was then (1587) living at North Aller, where she continued to reside after a second marriage, which she contracted with Lewis Pollard, as appears from the following letter addressed by Sir Arthur Chichester, subsequently Lord Deputy of Ireland, whilst on a visit to his sister, to his and her brother-in-law John Trevelyan of Nettlecombe:—"My good brother—my present occasions cause me to make bolde to you. My request unto you is to bestowe a boucke on me yf you be stored in your ground. I am driven to sende unto you for that the parkes in this countrie have not anie as y^t covered, but when they are better in season, yf you have anie to bestowe eather hirabout or near Exeter, I wyl gratifie your frends with one in your name. * * * My brother Lews Pollard and my Syster commend them unto you * * . * Sir John seems to have contemplated the marriage of his ward with his daughter "Susan," as, by his Will, dated 1 May 1568 (proved in London, 1572), he gives to his daughter Suzan Chichester the wardship and marriage of Thomas Hache, son and heir of Lewes Hache, Esquire, deceased, with a provision that if Susan died unmarried the wardship should go to his next unmarried daughter. Langtree, which he inherited from his grandfather, Thomas Hatch, to Henry Rolle of Stevenstone.*

Thomas Hatch and Cicely Chichester had issue,

ARTHUR HATCH of Aller, son and heir, aged seven years in 1584 (i. e., born in 1577), who married MARGARET, the sister of Sir John MALLET of Enmore, in co. Somerset, by whom he had six sons and two daughters. He died† 7 June, 1625, as appears by the Inquisition‡ taken on his death, which states that he held the Manors of Witheridge, etc., and that Thomas Hatch was his son and heir, and, at his father's death, twenty-four years of age.

I. Thomas Hatch, son and heir, born about 1601, and mentioned in the Visitation in 1620.

THE SATTERLEIGH BRANCH OF THE ALLER FAMILY.

ROBERT HATCH, the third son of Thomas Hatch, of Aller, and Anne Blewet, was of Satterleigh, co. Devon, a property granted to him by his father's charter, dated 1 Mary (1553-4), as appears by the Inquisition§ taken on Thomas Hatch's death. He married, firstly, JOANNA, daughter of . . . PARKER (who was buried at Satterleigh,|| 20 April, 1609) and, secondly, MARGERY . . . by whom he does not appear to have had any children. Margery, who survived her husband and is mentioned in his will, was buried at Satterleigh¶ on the 30th March 1646.

Robert Hatch made his will, dated 20 April 1642, from which it appears that his son Lewis was then dead, but that Lewis' wife, Christian, was living. He refers to his grandchild, Robert Hatch, as his heir apparent, and he also names his grandchildren Lewis Hatch and Thomas Hatch, to the former of whom he devised a messuage, or tenement, called "Uphome," in Cheriton. He was buried at Satterleigh¶ on the 12th June, 1643, having by his first wife two sons, both of whom predeceased him, viz. :—

* The original deeds, dated respectively March and June, 24 Eliz. (1582), are preserved in the Muniment Room at Bickton.

† Westcote states ("View of Devonshire," Ed. 1845, p. 603) that "he was slain in a quarrel in London by one Brett."

- I. Lewis Hatch (of whom hereafter).
- II. Robert Hatch the second son, who was buried at Satterleigh* 8 June 1625.

LEWIS HATCH, the eldest son of Robert Hatch and Joanna Parker, is mentioned in the Visitation of 1620, and referred to in his father's will as then deceased; he was in fact buried at Satterleigh* the 1st April 1637, having married (also at Satterleigh)* on the 9th September 1619, CHRISTIAN MAYNE, who survived her husband, and is mentioned in her father-in-law's will (1642) as then living.

By the marriage of Lewis Hatch with Christian Mayne, there were three sons and one daughter,

- I. Robert Hatch (of whom hereafter).
- II. The Reverend Lewis Hatch of Marwood, co. Devon, Clerk, M.A., party to a bond dated 1659, was buried at Satterleigh* 4 August 1673.
- III. Thomas Hatch, baptized at Satterleigh* 23 March 1624, mentioned in his grandfather's will (1642).
- 1. Cecilia, baptized at Satterleigh,* 29 January 1628, and buried there* on 13 February 1631.

ROBERT HATCH, son of Lewis and Christian, and heir of his grandfather Robert, was party to a deed dated 18 April, 20 Charles II. (1668), and was buried at Satterleigh* 14 March 1674; but it does not appear who he married. This Robert Hatch had three children,

- I. Lewis, born 17 August 1659,* buried at Satterleigh an infant.
- II. Robert Hatch, succeeded to Satterleigh.
- 1. Margaret, born 22 August, and buried 12 October 1654.*

ROBERT HATCH of Satterleigh, party to a deed of 20 August 1697, in which reference is made to his father, deceased, as having been party to a deed of the 18th April, 20 Charles II., married AGNES . . . by whom he had five daughters and coheirs, but no surviving male issue. He was buried at Satterleigh,* 13 December 1699, having on the 20th of the previous month made his will, which was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury by his widow in November 1703, wherein he specially refers to his Manor of Chittlehamholt, which he had settled "in tayle speciall," by voluntary settlement, above twenty years previous to making his will, and directed that, in case any question should arise as to the validity of that settlement in connection with the powers of leasing which he purported by his will to give in respect of the said manor, the trustees should do what they might think proper so as to give effect to the will.

Acting upon the directions given by the testator application was made by them to Parliament, which resulted in an Act passed in 3 and 4 Queen Anne, intituled "An Act to enable Agnes Hacche widow and other Trustees to make leases and sell lands in the county of Devon for payment of the debts and legacies of Robert Hacche esquire deceased and for the maintenance and advancement of his daughter's portions." The daughters and coheirs of Robert Hatch, by his wife Agnes, who survived him, were,

1. SUSANNA, baptized at Satterleigh* 14 April 1680, party to a deed of 28 Sep. 1705, mentioned in the Act of Parliament 3 and 4 Queen Anne, as having married Thomas Stafford, jun., of Upcott, co. Devon, shortly previous to 1705.
2. SARAH, born 25 May 1682, baptized at Satterleigh,* party to the deed of 28 Sep. 1705.
3. CHRISTIAN, born 8 May 1684, party to the deed 28 Sep. 1705, married John Drake of Barnstaple, by whom she had issue. Christian Hatch survived her husband and married, secondly, Charles STANDISH, of Barnstaple, merchant, but by him had no children. She died before 27 April 1744.
4. AGNES, born 25 December 1685,* mentioned in Act of Parliament 3 and 4 Queen Anne. She is said to have married Dr. Ebenezer Burdock, by whom she had one daughter, who married Sir George Stonehouse, and by him had a daughter, Susanna Maria Stonehouse.
5. BRIDGET, born 1 March 1690, mentioned in Act of Parliament 3 and 4 Queen Anne.

BOWDLER FAMILY.

To the Editor of 'THE GENEALOGIST.'

Sir,—In the Pedigree of Bowdler (ante p. 279), Joyce, daughter of Audley Bowdler, is stated to have been married to "John Edenbroke." The correct surname of this gentleman was Addenbrooke, and he was a native of Stourbridge, Worcestershire.

The accompanying pedigree, which contains a few descents of this family, is I think worthy of preservation in 'The Genealogist.' It was communicated to me by John Bate Cardale, Esq., of Guildford, Surrey, and copied from the original formerly in the possession of the Rev. George Cardale of Millbrook, Beds. By whom and when it was compiled is not certainly known, but I am inclined to think it was drawn up on the occasion of the christening, on 20th May 1695, of Oliver, the eldest son of Oliver and Elizabeth Dixon, of Dudley, with whom it terminates. Mr. J. Noake, in his 'Rambler in Worcestershire' (2nd series p. 72), relates that at this christening there were present seven of the child's grand parents, viz., one great grandfather, two great grandmothers, two grandfathers, and two grandmothers.

On some future occasion I may perhaps be able to forward to you for publication a more complete pedigree of the Addenbrooke family. The short memoir of the family given in my 'Heraldry of Worcestershire' is, I regret to say, not quite accurate; and Mr. Robinson, in his 'Mansions and Manors of Herefordshire,' has also, like myself, been misled by inaccurate and imperfect information. I have stated ('Heraldry of Worcestershire') that the Addenbrooke arms appear on the tomb in Over Sapey Church, co. Hereford, of the Rev. Francis Addenbrooke, rector of that parish, who died in 1724, aged 72. This information I derived from Duncumb's 'Herefordshire,' but the real name of the rector of Over Sapey was John. He was bapt. at Kingswinford in 1652, and was the son of Roger Addenbrooke, a younger brother of the Nicholas mentioned in the accompanying pedigree. His wife Elizabeth, who died Feb. 6, 1744, æt. 86 (Duncumb, M. 1.), was dau. of John Nash, a relative of Dr. Nash, the Historian of Worcestershire. This I learn from an old abstract of title to lands in Ombersley, Worcestershire, and it is confirmed by the impalement on the monument at Over Sapey, which Duncumb describes as "a chevron between 3 greyhounds."

John and Elizabeth Addenbrooke were the parents of three children, John, Edward, and Margaret, who all died s. p.

John, the eldest son, was bapt. at Upper Sapey in 1691. In 1732, he was rector of Sudbury, co. Derby, and in 1745, Dean of Lichfield. He died s. p. in 1776, "aged," says Dr. Harwood, in his 'History of Lichfield' (and unfortunately repeated by me in the 'Heraldry of Worcestershire'), "sixty-four."

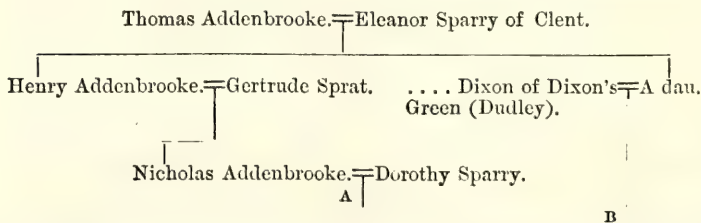

Edward, the second son, was of the Lea, co. Hereford, and died s. p. in 1791, æt. 90, leaving the Lea estate to his kinsman, John Addenbrooke Homfray, only child of John Homfray of Wollaston Hall, co. Worcester, by Mary dau. and coheir of Jeremiah Addenbrooke, son of another Jeremiah, an elder brother of the afore-said rector of Upper Sapey. Mr. Homfray assumed the surname and arms of Addenbrooke by royal licence in 1792, and served as High Sheriff of Worcestershire in 1798. He married in 1780, Elizabeth, dau. of Michael Grazebrook, Esq., of Audnam, and had an eldest son Edward Addenbrooke-Addenbrooke, Esq., father, by Emma, his wife, dau. of John Pidcock, of the Platts, Esq., of the present representative of the family, the Rev. Edward Addenbrooke, Vicar of Smethwick, co. Stafford.

With regard to the persons named in the old pedigree, I find from the parish registers of Oldswinford (which commence in 1602) that Eleanor Addenbrooke (widow of Thomas) was buried Dec. 2, 1623, Henry Addenbrooke on March 24, 1617-18, and Mrs. "Gertrid Addenbrooke" on March 26, 1653. Nicholas, son of Henry Addenbrooke, was bapt. Aug. 28, 1603; "Olyver Dixon* and Margaret Hill" were married Feb. 10, 1640-1. Nicholas Addenbrooke and Dorothy Sparry were married April 25, 1626. She was the dau. of John and Elizabeth Sparry, and was bapt. at Oldswinford Jan. 20, 1608-9.

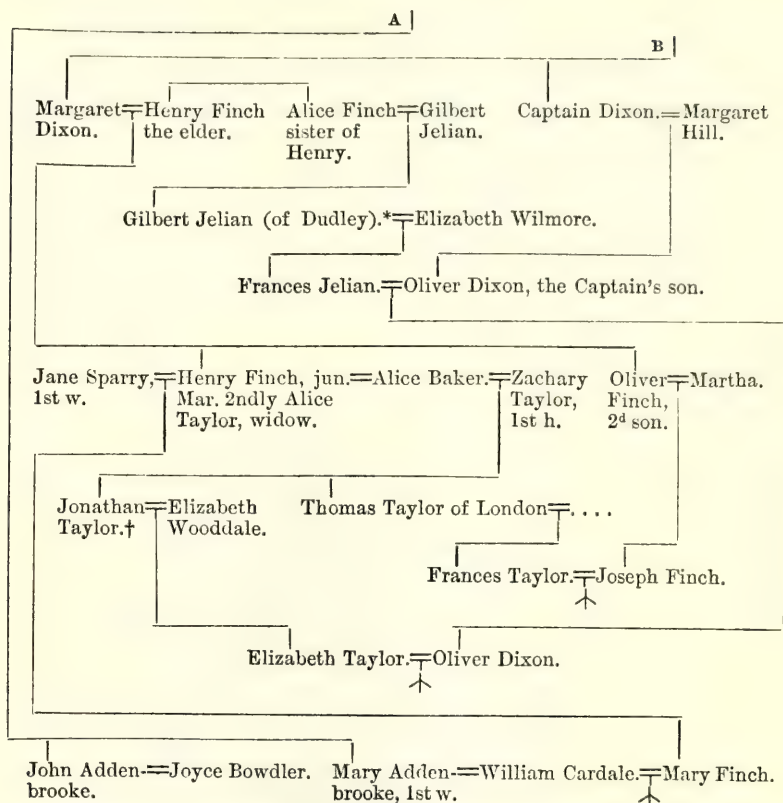

"Mr. Nicholas Addenbrooke" was buried Nov. 5, 1683, and Dorothy, his widow, Oct. 26, 1691. They had a large family. John and Mary mentioned in the pedigree were respectively baptized Aug. 9, 1629, and March 12, 1630-31. Nicholas Addenbrooke was of the Lye, gentleman, and one of the original feoffees of Foley's Hospital at Oldswinford. His will is dated March 18, 1679, and was proved at Worcester Nov. 29, 1683. His name and that of his youngest son Edward, rector of Lower Sapey, co. Worcester, appear in the list of Disclaimers at the Visitation of Worcestershire, 1682-3. Whether John had any issue by Joyce Bowdler I have not ascertained, but as his wife was a Shropshire lady he may possibly have been ancestor of the family referred to in an obituary notice of John Bradley, of Pall Mall, London, and Great Malvern, in the 'Gentleman's Magazine' for March 1844, p. 345. It is there stated that John Bradley (who was born at Buildwas, Salop. in 1786) was "descended by the mother's side from an old Shropshire family named Addenbrooke, distinguished for their adherence to the interests of the Stuarts, and for their readiness to aid in their restoration,—hopes which were annihilated in 1745, on the field of Culloden. The last representative of this family was Col. Addenbrooke, Chamberlain to the late Princess Charlotte. On his death many of the Colonel's papers devolved to Mr. Bradley as his nearest relative." It incidentally appears that the name of Mr. Bradley's maternal grandfather was Thomas Addenbrooke.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

H. SYDNEY GRAZEBROOK.

* He was of Dudley, and held a commission in the Royal Army during the Civil War,

SIR,—At page 280, I find the statement by Mr. Gordon Gyll that “Andrew Bowdler went to co. Kerry, Ireland.” He was High Sheriff in 1610, and purchased lands near Killarney from Sir Thomas Roper, Kt. A daughter of this Sir Thomas Roper became the wife of Thomas Fuller, the Church Historian, and another married Sir Edward Denny of Traloe Castle, in the same county. In “Old Kerry Records” (second series) by M. A. Hickson, is an extract from what is called the Desmond Survey, made for Queen Elizabeth in 1583, and now in the Record Office in

* Martha, dau. of Gilbert Julian, of Dudley, was the first wife of Pynson Wilmot of “Kidderminster Foreign,” who was aged about 21 years at the Visitation of Worcestershire in 1682. Gilbert Jellians of Dudley (living 1649), devised by will dated 23 Nov. 1699, to his son-in-law Oliver Shaw and others certain lands in trust, etc. for the benefit of the Dudley Free Grammar School.

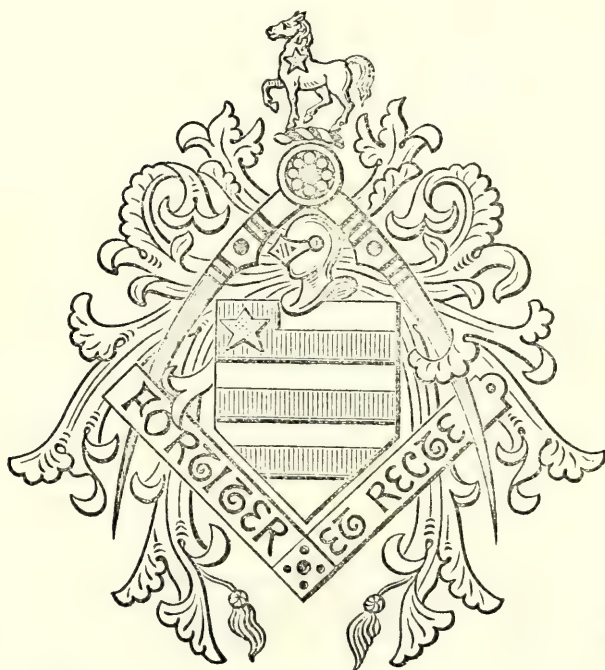

† Jonathan Taylor was an Ironmaster at Dudley. The marriage settlement of John Taylor, his “son & heir apparent by Elizabeth his wife,” with Rebecca Hawe, dau. of William Hawe, “late of Colemore, in the parish of Walsall, in the county of Stafford, gentleman, deceased,” is dated 1698. In 1742, Jonathan Taylor, of Birmingham, gent., was in possession of the lands settled by this deed.

Dublin :—" Johes ffuller alias Bowler vill' et terr' de Bowlerstown et certe' terr' in Ballybeg."

In the Calendar of Patent Rolls, Ireland, vol. v. p. 590, there is record of a pardon (22nd James I.) "to John Bowdler, who being seized in fee aliened the lands of Ballybowdler by deed dated 1619 to Stephen Rice, subject to redemption upon payment of £15." The name was therefore spelled both ways at this time. How he came to be "alias ffuller" is a puzzle to me. As this John ffuller was the first of my family of whom there is any record known to me, I am interested in clearing up the point as to whether he was originally a Bowdler or not. He possessed large tracts of land in Kerry, the names of which are given in the Desmond Survey; and as he held some portions by "Knight's Service" from the King, he must have been a man of mark in those days. In an "Inquisition taken on the death of Stephen Rice, 1624," his name is again written Bowdler.

The Andrew Bowdler mentioned above was one of the Commissioners named by the Justices of Assize, 22 August, 1612, "for a levy to build walls round Tralee."

Yours, etc.

. JAMES F. FULLER .

BOOK NOTICE.

THE HUNDRED OF LAUNDITCH, AND DEANERY OF BRISLEY IN THE COUNTY OF NORFOLK. By G. A. CARTHEW, F.S.A., etc. Part I. Norwich. 1877, 4^o.

“Histories,” says Bacon, “make men wise.” Could people be persuaded to read only the history of the soil on which they reside, Mr. Carthew's Launditch would soon acquire a wide-spread popularity. His method of dealing with his subject is as novel as it is admirable. Unlike other historians, who attempt to complete the history of a county by giving such facts as can be collected relating to each parish, Mr. Carthew treats his subject from a higher stand point, and gives in order the history of the people who owned the soil. The history of a place is really the history of its inhabitants, for who would care to read, much less to write, the history of a desert? The work is divided into two sections, the first containing an account of the Tenants in chief, the second of the Mesne and Sub-tenants, and to make the descent of the lands held by each different owner clear, a tabular pedigree is given which shews at a glance how the land passed from one family to another.

This Hundred, says Mr. Carthew, has given residence to some ancient families, and been the cradle of some noted men. The evidences gathered relating to the history of these families form the materials for an enlarged Topography of the Hundred, supplementary to the accounts given by Blomefield and his continuators, and bring it down to the present time. Among tenants in chief are Fitz Alan, De Warren, Bigot, De Toeni, and De Montfort, and among the Mesne tenants Le Strange, Hastings, Fincham, Vaux, Freville, Howard and Vere, all names of historic interest. For originality of design and clearness of arrangement this book distances by far most works of the kind, and considering that the printing is excellent, and the illustrations good, at the low price, twenty-five shillings, at which it is offered to subscribers, is a marvel of cheapness. We much regret that want of space prevents our giving a proper notice of it in this part of the GENEALOGIST, and shall take an early opportunity of bringing before our readers a fuller description of its contents.
